The step into this new routine was simply a matter of rote, honed by years of practice and repetition. Those were the good old days, when a guide could point a steady finger at a passing rock and say with certainty, "There's Little Massacre, and there's Kirk, Little Oak's up off the port and that's Massacre to the east...."

I'd never had any doubts about Kirk Island. The locals call it Kirk. The map calls it Kirk. That guy who flies the Beavers and Cessnas around all the time had me unsure for a little while as to whether he was a Kirk or a Curt so for seven years I called him Ker.. and coughed violently at the end of each address to cover up the indecision.

(My wife kindly pointed out to me, finally, that if I was ever in doubt it might be easier to read the embroidered name off his personalized flight jacket than enter into some hacking convulsion that was far more embarrassing than the misplacement of any consonant, anyway.)

But, no, I knew Kirk Island was Kirk Island. That is, until I ran into the guy whose Dad, Curt, had squatted on (no, no, like Squatter's Rights type squatting) and named the island. This guy assured me, through teary eyes, that his now deceased Dad probably wouldn't mind much if I continued to refer to the island as (sniff, sniff) whatever I incorrectly wanted to call it (sniff).

Great! I'm bad enough with guilt, but I'm even worse with skeptical glances about my credibility from map-in-hand tourists who can't believe I don't even know the proper names of the islands I fish around.

And then we come to Little Oak, only now it's Bulldog. A seemingly harmless request from another now deceased acquaintance makes the score Guilt 2, Credibility 0. We've passed four islands and the map claims I've misnamed two of them already. If you were a guest in my boat, would you think I was lost?

The prominent nature of Massacre Island is hard to ignore. Only it's not Massacre, it's really Manitou. I guided a University of Minnesota historian at one time a couple of years back. Seems he had some "technical" map info, too. Oh, goody. In the early 1900s, you see, the official international division of Lake of the Woods stripped Canada of many sites of historical significance, like the location of the famous "Massacre." A miffed Canadian government remedied its unhappiness by dragging the Massacre name with it and applying the name to Manitou Island. A conciliatory U.S. government indulged the sulking and simply labeled the original as "Little Massacre." Don't worry, we'll go right by it on the way in.

Confused yet?

Oh, the "massacre" itself? I'm glad you asked; or am I? I once thought it was a brutal, powerful, futile gesture perpetrated by the foresighted Dakota Sioux who, unlike their Ojibway brethren, saw their demise foreshadowed in the coming of the White Man. Fifteen "white" heads were lopped off and stuck on stakes as a sign to any other Europeans entering the region.

Another "informed" guest corrected me recently, claiming the Ojibway, themselves, were sick and tired of the philandering missionary priests taking liberties with the Indian women and up and did something about it. The level of detail extends well beyond this telling, but I'll leave it at that.

So, to make "heads" or "tails" (no massacre pun intended) of this jumble, let's apply it to the chasing of June walleyes. We've just crossed the Big Traverse and are entering the comfortable surroundings of the waters north of Garden Island. I turn to acquaint you with your new surroundings.

"On your left is Little Massacre, which is named not for the size of rock or the size of the slaughter, but for the size of international ego involved in the naming. Those who died there felt this little misunderstanding between church and congregation was nothing to lose heads over, but obviously underestimated the rage of their aboriginal counterparts.

"Up north we can see Bulldog Island, which is not on any map or in any other guide book. We'll just call it Little Oak for now and keep things a little simpler. And that smaller island just to the west is Ker.. cough, sputter, hack. Excuse me. That's Ker.. cough, wheeze... Excuse me again, I must have swallowed a bug or something.

"To the northeast we can see the present day Massacre Island, which is really Manitou island in a clever Canadian bureaucratic disguise. No, no massacre ever took place there, that's on Little Massacre. We passed it a while back but I chose to ignore it because I could think of no genteel, socially acceptable way of describing the nature of the tale surrounding it.

"Rumor has it, however, that if any person can actually perform the Herculean task of carrying 15 severed human heads (approximately 115 pounds) to the top of Massacre's imposing ridge, they can name an island, too."

I think I'll just fish in the Gap tomorrow. Piping Plover stories are so much easier.

Land Uses: Footprints On The Earth

Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District recently announced the winners in three age divisions of its conservation essay contest. The Northern Watch and Thief River Falls Times are publishing the first place essays as guest editorials.

The series began with the senior division winner written by Luke Miller, 17, a junior at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, which was published in the June 5 issue of the Northern Watch. The essay by junior division winner Paul Cronk, a student in seventh grade at Our Saviour's Christian Academy in Thief River Falls, was published in the June 9 edition of the Thief River Falls Times.

First place entry in the elementary division, written by 10-year-old fifth grader Sarah Cronk, also a student at Our Saviour's Christian Academy, is printed below. Other essays selected as winning entries in each division will be published elsewhere in the Times.

We are pleased to publish these essays as an encouragement to students to write creatively, and we congratulate the Pennington SWCD for its interest in sponsoring the essay contest again this year.

LAND USES....
FOOTPRINTS ON THE EARTH
by Sarah Cronk

Once there was a baby raccoon named Ricky. His mom had told him he had to find a way to live on his own. So off he went, looking for a good home or tree to live in.

"Mom always told me to walk in bushes or on grass, not on roads or sidewalks in big cities. They can have glass or garbage on them that can hurt my feet," thought Ricky.

So he picked out a house with bushes surrounding it. As he walked, he smelled something awful. "Yuck!" he yelled. "Garbage!. Someone threw garbage here!" So he ran as fast as he could, until his legs grew tired and he could not smell the garbage any more.

Then he saw another house and this one was the same. Soda cans, paper, trash of all kinds were thrown all over the yard. Weeds grew up everywhere. He saw a boy sitting on a lawn chair, candy wrappers and soda cans thick around him. A girl came out the back door and threw a wrapper on the lawn.

"How can they live like that?" thought Ricky.

He walked to the next house. Weeds grew up all around. It looked as if the lawn hadn't been mowed for years. As he walked by, Ricky looked disgusted.

"Don't they care what their yard looks like?" he said aloud.

"No," came a reply.

Ricky whirled. A baby gray squirrel stood just behind him.

"Who are you?" Ricky asked him.

"My name is Sammy," he said. "And those people don't care what their yard looks like."

"That's sad," thought Ricky. They talked for awhile about the polluted yards.

"Will you go with me?" Ricky asked.

"Huh? What do you mean?" Sammy asked.

"I'm looking for a home somewhere," Ricky said.

"O.K., I'll help you," Sammy said. "Let's go to a caring neighborhood." Off they went, and Ricky was glad for the company.

"Those people made bad footprints," Ricky said.

"What do you mean?" Sammy asked.

"Well, when you make good footprints, you take care of plants and animals; you don't kill endangered animals, but you do kill some other animals, so they don't get to be too many. You should take care of plants because, No. 1, we get oxygen from them and No. 2, all our food comes from plants: grain, vegetables, fruit and even meat. But if we make bad footprints, we litter and do not take care of the land.

"Oh!" Ricky exclaimed, for he had just seen the perfect house. It was white with thick green grass all around it. A large, beautiful tree was in the yard. The people who lived there took care of the plants and didn't litter. Ricky ran for the tree.

"My new home!" he yelled.

American Flag More Than A Piece Of Cloth

"Look around you this Flag Day," suggests Butch Miller, National Commander of the American Legion. "Drink in the beauty of 'Old Glory' waving proudly. Remember the grade school lessons reinforced by the number of stars and stripes. Remember the story of Francis Scott Key and the writing of The Star Spangled Banner. Recall the scene of 'Old Glory' being raised on Mount Surabachi. And take pride in the lump in your throat that comes with the realization that our America Flag is much more than a symbol or a piece of cloth."

Monday, June 14, is Flag Day and a local observance will be sponsored by the Thief River Falls Elks Lodge with participation by American Legion Post 117, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 and local Boy Scouts. Ceremonies will be conducted at Elks Park near the Third Street bridge, beginning at 5:45 p.m. It will be an opportunity for local families to pay their respect to the flag of our nation and emphasize to children the significance of that simple banner as a symbol of hope and freedom.

For a number of years the American Legion has headed a movement to pass a Constitutional Amendment to protect the flag from physical desecration. American Legion Commander Miller points out that polls have shown nearly 80 percent of Americans favor the amendment and that 49 state legislatures have passed resolutions petitioning Congress to pass the amendment and send it to the states for ratification. The U.S. House has passed the amendment twice, only to have it defeated twice in the Senate.

Commander Miller said he recently attended the dedication of a memorial to recipients of the Medal of Honor. Paul Bucha, president of the Medal of Honor Society, told the crowd that the American flag was much more than a mere piece of cloth. He said our flag is the hope of the world and the solemn cover that drapes the caskets of the nation's fallen heroes.

"On Flag Day, let's honor 'Old Glory' as never before," Commander Miller states. "Then call our senators and urge them to do the right thing and vote for a constitutional amendment to return to us the right to protect our flag. I don't believe that's too much to ask of every citizen."

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I wish I had the answers to why one human being feels he or she has the right to hurt another person. One wanting to do such things must be either a little mentally deranged or very unhappy. I hear so many suggestions as to why these things happen, but none of them seem to be the correct answers. I don't care who makes them.

I believe one thing is that some people have the idea that what is mine is mine and what is yours is mine. I know there are many places where guns are kept so children can see them and still don't bother to play with them. They have been taught to respect their parents' property and leave them alone.

I believe if parents and children have a close relationship so children can tell their parents if they are being bothered by someone or something, the situation would be easier to handle and keep things under control. Could it be some parents don't take enough time or have enough compassion for their children or maybe some are too easy on their children?

Each human being must see himself or herself as being no better or no worse than someone else and therefore have no right to pick on or to harm someone else. Everyone, young and old alike, must know they will be held accountable for their own actions.

Parents must live the example for their children in word and deed. As the saying goes, "Talk and walk carefully. I hear what you say and am following in your footsteps."

I must admit many children doing bad things have good parents. It may be some are doing it on a dare by someone else or are called chicken if they don't.

I think if there was more of the Lord stressed in all aspects of people's lives there would be less trouble. Like it says in Matthew 22:39, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

I read about a little boy who a couple was going to adopt. They told him about all the things he could have. He said, "I don't care about all those things; I just want somebody to love me."

Sincerely,
Lillie Asp

"The University of Minnesota Extension Service has combined efforts with the Minnesota Bankers Association, Minnesota Department of Agriculture and the Association of Minnesota Counties to take a look at the future of our state. They feel there is a need to raise awareness of the impact this social and economic crisis will have on each community in Minnesota. To do this, they have planned a series of citizens' forums this summer.

"To 'kick off the conversations', the first Citizens' Forums on the Social and Economic Crisis in Rural Minnesota will be held on Monday, June 14, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. It will feature a live downlink (7 to 8 p.m.) of Governor Jesse Ventura together with U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, Dan Glickman. They will interact with participants at three sites in the state — St. Paul, Worthington, and Crookston. This live broadcast portion will also be carried by Minnesota Public Radio and KTCA-TV, and also transmitted via satellite to county Extension offices.

Veterans recognized at Trinity church services

Military veterans were recognized at Sunday morning worship services at Trinity Lutheran Church May 30, the day prior to the annual Memorial Day observance.

Congregational singing of America, The Beautiful was followed by Breanna Gaffney singing The Star Spangled Banner. Veterans from World War II, the Korean War, Vietnam War and Desert Storm were invited to gather at the front of the church where they received a standing ovation from the congregation.

Ann Gaffney sang God Bless America and a group of veterans (Roy Jorgenson, Charles Josephson, Leonard Furuseth, Orville Hanson, Vivian Brekke and Leonard Brekke) told of some of their experiences in the military and how their faith impacted those experiences. Medals, citations, honors, pictures and other memorabilia that these veterans had received was on display in the church narthex.

Anne and Breanna Gaffney sang a medley of World War II era songs and the service ended with prayers, the benediction and congregational singing of Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Sjoberg golfs in AA state meet

Thief River Falls sophomore John Sjoberg followed a season-long pattern with steady, consistent play to finish in a tie for 17th in a field of 88 at the 1999 Class AA boys state high school golf tournament Tuesday and Wednesday in Coon Rapids.

Sjoberg had a two-day, 36-hole total of 153. Brett Swedberg of Alexandria and David Isaacson of Mounds View shared medalist honors at 145.

Competing on the 6,535-yard par-72 Bunker Hills Golf Club course, Sjoberg had a first-day 77 (37-40), and a second-day 76 (37-39). He was tied for 23rd after Tuesday's competition, but just six shots behind Isaacson, the leader on a closely-bunched Day 1 leader board.

"John was very solid," said Thief River Falls coach Dick Tyler. "He hit a lot of fairways and played smart golf. He had excellent course management. We're all very happy with the way he played – coach and parents. It was a great experience for him."

The course suited Sjoberg's game. Well-groomed fairways rewarded golfers who could hit the ball straight, and that's what he does best, said Tyler. "John has been very consistent all year," he noted. "He's been in the 70's in all but two rounds this spring. He plays steady golf."

Sjoberg earned his first state meet trip with a top-five finish at the Section 8AA tournament the previous week in Perham.

Hot muggy weather followed the golfers around the course throughout the meet. The Class AA girls, who teed off just behind the boys both days, had to use first-day scores to determine team and individual winners when heavy rain forced them off the course during Wednesday's competition.

Eden Prairie finished with a 604-608 edge over second place Owatonna/Medford to win the Class AA boys title. Brainerd finished with a 346-352 winning margin over Owatonna/Medford in the girls' portion of the tournament. Karyn Stordahl of Owatonna/Medford and Laura Olin of Eden Prairie shared medalist honors at 76.

Class A state meets were played Monday and Tuesday at the St. Cloud Country Club, where Roseau had a pair of runner-up finishes. Holy Angels Academy boys beat the Rams 638-641 and the Staples-Motley/Pillager girls edged Roseau 675-677.

Dan Sudebeck of Redwood Valley and Ben Grieve of Annandale tied for the Class A boys medal at 149. Mollie Shearen of Visitation was the Class A girls medalist with a 152.

Where to Send Cards

Persons wishing to send cards or messages to Allison while she is taking part in pageant week activities may address them to: Miss Thief River Falls, Allison Widner, c/o Miss Minnesota Program, General Delivery, St. Cloud, MN 56301. Mail call for the contestants will be held each day.

Allison's community service platform involves building self-esteem in children and adolescents. She has worked with children as a Sunday school teacher, coaching elementary school basketball and volunteering at Children's Hospital in St. Paul.

Allison currently works with two and three-year-olds at the YMCA daycare in Grand Forks and accompanies children on field trips. She has also worked at the migrant school in Argyle. Last summer she worked 70 hours a week, holding two jobs in the Stephen/Argyle area, frequently working in both communities the same day.

Help Is Appreciated

In preparation for the state pageant, she has been practicing interviews and paying special attention to current event items in the daily newspapers. She and her family are especially grateful for the information, suggestions and help received from Kari Thompson, 1997-98 Miss Thief River Falls, and her parents Richard and Carol of Red Lake Falls.

"It's been a really busy time trying to get ready for the state pageant while going to school and working," Allison said. "We appreciate the support from the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce and the Thief River Falls community and I'm really looking forward to an exciting week representing all of you in St. Cloud."

Personal interview with the judges will be one of the activities on Thursday, June 17, for Allison Widner, Miss Thief River Falls, at the Miss Minnesota Scholarship Program in St. Cloud. She will wear the above outfit for her interview.

Hwy. 2 work east of Fosston underway

Construction work on the east-bound lanes of Highway 2 from three miles east of Fosston to the west limits of Bagley began last week, according to the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

East-bound traffic is now restricted to one lane and motorists are advised to slow down and obey traffic signing instructions. Anyone arrested for speeding through a work zone will be assessed a double fine under Minnesota law.

The project consists of milling the old bituminous surface of the highway and putting on a new overlay. The work is expected to be completed by the end of July, according to Ouane Hill, project engineer.

Community action meeting in Middle River

On Monday, June 14, a community action meeting will be held at the Middle River school from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

This meeting is a response to the concerns that were brought up by community members at the community meeting held on May 21.

Curfew, law enforcement, community interaction, and block parenting were the areas that received the bulk of concem by community members.

The meeting on June 14 has been designed to enable community members to come together in small groups to discuss these concems in more detail and formulate a plan of action to ensure these concerns are addressed fully.

Although this meeting will be addressing the particular concerns of the Middle River community, everyone is welcome.

The district has $2.5 million to put towards the $3.4 million building project, and the $1.05 bond will put the project into full gear towards completion.

The building plan involves closing the elementary building and remodeling parts of the Kennedy school and high school facilities. New construction at the high school will include seven classrooms, library/media center, classrooms for early childhood education, vocal and instrumental music areas and expanded office space. *Kittson Co. Holiday Mall named Riverwalk Centre

East Grand Forks - Riverwalk Centre has been chosen as the new name of the city-owned mall in downtown East Grand Forks.

Officials recently decided that the mall needed a name change because of the redevelopment of the city.

Riverwalk Centre won out over names such as River Edge Mall, River Plaza, Sherlock Plaza and River Cities Mall. The Exponent

50th Annual Northwest Dairy Day set Saturday, June 26

Revived two years ago by dairy people who refused to see the traditional observance come to an end, Northwest Dairy Day will have its 50th anniversary appearance on Saturday, June 26, at the Pennington County Fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. Activity will start with a dairy showmanship demonstration at 11 a.m.

Format is changing from earlier days when dairy farms were more numerous throughout northwestern Minnesota, but the competitive spirit of the event remains unchanged.

Rather than being staged on the second Tuesday in June as it was for many years, Northwest Dairy Day is now a part of An American Festival, the summer fun fest organized and promoted by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce.

There are slightly over 40 exhibitors registered for this year's dairy cattle show and entries will be accepted at registration on the morning of the show. Competition will be by age class of the calves and cattle entered with no division by dairy breed. Cattle of all breeds entered will compete in each age class.

Cash awards of $200 each will be made to the showman of the grand champion grade and grand champion on purebred animal of the show. An overall show champion will also be selected for special recognition.

In addition to the junior and senior showmanship contests, this year's anniversary event will include an alumni showmanship contest open to any previous dairy showman at Northwest Dairy Day throughout its 50-year history. Those interested in participating are encouraged to come to the show ring area and register if they have not registered in advance. Cattle for the contest will be borrowed from the regular Dairy Day contestants.

Also on the program will be a cow milking contest involving efforts by local business people and dignitaries to extract milk the old-fashioned way in a timed competition. Educational displays including dairy trivia and a weight guessing contest will also be arranged and free chocolate and regular milk will be available throughout the day.

Special guest at the event will be Gayle Krogstad Solum, who was selected Northwest Dairy Princess in 1970 and went on to become Princess Kay of the Milky Way and the only ADA Region 1 winner to be named American Dairy Princess. She was selected for the national title among a group of 29 state winners in Chicago and traveled throughout the nation in 1971 and 1972 promoting dairy farming and dairy products.

Gayle presently lives in Barnesville where she has taught physical education and health since graduating from Moorhead State University in 1973. A feature story and photos from her Dairy Princess experience will be published in the Wednesday, June 23 issue of the Thief River Falls Times.

Also a special guest at the dairy cattle show will be 1999 Region 1 Dairy Princess Tricia Waggoner of Bagley, who was crowned at a banquet in Thief River Falls Monday, June 14.

Silver Creek Lutheran will note centennial June 26-27

Silver Creek Lutheran Church located northeast of Thief River Falls will observe its 100th anniversary on Saturday and Sunday, June 26 and 27, with all friends, neighbors and relatives of the members invited to join them in the celebration.

At 6:30 p.m. Saturday, June 26, a welcome and registration period for one-half hour will precede the contemporary worship service at 7 p.m. Refreshments and fellowship along with a reunion of confirmation class participants are scheduled for 8 p.m.

On Sunday morning, June 27, a worship and communion service will begin at 10:30 a.m. following a welcome and registration session beginning at 10 a.m. A dinner will be served at 12 noon with a free-will offering to be received. Social activities will begin at 1 p.m.

Anniversary services are scheduled for 2 p.m., followed by a social hour with cake, ice cream and other refreshments. Anniversary memorabilia will be available both days of the observance.

Pioneer settlers in the area were served as early as August of 1898 by Rev. Halvor Bjomson, a circuit pastor who traveled with horse and buggy throughout the area, holding services at the Elizah Gibson home, now known as the Jarvis Torgerson farm.

On March 12, 1899, neighbors met to organize a new congregation. Sasve Brokke was elected secretary, G. Gunderson was elected treasurer and Toller Johnson and Andreas Gutterud were elected as trustees. Also attending the first meeting was K. Molstad. From its beginning the congregation was associated with the Norwegian Synod Church of America and its early services and religious education were conducted in the Norwegian language.

At the annual meeting in 1900 plans were made to seek a site for a church building. New families added were Hans P. Pederson, Silas Torgerson, Knute Skahl, Olea Skahl, Andrew Skahl and Ole Johnson. Silas Torgerson, Ole Johnson and A. N. Gutterud were named to the site committee.

Hans Pederson donated one and one-half acres in the Southeast corner of the Northeast quarter of section 36 in Excel township for the church and Andrew Pederson donated the first $50 to start the building fund. At the annual meeting in 1906, additional donations of $5 to $15 were made by six families, bringing the building fund to $95.

While the gifts seem ridiculously small by today's standards, minutes of the congregation indicate that in 1906 a frame building measuring 20 by 24 feet was erected and the entire bill for the building, including doors and windows, was $125.45.

The name Silver Creek Lutheran Church was selected because of the meandering nearby creek which carried that name.

Improvements came slowly. By 1909 the walls were finished inside through donations from the Ladies Aid with members donating the labor. In 1912 it was decided to paint the exterior with two coats of white paint.

In 1913 each member donated one dollar and his time to build a 10x12-foot stable for the pastor's

"Weathering the Farm Crisis Together" is topic for forum

Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture Gene Hugoson will be the guest speaker and provide the latest farm information from Washington when an open forum for area farmers is presented Thursday, July 1, from 9 a.m. to noon at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Weathering the Farm Crisis Together is the theme for the forum which is being sponsored by the Area Ag Information Center, Inc. in Thief River Falls. There is no cost to attend the forum and coffee and cookies will be available.

"We want to emphasize that this forum is for all farmers and those sharing concern for the adverse conditions affecting farmers in northwest Minnesota," stated Garnette Hanson of Newfolden, office manager for the Area Ag Information Center.

"Our purpose is to bring the area farm community as up to date as possible on activity which affects them and their operations and to keep them informed on areas of assistance which are available to them," she added. "We especially want all farmers to be aware that they are not alone in difficulties they may be experiencing on the farm and that efforts are being made to provide means of assistance."

Commissioner Hugoson will have recently met with U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman in Washington, DC, regarding low prices for farm commodities and other ag issues. In addition to his talk, he will participate in a panel which includes a number of people involved with the area ag situation.

Garnette Hanson will moderate the panel discussion which will include brief informational presentations by each of the panel members. Participants and their areas of expertise for presentation include the following:

Karen Fredrickson, Thief River Falls, District 1 director for the Farm Service Agency, update on program information;

JoDell Poolman, Warren, executive director of the Marshall County Farm Service Agency, program information;

Mark Bertram, Crookston, farm loan manager with the Farm Service Agency in Polk county, loan servicing, shared appreciation and the new Guaranteed Loan program;

Michelle Benton and Ray Safranski, Thief River Falls, Certified Public Accountants with Kays, Benton, Safranski and Co., LLP, tax liabilities;

Kevin Duffy, Thief River Falls attorney, legal options for farmers;

Mary Reierson, Thief River Falls and Jan Boll, Trail, Minnesota Farm Advocates at the Area Ag Information Center, services available at the Ag Center, financial counseling and mediation.

"The forum is planned at present for the theater at Northland," Garnette Hanson said, "but the gymnasium is available if the space is needed and we would be happy if the turnout requires use of the gym."

Andrea Olson seeks crown as Miss TRF

Andrea Olson

Serving as a nanny in Alaska for two summers is among the unique experiences of Andrea Olson, 18, one of five candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title this year.

Andrea is the daughter of Ross and Glenda Olson and a 1999 graduate of Lincoln high school. Her dad is a railroad conductor and her mom is a daycare employee. She has a sister Naomi, 17, and brothers Nathan, 15 and Phillip, 7.

The work as a nanny was done along with her sister and the children in their care were their young cousins—the children of Glenda's brother and his wife, both of whom are employed in Alaska. But the experiences Andrea and Naomi had both years went well beyond child care in travel and adventure.

Andrea also made the New York City trip with the Lincoln high school choir, played the role of Cha-Cha in the Lincoln musical Grease, performed in the musical Guys and Dolls, participated in tennis, volleyball and girls hockey, was a member of the student senate and National Honor Society, earned academic letters, was selected as a Dare role model and was 1998 homecoming queen.

A piano student for about nine years, she won two gold cups in piano competition. A school choir member since elementary school, she took private voice lessons for two years. Her pageant talent num-

Project passes

Hallock - With 868 of a possible 1,577 votes cast, Kittson Central School district residents voted in a $1.05 million bond recently.

The district has $2.5 million to put towards the $3.4 million building project, and the $1.05 bond will put the project into full gear towards completion.

The building plan involves closing the elementary building and remodeling parts of the Kennedy school and high school facilities. New construction at the high school will include seven classrooms, library/media center, classrooms for early childhood education, vocal and instrumental music areas and expanded office space. *Kittson Co. Celebration today

Williams - St. Joseph Catholic Church will be the site of the Wildflower Route Celebration in Williams today (Saturday, June 19) from 1 to 3 p.m.

Williams Gardeners have marked over 50 flowers for participants to view, including the state flower, the Lady Slipper orchid.

Lorne Heshka of Winnipeg will be the guest speaker, discussing wildflowers and fielding questions. A luncheon tea will be served, and drawings will be held for door prizes. Also, a marked map of area wildflowers will be available for those interested in the self-guided tour. Northern Light

Holiday Mall named Riverwalk Centre

East Grand Forks - Riverwalk Centre has been chosen as the new name of the city-owned mall in downtown East Grand Forks.

Officials recently decided that the mall needed a name change because of the redevelopment of the city.

Riverwalk Centre won out over names such as River Edge Mall, River Plaza, Sherlock Plaza and River Cities Mall. The Exponent

Officer of the Year

Minnetonka - Police Sgt. Jeffrey Sebenaler was recently presented with the Minnetonka Officer of the Year award.

Sebenaler, who has been with the police force for nine years, was cited for his involvement and outstanding service as school liaison officer with the Hopkins and Minnetonka public schools from 1994 to 1996 and his work with the Minnetonka Police Reserves from 1996 to 1999. He has also been active in the community as a career mentor for high school students and advisory committee member for the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program.

Jeff is the son of Maurine Sebenaler and the late Russell Sebenaler. The Erskine Echo

Gas line breaks

Baudette - Two natural gas line breaks in two days last week forced the evacuation of two blocks in SW Baudette.

Both of the breaks were caused by contractors working on a project to bury electrical, telephone and cable television lines along an alley between Main Ave. and First Ave. SE. Two different contractors were involved. The Baudette Region

Now married to Kevin Solum for 23 years and living at Barnesville where she has taught school for 26 years, Gayle will be a special guest at the 50th annual Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls Saturday, June 26.

50th Annual Northwest Dairy Day set Saturday, June 26

Rescued two years ago by dairy people who refused to see the traditional observance come to an end, Northwest Dairy Day will have its 50th anniversary appearance on Saturday, June 26, at the Pennington County Fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. Activity will start with a dairy showmanship demonstration at 11 a.m.

Format is changing from earlier days when dairy farms were more numerous throughout northwestern Minnesota, but the competitive spirit of the event remains unchanged.

Rather than being staged on the second Tuesday in June as it was for many years, Northwest Dairy Day is now a part of An American Festival, the summer fun fest organized and promoted by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce.

There are slightly over 40 exhibitors registered for this year's dairy cattle show and entries will be accepted at registration on the morning of the show. Competition will be by age class of the calves and cattle entered with no division by dairy breed. Cattle of all breeds entered will compete in each age class.

Cash awards of $200 each will be made to the showman of the grand champion grade and grand champion purebred animal of the show. An overall show champion will also be selected for special recognition.

In addition to the junior and senior showmanship contests, this year's anniversary event will include an alumni showmanship contest open to any previous dairy showman at Northwest Dairy Day throughout its 50-year history. Those interested in participating are encouraged to come to the show ring area and register if they have not registered in advance. Cattle for the contest will be borrowed from the regular Dairy Day contestants.

Also on the program will be a cow milking contest involving efforts by local business people and dignitaries to extract milk the old-fashioned way in a timed competition. Educational displays including dairy trivia and a weight guessing contest will also be arranged and free chocolate and regular milk will be available throughout the day.

Special guest at the event will be Gayle Krogstad Solum, who was selected Northwest Dairy Princess in 1970 and went on to become Princess Kay of the Milky Way and the only ADA Region I winner to be named American Dairy Princess. She was selected for the national title among a group of 29 state winners in Chicago and traveled throughout the nation in 1971 and 1972 promoting dairy farming and dairy products.

Gayle presently lives in Barnesville where she has taught physical education and health since graduating from Moorhead State University in 1973. A feature story and photos from her Dairy Princess experience will be published in the Wednesday, June 23 issue of the Thief River Falls Times.

Also a special guest at the dairy cattle show will be 1999 Region I Dairy Princess Tricia Waggoner of Bagley, who was crowned at a banquet in Thief River Falls Monday, June 14.

Silver Creek Lutheran will note centennial June 26-27

Silver Creek Lutheran Church located northeast of Thief River Falls will observe its 100th anniversary on Saturday and Sunday, June 26 and 27, with all friends, neighbors and relatives of the members invited to join them in the celebration.

At 6:30 p.m. Saturday, June 26, a welcome and registration period for one-half hour will precede the contemporary worship service at 7 p.m. Refreshments and fellowship along with a reunion of confirmation class participants are scheduled for 8 p.m.

On Sunday morning, June 27, a worship and communion service will begin at 10:30 a.m. following a welcome and registration session beginning at 10 a.m. A dinner will be served at 12 noon with a free-will offering to be received. Social activities will begin at 1 p.m.

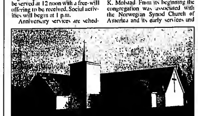
Anniversary services are scheduled for 2 p.m., followed by a social hour with cake, ice cream and other refreshments. Anniversary memorabilia will be available both days of the observance.

Pioneer settlers in the area were served as early as August of 1898 by Rev. Halvor Bjornson, a circuit pastor who traveled with horse and buggy throughout the area, holding services at the Elijah Gibson home, now known as the Jarvis Torgerson farm.

On March 12, 1899, neighbors met to organize a new congregation. Saave Brekke was elected secretary, G. Gunderson was elected treasurer and Toller Johnson and Andreas Gutterud were elected as trustees. Also attending the first meeting was K. Molstad. From its beginning the congregation was associated with the Norwegian Synod Church of America and its early services and religious education were conducted in the Norwegian language.

At the annual meeting in 1900 plans were made to seek a site for a church building. New families added were Hans P. Pederson, Silas Torgerson, Knute Skahl, Oleu Skahl, Andrew Skahl and Ole Johnson. Silas Torgerson, Ole Johnson and A. N. Gutterud were named to the site committee.

Hans Pederson donated one and one-half acres in the Southeast corner of the Northeast quarter of section 36 in Excel township for the church and Andrew Pederson donated the first $50 to start the building fund. At the annual meeting in 1906, additional donations of $5 to $15 were made by six families, bringing the building fund to $95.



While the gifts seem ridiculously small by today's standards, minutes of the congregation indicate that in 1906 a frame building measuring 20 by 24 feet was erected and the entire bill for the building, including doors and windows, was $125.45.

The name Silver Creek Lutheran Church was selected because of the meandering nearby creek which carried that name.

Improvements came slowly. By 1909 the walls were finished inside through donations from the Ladies Aid with members donating the labor. In 1912 it was decided to paint the exterior with two coats of white paint.

In 1913 each member donated one dollar and his time to build a 10x12-foot stable for the pastor's

"Weathering the Farm Crisis Together" is topic for forum

Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture Gene Hugoson will be the guest speaker and provide the latest farm information from Washington when an open forum for area farmers is presented Thursday, July 1, from 9 a.m. to noon at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Weathering the Farm Crisis Together is the theme for the forum which is being sponsored by the Area Ag Information Center, Inc. in Thief River Falls. There is no cost to attend the forum and coffee and cookies will be available.

"We want to emphasize that this forum is for all farmers and those sharing concern for the adverse conditions affecting farmers in northwest Minnesota," stated Garnette Hanson of Newfolden, office manager for the Area Ag Information Center.

"Our purpose is to bring the area farm community as up to date as possible on activity which affects them and their operations and to keep them informed on areas of assistance which are available to them," she added. "We especially want all farmers to be aware that they are not alone in difficulties they may be experiencing on the farm and that efforts are being made to provide means of assistance."

Commissioner Hugoson will have recently met with U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman in Washington, DC, regarding low prices for farm commodities and other ag issues. In addition to his talk, he will participate in a panel which includes a number of people involved with the area ag situation.

Garnette Hanson will moderate the panel discussion which will include brief informational presentations by each of the panel members. Participants and their areas of expertise for presentation include the following:

Karen Fredrickson, Thief River Falls, District 1 director for the Farm Service Agency, update on program information.

JoDell Poolman, Warren, executive director of the Marshall County Farm Service Agency, program information.

Mark Bertram, Crookston, farm loan manager with the Farm Service Agency in Polk county, loan servicing, shared appreciation and the new Guaranteed Loan program.

Michelle Benton and Ray Safranski, Thief River Falls, Certified Public Accountants with Rays, Benton, Safranski and Co., LLP, tax liabilities;

Kevin Duffy, Thief River Falls attorney, legal options for farmers.

Mary Reierson, Thief River Falls and Jan Bolt, Minnesota Farm Advocates at the Area Ag Information Center, services available at the Ag Center, financial counseling and mediation.

"The forum is planned at present for the theater at Northland," Garnette Hanson said, "but the gymnasium is available if the space is needed and we would be happy if the turnout requires use of the gym."

Andrea Olson seeks crown as Miss TRF

Andrea Olson

Serving as a nanny in Alaska for two summers is among the unique experiences of Andrea Olson, 18, one of five candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title this year.

Andrea is the daughter of Ross and Glenda Olson and a 1999 graduate of Lincoln high school. Her dad is a railroad conductor and her mom is a daycare employee. She has a sister Naomi, 17, and brothers Nathan, 15 and Phillip, 7.

The work as a nanny was done along with her sister and the children in their care were their young cousins—the children of Glenda's brother and his wife, both of whom are employed in Alaska. But the experiences Andrea and Naomi had both years went well beyond child care in travel and adventure.

Andrea also made the New York City trip with the Lincoln high school choir, played the role of Cha-Cha in the Lincoln musical Grease, performed in the musical Guys and Dolls, participated in tennis, volleyball and girls hockey, was a member of the student senate and National Honor Society, earned academic letters, was selected as a Dare role model and was 1998 homecoming queen.

A piano student for about nine years, she won two gold cups in piano competition. A school choir member since elementary school, she took private voice lessons for two years. Her pageant talent num-

Mutnansky completed the eighth grade in 1944. Back then, local school provided students with an education up to eighth grade, and if the student wanted to continue to attend school, they had to move away from home.

With the encouragement of her ten children, Mutnansky decided to complete her education by getting her GED through a program at NCTC. The Grygla Eagle

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere
email: gabriel@northernnet.com

Here's a repeat of a previous recipe with a correction. The recipe in my book did not have the sugar listed. I should have noticed, but didn't, so I'm giving you the entire recipe again, this time with the amount of sugar I would use included. Just throw away your other recipe for these muffins:

GINGERBREAD MUFFINS
1/4 cup soft margarine or butter
1/3 cup sugar (or 1/4 cup if less sweetness is desired)
1/4 cup molasses
1 egg
1 1/4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/2 cup hot water
Raisins

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
Blend margarine and sugar fluffy. Blend in molasses and egg. Beat.
Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with hot water. Add raisins.
Spoon batter into muffin cups, filling 2/3 full. Bake 12-15 minutes.

It's summer and time for some simple eating - snacks and treats are great to have on hand for guests and family.

Sometimes it's nice to have a little treat to have on hand for those quick snacks - here is one for you - make them plain or with raisins or chips - or make them all to fill a large treat jar:

CHEWY GRANOLA BARS
1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup sugar
2 tablespoons honey
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups oats
1 1/4 cups crispy rice cereal
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup raisins or semisweet chocolate chips (optional)

Cream butter and sugars. Add honey, vanilla and egg and mix well.
Combine dry ingredients and add to creamed mixture. Stir in oats, cereal and nuts and then raisins or chips, if desired.
Press into greased 9x13 inch pan and bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes or until top is lightly browned. (Makes 2 dozen bars.)

Here's another treat that would be great snacking on those summer evenings outdoors or inside watching TV:

SUPER NACHOS
1 ripe avocado, peeled
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped tomato
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 (15 ounce) can pinto beans, rinsed and drained
2/3 cup water (divided)
2 tablespoon oil
1/2 pound ground beef
1 tablespoon chili powder
7 ounces tortilla chips
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup (8 ounces) sour cream

In small bowl, mash avocado with lemon juice. Stir in onion, tomato, salt and pepper. Set aside.
Mash beans with 1/2 cup water and place in skillet and cook over medium heat until hot. Stir in oil and then remove from skillet and set aside.
Brown beef and drain. Stir in chili powder and remaining water and cook until liquid evaporates.
Line a baking sheet with foil. Arrange chips in a single layer and then top with teaspoonfuls of bean and meat mixtures. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 400 degrees until cheese is melted, about 4 minutes. Top with avocado mixture and sour cream. Serve immediately.

Here's a sweet treat, especially good for those who like the chocolate and peanut butter combination:

CHOCOLATE PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES
1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
1/2 cup powdered sugar
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter or margarine
6 ounces cream cheese, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
2 cups flour
1/4 cup cocoa
1 teaspoon baking powder
Frosting:
1 cup powdered sugar
2 ounces cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons cocoa
1 to 2 tablespoons milk

In small bowl, stir peanut butter and powdered sugar until smooth. Chill 15 minutes.
Meanwhile, in large bowl beat sugars, butter and cream cheese until light and fluffy. Add vanilla and egg.
Combine flour, cocoa and baking powder. Add to cream cheese mixture and mix well.
Roll into 1 inch balls and place half of the balls 2 inches apart on a greased baking sheet. Make a depression in the center of each ball with thumb and fill with 1 teaspoon of chilled peanut butter mixture. Flatten remaining balls and place over top, pressing edges to seal.
Bake at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes. Cool on rack.
Combine frosting ingredients in small bowl and stir smooth. Frost cooled cookies. (Makes 2 dozen)

Something simple to make and good for you to have in the freezer for those hot, hot summer days:

FROZEN FRUIT POPS
1 (3 ounce) package gelatin (any flavor)
1/2 cup sugar
2 cups boiling water
1 1/2 cups cold water
10-12 popsicle molds or 3 ounce paper cups
10-12 popsicle sticks or plastic spoons

Dissolve gelatin and sugar in boiling water. Stir in cold water and pour into molds or paper cups. Freeze 2 hours or until almost firm. Insert sticks or plastic spoons and freeze for 8 hours.
To serve, unmold or tear away paper cup.

Casual Exposure

What happens in my boat, stays in my boat. I would assume that this unwritten rule applies to guides worldwide, but I'm absolutely certain of that credo's existence on this lake. There is a degree of confidence that is a "given" from the moment that you set foot inside the gunwales—sort of an attorney-client privilege—that protects all participants from future repercussions.

There are many positives to this discreet relationship as it allows for candid, frank interaction between guest and guide on an immediate basis. There are some negatives, too.

For beginners, take bladder relief. In any public restroom men at the urinals go out of their way to show interest in anything but their neighbor—the condition of the ceiling, the trite ads over the trough or the mindless graffiti scrawled across the walls. It's part of a social contract: look at anything but the guy next to you and his business...we're all here alone.

In the boat however, the assumed camaraderie invariably prompts at least one of the boatload to unabashedly unzip in front of God and everyone without even the slightest hint of back-turning modesty. And it's a given during this "casual exposure" that the exposer will offer up some exceedingly dry dialogue about the condition of the stock market or the failings of the public schools, forcing those around him to engage in uncomfortably nonchalant banter.

The uncomfortable nature of this unspoken agreement shows up in other areas, as well. The conversation, for example, can become equally candid and unnerving. No. 1 don't particularly care to hear how many times a guest may have violated fish and game laws over the last decade, but I'll listen to the stories and then leave them in the boat at the end of the day.

And, of course, I'll nod my head when he tells me that it's really the guys from the next state who are ruining his favorite little resource. If it was part of the guide's job to actively enter into each area of disagreement, there would certainly be fewer guides. He's in my boat and a deal's a deal.

And, no, I really am not interested in his exploits involving his wife or his neighbor's wife, but if he's inclined to share such personal moments, he can rest assured that they will remain with the boat. Once again, my goal is to foster a comfortable environment in the boat, not be judgmental about it.

And as a middle-aged white male, I'm certainly privy to a fair share of pointed comments about Indians, Asians and Blacks during the course of the season. I suppose a similarity in physical make-up leads people to believe that we must think along like lines, as well.

Generally, a joke is offered up in which an ethnic group is isolated for some shortcoming. You know the style, it's a staple of any childhood and usually ends with the word "chink" or "spic." It doesn't happen with the same frequency it did 10 or 15 years ago, which is good, but it still happens, which is bad.

Only three times last summer did I hear the word "nigger" aboard my boat. Unfortunately, the slur is one of those few things that does not stay with the boat, despite any efforts I may make to keep it there. The nastiness and ignorance get carted up the dock at the end of the day, to be shared with the next caucasian male that might happen along.

Yes, this unspoken code of silence between guide and guest is a necessary part of a truly successful day on the lake. And I'm willing to take most of the less savory baggage that goes along with such a union, since the downside really is only a rare and isolated event. But each time someone feels the need to expose the most basic and indecent of their personal selves, I thank my lucky stars that most of them are just answering a bladder call.

Rudy Billberg Field is new name for airport at Roseau

Rudy Billberg Field is the name given by the Roseau city council to the Roseau municipal airport in recognition of Billberg as an aviation pioneer in the Roseau area.

Sunday, July 18, has been set as Rudy Billberg Day at the airport with a potluck picnic dinner to be served at 1 p.m. Those attending are asked to bring a dish to pass for the picnic. A ceremony honoring Billberg's career in aviation will follow the dinner. Pictures and items from Billberg's flying days will be on display.

Billberg had his introduction to aviation at Roseau when he took his first airplane ride there in the 1920s. His enthusiasm for flight led him to an association with airplanes that included barnstorming throughout the Upper Midwest, operating flight service to the Northwest Angle and flying as a bush pilot in Alaska. As a flight instructor he also taught flying to many Roseau area pilots.

In the Shadow of Eagles is the title of Rudy's book which tells the story of his colorful career in aviation.

Pilots are encouraged to fly in for the day at Rudy Billberg Field on Sunday, July 18. Airplane rides will be available for the public and the event is open for anyone interested to attend.

The airport is located three miles east of Roseau off Highway 11. Anyone with questions about the event is invited to contact Gordon Slattery at 218-463-5069.

HAPPY ARE THOSE WHO DON'T GO TO CHURCH!!!

Can we have a minute of your time?

I understand how you feel and agree with you.

WHY...should anyone go to church to hear a boring speaker talk about something that means nothing to your life? That's a waste of time.

WHY...should anyone go to a church that sets itself up as a courthouse to judge you and condemn you instead of helping you? The last thing you need is heavy rules and regulations that not even a minister can keep.

Looking for understanding and God's help, you go to church...but what do you get? Only more guilt and pressure to add to your overloaded condition.

If you've felt this way—YOU ARE THE PERSON I CARE ABOUT!!

It's time for churches to meet people's needs the way Jesus did:
...a fellowship that really cares about your hurts, not your money, and offers love, acceptance, and help when you need it most.
...a fellowship where every Sunday you receive a spiritual and inspirational boost that gives you confidence for the week ahead.
...a fellowship that gives practical answers to your problems, eliminating the fear, frustration and worry that can defeat you.

God wants you to know Him through a loving personal relationship, not through a religion of fear and judgement. Life was meant to be enjoyed; not just endured.

Why am I sharing this with you?

BECAUSE YOU ARE IMPORTANT!

Social Security Not Really All That Secure

Social Security has been referred to long and often as an "entitlement," but as U.S. Sen. Rod Grams points out, that ain't necessarily so. In fact, in the eyes of the Supreme Court and members of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate, it is a form of welfare. After a lifetime of making mandatory payments to the government's popular retirement program, put that welfare idea in your pipe and smoke it.

"Many Americans believe that Social Security benefits are their 'earned right.' That is, they think that because they've paid Social Security taxes, they are legally entitled to receive Social Security benefits," Sen. Grams says. "The truth is that the American people don't have any legal right to their Social Security benefits, although they pay Social Security taxes all their lives. Their benefits are always at the mercy of the government and the politicians who can reduce them at will or spend them on unrelated government programs."

Comforting thought, isn't it, especially for those currently receiving benefits or, as in the case of this writer, contemplating being on the receiving instead of the paying side in the not too distant future. Your retirement income from the Social Security system ultimately is in the hands of politicians and subject to their unfettered whims.

For that matter, the government has been, and continues to be, in the habit of spending Social Security tax payments for other purposes. The frequently mentioned "crisis" in Social Security is due largely to that liberty taken by the Congress, aided and abetted by the courts.

Sen. Grams explains the circumstances as follows:

"Despite President Roosevelt's promise that 'we put those payroll contributions there so as to give the contributors a legal, moral and political right to collect their pensions,' less than two years after the creation of Social Security, the Supreme Court decided that Social Security was not a pension program and the retirement benefits were to be determined by the political process.

"Later, the Supreme Court more expressly ruled that workers have no legally binding contractual rights to their Social Security benefits.

"In this case, a deported Bulgarian immigrant who paid Social Security taxes from 1936 until he retired in 19SS filed a suit to reclaim his Social Security benefits. The Court rejected his claim and said: 'To engraft upon the Social Security system a concept of accrued property rights would deprive it of the flexibility and boldness in adjustment to ever-changing conditions which it demands.' The decision shows that, contrary to common belief, Social Security is not backed by the full faith and credit of the government and is not a government-guaranteed investment."

Sen. Grams—probably along with the vast majority of American taxpayers—believes that situation should be changed.

"It is our moral and contractual duty to honor the commitment we made to working Americans by ensuring that Social Security is more an insurance program than a welfare program," he said.

"Each working American devotes his or her entire life to a job or series of jobs and pays thousands of dollars in Social Security taxes into the retirement system, expecting those dollars to be there at retirement. In fact, Social Security taxes are the largest tax that many families will ever pay, accounting for up to one-eighth of their total lifetime income. Depriving them of a legal right to Social Security benefits is unfair and wrong."

Sen. Grams has introduced legislation which would require the government to issue U.S. Treasury-backed certificates specifying the level of guaranteed benefits, thus granting every current and future Social Security beneficiary an "earned right" to those benefits, plus an accurate inflation adjustment.

Grams said that many seniors believe any changes to the Social Security system would jeopardize their benefits. Granting the legal right to those benefits would help calm those fears.

"By granting our seniors this ironclad guarantee that their benefits are safe, we would take away any uncertainties resulting from the growing political debate (on program reform)," Sen. Grams said.

The senator is right. Setting the parking brake and blocking the wheels increases the confidence level before crawling under the vehicle to change the oil.

Farmers In Crisis Shouldn't Feel Alone

One of the messages we have been receiving recently from various groups, organizations and individuals involved with helping farmers to work their way through the current difficulties in farming is that farmers finding themselves in trouble shouldn't feel they are the only ones in those circumstances.

"Farmers have a tendency to be very private types of people," one farm advocate said. "They keep their finances and their difficulties to themselves and as a result may think they are not doing as well as their neighbors. In reality, the neighbors may be in worse straits than they are, despite outward appearances. The truth is, most farm families are not doing well and probably could benefit from some outside assistance by way of information and advice."

Some of that information and advice will be available at a forum organized by the Area Ag Information Center, Inc. in Thief River Falls and to be held from 9 a.m. to noon Thursday, July 1, at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. The forum is planned for the theater at the college, but if more than a small fraction of those who could benefit from attending do attend, it may wind up in the college gymnasium.

A news story in today's issue of the Northern Watch explains who will be on the program and what they have to offer. The group covers most of the bases and the title for the forum is most appropriate: Weathering the Farm Crisis Together. Headlining the event is Gene Hugoson, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture, who will have recently returned from Washington, DC, and a meeting with U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman regarding prices for farm commodities.

While the forum is intended to be of most assistance to farmers—all farmers—it should also be of interest to business people and others who are affected by farm conditions. There will be no cost to attend and attendees can even have a cup of coffee and a cookie as a bonus. If you want to be as up-to-date as possible on the farm crisis, it won't get any better than this. Mark your calendar now: July 1, 9 to noon, NCTC: MAJOR MEETING!

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Thank you to the citizens of Thief River Falls for hosting this year's American Festival on June 26-27. This is a great celebration, and I want to extend a warm welcome to Minnesotans and our many guests who will visit Thief River Falls and participate in this special event.

I think it's safe to say that most Minnesotans have fond memories of their hometown festivals, where neighbors come together and renew old friendships, share good stories and good food, and celebrate the past while preserving those memories for the future.

And of course, these annual get-togethers give us an opportunity to showcase the diverse riches of Minnesota's communities. Just this summer alone, more than 130 Minnesota cities and towns are hosting local celebrations, bringing their residents together and offering visitors a taste of local life. I'm proud of the citizens of Thief River Falls for continuing that legacy.

I wish you great success with the 1999 American Festival.

Sincerely,
Rod Grams
United States Senator

Blues beat TRF Legion team 10-1...

Moorhead turns four errors into 9-run win

Four Thief River Falls errors helped fuel the Moorhead offense Tuesday in the Blues' 10-1 Ninth District American Legion baseball win at Matson Field.

Moorhead finished with just a 12-9 base hit edge, but the winners played error-free ball. The Blues led 2-0 through four innings of the scheduled nine-inning contest before turning a Thief River Falls pitching change into a six-run, game-clinching outburst.

"We had too many errors," reported Thief River Falls coach Mike Wienen, who had to call on several VFW 16-year-olds to fill line-up spots left vacant by regulars who ran into schedule conflicts and couldn't be in the game. Base running mistakes also came in to play, he pointed out.

Thief River Falls' lone run crossed the plate in the sixth inning on a RBI single by Josh Jensen.

Moorhead was the North Sub-Section 8AA high school baseball champion this spring when the Spuds lost a 2-out-of-3 Section 8AA championship series to Little Falls. The South Sub-Section 8AA champion Flyers advanced to the state tournament with 5-3 and 9-7 wins that came on each side of a 7-3 Moorhead victory.

■ Finals - seventh place, 9 a.m., Irv Wilson Field, consolation, 11:30 a.m., Irv Wilson Field, third place, 2 p.m., Irv Wilson Field, championship, 4:30 p.m., Irv Wilson Field

Red Lake Falls base runner Matt Hruby came up with a steal of third as he reached the base before Thief River Falls' Joey Pribula could apply a tag in the second inning of Wednesday's American Legion baseball doubleheader opener at Irv Wilson Field. Red Lake Falls won the game 8-6, but Thief River Falls came back to win the nightcap 11-1.

Pitching will be key to success for TRF

■ Post 117 splits Wednesday doubleheader against RLF

Facing a 42-game schedule over a 5 1/2-week regular season, Thief River Falls American Legion baseball coach Mike Wienen has put the development of a pitching staff at the top of his priority list. Back-to-back doubleheaders and weekend tournaments place a major strain on arms. Playing less than half that many games, high school teams can get by with a much smaller mound staff. The expanded summer schedule means that players who may have little or no pitching experience are asked to take a turn on the mound.

"We'll pitch just about everybody," said Wienen. "We'll probably need about 11 pitchers to get through the season. We played six games in five days and already used eight pitchers. Just about anybody who wants to try it will probably get a chance to pitch some this summer."

While the search continues, the early-season pitching has been erratic, admitted Wienen. "You have to throw strikes," he said. "We've been walking too many batters, and every time we walk somebody, they end up scoring."

Part of Wienen's anxiety was relieved in the second half of a Wednesday doubleheader against Red Lake Falls at Irv Wilson Field when Nick Wilcox turned in a complete-game two-hit pitching performance that carried Post 117 to an 11-1 five-inning win.

"Nick pitched a good game," mentioned Wienen. "He kept the ball around the plate."

The 1999 Marshall County Central High School graduate also got a little defensive help. Something that first-game pitchers Derek Berg and Jason Jensen never had in an 8-6 Red Lake Falls victory.

Thief River Falls was charged with seven errors in the opener, with six of them coming in the first three innings when Red Lake Falls jumped out to a 7-3 lead.

"We threw the ball around in the first game," admitted Wienen. "It wasn't very good baseball."

No, it wasn't. In the top of the first, Red Lake Falls drew a pair of one-out walks and Derek Cosavan followed with a drive into the left-center field gap that went for a two-run double. Casavan scored on a two-out single by Dan Stephens, who stole second. Four errors on the left side of the Thief River Falls infield made it 4-0 and loaded the bases before Berg got out of the inning.

Red Lake Falls didn't fare much better when the visitors took the field. Four errors enabled Thief River Falls to score three first inning runs without the benefit of a base hit. It started with two walks and a hit-batsman loading the bases. A potential inning-ending double play toss was dropped at second base to score two runs and a two-out mis-play at first base allowed the third run to cross the plate.

Nick Waldal walked to open the Red Lake Falls second inning, stole second and scored when Mark Lorenson singled to right field. Lorenson also came up with a steal, then came around to score when an error was tacked on to single up the middle by Casavan.

Red Lake Falls made it 7-3 in the third on yet another Thief River Falls error when Aaron Schmitz, who had reached base on a fielder's choice and stole second, trotted home as the ball sailed down the left field line on a steal of third.

Thief River Falls came up with a second game turnaround by combining the pitching of Wilcox with a decrease in errors (seven to one) and an increase in base hits (four to seven).

Both teams stayed at .500 with the split: Thief River Falls at 3-3 and Red Lake Falls at 5-5. A Red Lake Falls/Oklee/Plummer cooperative that won the Sub-Section 31A champion and finished with a 19-5 record in high school baseball this spring featured the pitching and hitting of Lorenson. The University of North Dakota-baseball recruit was named to play in the 25th annual Lions High School Baseball All-Star Tournament this weekend in Chaska. Eighty graduating seniors were selected to play in the four-team, round-robin series of games.

The start of the Wednesday twin-bill was delayed as both teams awaited late-arriving players. Personnel shortage forced Baudette to call off a doubleheader visit to Irv Wilson Field the following night. Thief River Falls plays Ninth District rivals East Grand Forks Monday and Detroit Lakes Tuesday on the road, and will be at the East Grand Forks Invitational on the weekend.

Polaris celebrates 45th anniversary

Loyal Polaris customers and employees will be celebroting the Roseau company's 45th anniversary in a number of ways this weekend, Friday, June 18 and Saturday, June 19.

Four men from Vancouver, British Columbia, have chosen to celebrote the event by riding 1,500 miles across Canada on Special snowmobiles custom-made for pavement driving. Another two-man team from Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, will travel more than 900 miles to Roseau on an all-terrain vehicle. And, Victory motorcycle owners will take their first cross-state tour that takes them from the Polaris corporote office in Minneapolis to the Engineering and Engine manufacturing facility in Osceola, WI. All of these groups will finish the last leg of their tours by joining an anniversary parade Saturday, June 19, in downtown Roseau.

Company officials are estimating that 15,000 people will join the company's founders — current management, employees, vendors and the local community for the anniversary party. Activities will take place at the Polaris manufacturing plant, Roseau Arena and fairgrounds in Roseau.

For 45 years, Polaris has made recreational vehicles. This year, the company celebrates its 45th anniversary in the town where it all started — Roseau, MN, population 2,500. Polaris developed the snowmobile 45 years ago and today is the world's largest manufacturer of snowmobiles. Polaris also manufactures all-terrain vehicles, Victory Motorcycles and personal watercroft.

Moorhead area 4-H club wins national community award

Oakmound 4-H club from the Moorhead area recently received a $500 second place award in a national Youth for America project for its "Happy Feet" service project.

When a member noticed that there were students who couldn't participate in school sports because they had no sneakers, the club took on the project of helping to provide them.

The club gets shoe sizes for needy families from the YMCA, area schools and county offices and members write press releases, make presentations to businesses and maintain a website. The program has been so successful and the support so great that requests for shoes can normally be filled with "lightly worn" or new sneakers within two days.

horse. In 1916 a 10-foot addition and bell tower measuring 10x10 feet were constructed as additions to the church building.

Pastor Bjornson asked to resign in 1913 but his resignation was not accepted. He was asked to continue on an annual basis until 1918 when the church joined the Home Mission Field and Rev. Ordahl became pastor. He served until 1939, during which time the church joined with Nazareth at Holt into what became the Holt Lutheran Parish.

Other pastors to serve the congregation were Rev. Tallackson and Rev. Sabo, supply pastors 1926-1928; Rev. L. M. Redahl, 1928-1936; Rev. T. C. Hanson, 1936-1944; Rev. Urness, 1945-1947; Rev. Victor G. Sorenson, 1947-1950; Rev. Raymond Brandt, 1951-1955; Rev. James Peterson, 1955-1959; Rev. Lowell Jacobson, 1959-1961; Rev. Milton Wilson, 1961-1965; Rev. Ken Kramer, 1966-1970; Rev. Richard Sorenson, 1970-1973; Rev. Duane Aippersbach, 1974-1978; Rev. Rick and Rev. Nancy Lund, 1979-1985; Rev. Eugene Floistad, 1986-1994; Rev. Nancy Werner, 1994-1998. Since 1998 the church has not had a called pastor but has been served along with other churches by Rev. Robert Dahlen of Goodridge.

Silver Creek church made history with the hiring of Rev. Rick and Rev. Nancy Lund as they were the first ordained couple of the American Lutheran Church in the state of Minnesota.

Planning for a new church structure began in 1944 and plans for building a new church were presented to the congregation in 1948. On that building committee were Harry Knutson, Otto Rupprecht, I. M. Pederson, Henry Williams, Christ Nelson, Kenneth Russell, Melvin Torgerson and Carl Torgerson.

Cash and pledges of $2,400 were collected at the first meeting and $9,000 was borrowed at three percent interest for 10 years. The new building was dedicated Sept. 24, 1950.

The mortgage papers were ceremoniously burned at the annual meeting in 1958. On Palm Sunday morning on March 26, 1961, the church steeple was struck by lightning and the church burned to the ground. Members were able to save the electric organ, some pews, the kitchen stove, pulpit and altar and a few hymnals before the steeple collapsed and the building filled with smoke.

A week later, members voted to rebuild and the cornerstone of the new building was laid in August. In December of that year women received the right to vote on church matters.

In April of 1977 vandals sprayed fire extinguishers throughout the interior of the building and caused other damage. Church members pitched in and had the church cleaned and ready for a wedding the following week. The unlocked church has also served as shelter for travelers caught in snowstorms over the years.

Other information about the church history, its organizations, confirmation classes and activities is contained in the anniversary book entitled A Century of Faith, compiled and edited by Ida Rupprecht and Jarvis and Martha Torgerson. The book, from which the above information was gleaned, will be available during the centennial observance. A special centennial banner has also been prepared for display during the anniversary year.

With over 15 years of research and manufacturing experience, Central Boiler has established the outdoor wood furnace as one of the best answers for safely and economically meeting heating needs. Central Boiler's outdoor wood furnaces can provide heat for multiple buildings and domestic hot water. The furnace can be installed 10 to 500 feet from the home, a water jacket surrounds the furnace firebox, heated water is circulated to the home or buildings through insulated underground pipes and the heat is then transferred through a heat exchange or direct circulation.

Recently, Central Boiler added the new Titanium Series outdoor wood furnace to its product line. The Titanium Series outdoor wood furnace is manufactured with certified titanium enhanced stainless steel. Certification of the stainless steel is achieved by it meeting the chemical composition standards set forth by the American Society Testing Material (ASTM). Maintaining its reputation for quality craftsmanship, Central Boiler uses its in-house CNC (computerized numerical control) laser to precisely cut assembly components from the titanium enhanced stainless. The laser cut assures an exact fit is obtained when the components are assembled, allowing a strong and durable weld to be achieved. The laser cut is also beneficial in maintaining the chemical composition of the metal, which is important to assure the metal's strength is not altered. This along with the thickness of the titanium enhanced stainless steel, a 7 gauge ash pan and 10 gauge water jacket, makes this stainless outdoor wood furnace a complement to Central Boiler's Classic line.

Shortly following the release of the Titanium Series furnace, Central Boiler unveiled the Smart Controller. The electronic Smart Controller is something entirely new to the outdoor wood furnace industry and brings new dimension to convenience and efficiency. This innovative device controls the operations of the furnace, much like cruise control on a car. The controller allows Classic owners to achieve higher efficiency from their outdoor wood furnace and provides some rather unique features and options. The optional indoor remote and LED display allows for the monitoring and adjusting of furnace settings from inside the home, even allowing the night light to be turned off and on without going outside. The low water alarm and cut off setting, which is similar to the low oil light on a car, is an added security feature. The optional combustion fan's speed is appropriately varied by the controller as the furnace calls for heat, increasing the furnace's efficiency. This along with the adjustable water temperature setting makes the Smart Controller a great benefit to the Classic furnace owner. The Smart Controller is currently an add-on option and can be installed on new and older style Classic outdoor wood furnaces.

Mary Jane joins RLF emergency services

Red Lake Falls - Members of the Red Lake Falls Volunteer Fire Department recently donated their time and talents to fix up and paint a 19-year-old four-wheel drive pickup that was seized during a drug raid near Plummer in August of 1998.

The truck was painted red and "Mary Jane," the name the volunteers gave the truck, was painted on its front. Painted on the sides of the truck is "Donated by drug dealers caught in Red Lake County."

The box of the pickup holds a drawer that carries emergency equipment, including the jaws of life, air bags, blankets, oxygen tanks, fire extinguishers and blocks. The Gazette

Race with stork ends in hospital parking lot

Mahnomen - Due on June 23, Catherine Rae Bunker made an early appearance on June 4 as her parents' race with the stork ended in the parking lot in front of the emergency entrance to the Mahnomen Health Center.

Although the infant's father is a paramedic and ambulance director for Mahnomen Health Center's ambulance service, Mike Bunker made every effort to get his wife, Cindy, to the hospital in time. The Mahnomen Pioneer

The price was right for Warroad woman

Warroad - After standing in line from 5:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Katrina Homer from Warroad finally entered the doors of the California CBS studio where the Price Is Right game show is taped. Then all 320 ticket holders were instructed by a producer to jump up and down with excitement as if they were just called to participate in the game.

Kate got a chance to do that for real when called to "come on down." After making her initial bid, she moved up to the stage where she won it all in the "Master Key" game. In addition to winning a cappucino/expresso maker, a karaoke machine, flatware, luggage and a brass and glass cabinet, the St. Cloud State University student won the grand prize, a red Ford pickup. Warroad Pioneer

State's oldest active licensed mortician dies

Bagley - When Edmund Cease died on June 16, he was Minnesota's oldest active licensed mortician and had been honored in May by the Minnesota Funeral Directors Association.

Cease's career as funeral director began in Bagley in 1925 when he worked at the Neljahr Drug Store and Funeral Home. He also worked at H.C. Peterson Hardware and Funeral Home. In 1942 he combined the two businesses under the name [illegible] Funeral Home. [illegible] Throughout his life, Cease was also very active in community and civic affairs in Bagley and Clearwater County. Farmers Independent [illegible]

Holte finds life unpredictable

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Life is unpredictable. In October of last year, Northern Watch Editor Marv Lundin wrote a comprehensive story about the many awards and accomplishments of young Tina Holte and her horse, Black Lady of Royale, including two recent first place trophies at the state 4-H horse show.

The account took a sad twist when it was reported that, only a few days before the story was published, Royale had gone down in the pasture, breaking a bone in her lower right rear leg and ending her "days of glory" as a riding horse.

Royale's incident was just one of those unfortunate occurrences that couldn't have been avoided or predicted any more than the fact that her nineteen-year-old master would be diagnosed with cancer within weeks and before the animal's cast was off.

It was Tina's dad, Wayne, who first noticed a lump on his daughter's throat in July of last year. She was participating in the Miss Grygla pageant, and as he watched her competing in the evening gown portion of the program, he noted that it looked like she had an "Adam's apple."

The first doctor Tina saw wasn't concerned about the lump and suggested that she come back in several months.

When she began to have difficulty swallowing, Tina and her parents decided that she should seek a second opinion at Altru Clinic in Grand Forks. It was around the third week of October. Within two weeks, Tina had surgery. Early in November, doctors at Altru Hospital removed a baseball-size tumor and half of her thyroid gland. Pushing against her esophagus, the tumor had been responsible for the difficulty she had experienced when swallowing.

Tina bounced back from the surgery quickly, resumed her studies at the University of North Dakota, her jobs and her life as a young woman.

The oncology report came later in November, right before Thanksgiving. Tina was diagnosed with papillary carcinoma.

"It was a scary time," Tina says of the next few weeks. An appointment was made at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, and she spent part of her Christmas break undergoing tests and evaluations there. In mid-January, Mayo surgeons removed the rest of her thyroid gland and between 100 and 200 lymph nodes. Of the lymph nodes removed from her throat and neck, 50 percent turned out to be cancerous.

Following her diagnosis and while in Rochester, Tina and her parents learned about the disease, and Marlene Holte comments about how the doctors in Rochester took the time to explain things and answer all of the questions she had pertaining to her daughter's condition. Tina researched the subject and wrote a paper about it for school.

Tina Holte

She discovered that of all diagnosed thyroid disorders, only two percent are cancerous, and 85 percent of those afflicted with cancer of the thyroid have papillary carcinoma. Others, usually older people, have follicle carcinoma.

house. In 1916 a 10 foot addition and bell tower measuring 10x10 feet were constructed as additions to the church building.

Pastor Bjornson asked to resign in 1913 but his resignation was not accepted. He was asked to continue on an annual basis until 1918 when the church joined the Home Mission Field and Rev. Ordahl became pastor. He served until 1939, during which time the church joined with Nazareth at Holt into what became the Holt Lutheran Parish.

Other pastors to serve the congregation were Rev. Tallackson and Rev. Saba, supply pastors 1926-1928; Rev. L. M. Redahl, 1928-1936; Rev. I. C. Hanson, 1936-1944; Rev. Erness, 1945-1947; Rev. Victor G. Sorenson, 1947-1950; Rev. Raymond Brandt, 1951-1955; Rev. James Peterson, 1955-1959; Rev. Lowell Jacobson, 1959-1961; Rev. Milton Wilson, 1961-1965; Rev. Ken Kramer, 1966-1970; Rev. Richard Sorenson, 1970-1973; Rev. Duane Appenspach, 1974-1978; Rev. Rick and Rev. Nancy Lund, 1979-1985; Rev. Eugene Flostad, 1986-1994; Rev. Nancy Werner, 1994-1998. Since 1998 the church has not had a called pastor but has been served along with other churches by Rev. Robert Dahlen of Goodridge.

Silver Creek church made history with the hiring of Rev. Rick and Rev. Nancy Lund as they were the first ordained couple of the American Lutheran Church in the state of Minnesota.

Planning for a new church structure began in 1944 and plans for building a new church were presented to the congregation in 1948. On that building committee were Harry Knutson, Otto Rupprecht, L. M. Pederson, Henry Williams, Christ Nelson, Kenneth Russell, Melvin Torgerson and Carl Torgerson.

Cash and pledges of $2,400 were collected at the first meeting and $9,000 was borrowed at three percent interest for 10 years. The new building was dedicated Sept. 24, 1950.

The mortgage papers were ceremoniously burned at the annual meeting in 1958. On Palm Sunday morning on March 26, 1961, the church steeple was struck by lightning and the church burned to the ground. Members were able to save the electric organ, some pews, the kitchen stove, pulpit and altar and a few hymnals before the steeple collapsed and the building filled with smoke.

A week later members voted to rebuild and the cornerstone of the new building was laid in August. In December of that year women received the right to vote on church matters.

In April of 1977 vandals sprayed fire extinguishers throughout the interior of the building and caused other damage. Church members pitched in and had the church cleaned and ready for a wedding the following week. The unlocked church has also served as shelter for travelers caught in snowstorms over the years.

Other information about the church history, its organizations, confirmation classes and activities is continued in the anniversary book entitled A Century of Faith compiled and edited by Ida Rupprecht and Jarvis and Martha Torgerson. The book, from which the above information was gleaned, will be available during the centennial observance. A special centennial banner has also been prepared for display during the anniversary year.

Central Boiler releases two new products

With over 15 years of research and manufacturing experience, Central Boiler has established the outdoor wood furnace as one of the best answers for safely and economically meeting heating needs. Central Boiler's outdoor wood furnaces can provide heat for multiple buildings and domestic hot water. The furnace can be installed 10 to 500 feet from the home; a water jacket surrounds the furnace fire box; heated water is circulated to the home or buildings through insulated underground pipes and the heat is then transferred through a heat exchange or direct circulation.

The Titanium Series outdoor wood furnace is manufactured with certified titanium enhanced stainless steel. Certification of the stainless steel is achieved by it meeting the chemical composition standards set forth by the American Society Testing Material (ASTM). Maintaining its reputation for quality craftsmanship, Central Boiler uses its in-house CNC (computerized numerical control) laser to precisely cut assembly components from the titanium enhanced stainless. The laser cut assures an exact fit is obtained when the components are assembled, allowing a strong and durable weld to be achieved. The laser cut is also beneficial in maintaining the chemical composition of the metal, which is important to assure the metal's strength is not altered. This along with the thickness of the titanium enhanced stainless steel, a 7 gauge ash pan and 10 gauge water jacket, makes this stainless outdoor wood furnace a complement to Central Boiler's Classic line.

Mary Jane joins RLF emergency services

Red Lake Falls - Members of the Red Lake Falls Volunteer Fire Department recently donated their time and talents to fix up and paint a 19-year-old four-wheel drive pickup that was seized during a drug raid near Plummer in August of 1998.

The truck was painted red and, "Mary Jane," the name the volunteers gave the truck was painted on its front. Painted on the sides of the truck is "Donated by drug dealers caught in Red Lake County."

The box of the pickup holds a drawer that carries emergency equipment, including the jaws of life, air bags, blankets, oxygen tanks, fire extinguishers and blocks. The Gazette

Race with stork ends in hospital parking lot

Mahnomen - Due on June 23, Catherine Rae Buaker made an early appearance on June 4 as her parents' race with the stork ended in the parking lot in front of the emergency entrance to the Mahnomen Health Center.

Although the infant's father is a paramedic and ambulance director for Mahnomen Health Center's ambulance service, Mike Bunker made every effort to get his wife, Cindy, to the hospital in time. The Mahnomen Pioneer

The price was right for Warroad woman

Warroad - After standing in line from 5:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Katrina Horner from Warroad finally entered the doors of the California CBS studio where the Price Is Right game show is taped. Then all 320 ticket holders were instructed by a producer to jump up and down with excitement as if they were just called to participate in the game.

Kate got a chance to do that for real when called to "come on down." After making her initial bid, she moved up to the stage where she won it all in the "Master Key" game. In addition to winning a cappucino/expresso maker, a karaoke machine, flatware, luggage and a brass and glass cabinet, the St. Cloud State University student won the grand prize, a red Ford pickup. Warroad Pioneer

Bagley - When Edmund Cease died on June 16, he was Minnesota's oldest active licensed mortician and had been honored in May by the Minnesota Funeral Director's Association.

Cease's career as funeral director began in Bagley in 1925 when he worked at the Neujahr Drug Store and Funeral Home. He also worked at H.C. Peterson Hardware and Funeral Home. In 1942, he combined the two businesses under the name of Cease Funeral Home.

Throughout his life, Cease was also very active in community and civic affairs in Bagley and Clearwater county. Farmers Independent

Ag Commissioner heads area farm crisis forum

Gene Hugoson, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture, will be a featured participant at the forum Weathering the Farm Crisis Together to be conducted Thursday, July 1, from 9 a.m. to noon at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

The forum is sponsored by the Area Ag Information Center in Thief River Falls and is open to everyone free of charge. Coffee and cookies will be provided.

Purpose of the forum is to update the area farm community and others interested in the area agricultural situation on activity which affects them and their operations.

Garnette Hanson of Newfolden, manager of the Area Ag Information Center, said that the sponsors want farmers to be especially aware that they share difficulties with many others and that efforts are being made to provide assistance where necessary to the greatest extent possible.

Joining Commissioner Hugoson on the speaking program and discussion panel will be Karen Fredrickson of Thief River Falls, District 1 director of the Farm Service Agency, who will provide an update on farm program information.

Also on the panel are Marshall county FSA executive director Judell Poolman of Warren and FSA farm loan manager Mark Bertram of Crookston, with information on current programs; CPAs Michelle Benton and Ray Safranski, reviewing tax liabilities; attorney Kevin Duffy with a review of legal options for farmers in crisis; and Mary Reierson and Jan Ball, farm advocates at the Area Ag Information Center, presenting information on services available at the center, financial counseling and mediation.

This Bible verse is the theme for the 100th anniversary celebration for United Lutheran church of Gatzke which will take place Saturday and Sunday, July 3 and 4, at the church. Holte finds life unpredictable

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Life is unpredictable. In October of last year, Northern Watch Editor Mary Laudin wrote a comprehensive story about the many awards and accomplishments of young Tina Holte and her horse, Black Lady of Royale, including two recent first place trophies at the state 4-H horse show.

The account took a sad twist when it was reported that, only a few days before the story was published, Royale had gone down in the pasture, breaking a bone in her lower right rear leg and ending her "days of glory" as a riding horse.

Royale's incident was just one of those unfortunate occurrences that couldn't have been avoided or predicted any more than the fact that her nineteen-year-old master would be diagnosed with cancer within weeks and before the animal's cast was off.

It was Tina's dad, Wayne, who first noticed a lump on his daughter's throat in July of last year. She was participating in the Miss Grygla pageant, and as he watched her competing in the evening gown portion of the program, he noted that it looked like she had an "Adam's apple."

The first doctor Tina saw wasn't concerned about the lump and suggested that she come back in several months.

When she began to have difficulty swallowing, Tina and her parents decided that she should seek a second opinion at Altru Clinic in Grand Forks. It was around the third week of October. Within two weeks, Tina had surgery. Early in November, doctors at Altru Hospital removed a baseball-size tumor and half of her thyroid gland. Pushing against her esophagus, the tumor had been responsible for the difficulty she had experienced when swallowing.

Tina bounced back from the surgery quickly, resumed her studies at the University of North Dakota, her jobs and her life as a young woman.

The oncology report came later in November, right before Thanksgiving. Tina was diagnosed with papillary carcinoma.

"It was a scary time," Tina says of the next few weeks. An appointment was made at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, and she spent part of her Christmas break undergoing tests and evaluations there. In mid-January, Mayo surgeons removed the rest of her thyroid gland and between 100 and 200 lymph nodes. Of the lymph nodes removed from her throat and neck, 50 percent turned out to be cancerous.

Following her diagnosis and while in Rochester, Tina and her parents learned about the disease, and Marlene Holte comments about how the doctors in Rochester took the time to explain things and answer all of the questions she had pertaining to her daughter's condition. Tina researched the subject and wrote a paper about it for school.

She discovered that of all diagnosed thyroid disorders, only two percent are cancerous, and 85 percent of those afflicted with cancer of the thyroid have papillary carcinoma. Others, usually older people, have follicle carcinoma.

Council waives noise ordinance

Crookston - Following the precedent they've set the past two summers, Crookston City Council waived the city's noise ordinance so that the contractor reconstructing East Robert Street can make relief cuts in the pavement.

Weather permitting, Public Works Director Pat Kelly said that crews hoped to being pouring contract by Thursday or Friday. He added that no matter what time of the day, even in the middle of the night, relief cuts need to be made in the concrete, and the saw is loud. Crookston Daily Times

Altru Health System cancer program approved

The Commissioner on Cancer of the American College of Surgeons has granted approval to the cancer program at Altru Health System.

Established by the American College of Surgeons in 1932, the Approvals program sets standards for cancer programs and reviews the programs to make sure they conform to those standards. Recognizing that cancer is a complex group of diseases, the program promotes consultation among surgeons, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, diagnostic radiologists, pathologists, and other cancer specialists. This multi-disciplinary cooperation results in improved patient care.

Receiving care at a Commission on Cancer approved program ensures that a patient will have access to: quality care close to home; comprehensive care offering a range of state-of-the-art services and equipment; a multi-specialty, team approach to coordinate the best treatment options available to cancer patients; information about cancer clinical trials, education and support; lifelong patient follow-up through a cancer registry that collects data on type and stage of cancers and treatment results; and ongoing monitoring and improvement of care.

Approval by the Commission on Cancer is given only to those facilities that have voluntarily committed to provide the best in diagnosis and treatment of cancer and to undergo a rigorous evaluation process and review of its performance. Facilities with approved cancer programs must undergo an on-site review every three years.

The Commission on Cancer is composed of Fellows of the American College of Surgeons and other members representing 36 national cancer-related organizations.

Cathy Erickson at Redeemer Church Sunday, June 27

Cathy Erickson Music Ministry will provide the special music for the 9:30 a.m. outdoor worship service at Redeemer Lutheran Church on Sunday, June 27.

Cathy and her band have performed at many worship services over the years. They have set many religious songs to old time tunes, resulting in the upbeat and fun-to-listen-to music that has inspired folks from around the area.

The service will be held in the church's "backyard," and members and guests are encouraged to bring a lawn chair, sit in the shade and enjoy the musical ministry.

Redeemer Lutheran Church is located at 1300 East Nora Street, across from Franklin Middle School.

HAPPY ARE THOSE WHO DON'T GO TO CHURCH!!!
Can we have a minute of your time?
I understand how you feel and agree with you.
WHY...should anyone go to church to hear a boring speaker talk about something that means nothing to your life? That's a waste of time.
WHY...should anyone go to a church that sets itself up as a courthouse to judge you and condemn you instead of helping you? The last thing you need is heavy rules and regulations that not even a minister can keep.
Looking for understanding and God's help, you go to church...but what do you get? Only more guilt and pressure to add to your overloaded condition.
If you've felt this way—YOU ARE THE PERSON I CARE ABOUT!!
It's time for churches to meet people's needs the way Jesus did:
...a fellowship that really cares about your hurts, not your money, and offers love, acceptance, and help when you need it most.
...a fellowship where every Sunday you receive a spiritual and inspirational boost that gives you confidence for the week ahead.
...a fellowship that gives practical answers to your problems, eliminating the fear, frustration and worry that can defeat you.
God wants you to know Him through a loving personal relationship, not through a religion of fear and judgement. Life was meant to be enjoyed; not just endured.
Why am I sharing this with you?
BECAUSE YOU ARE IMPORTANT!

With the warm summer weather and the busy weekend coming up, who wants to spend all their time in the kitchen. Today we'll have recipes for some simple bars that you can mix up in minutes so there will be some good snacks on hand.

Here are delicious spritz, but made in bar form:

SPRITZ STICKS

1 cup butter
3/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 1/4 cups flour

Cream butter, sugar, egg, vanilla and salt. Blend in flour.

Divide dough in half and spread each half with floured fingers or a spatula to a 12x10 inch rectangle on an ungreased cookie sheet.

Run floured fork tines over top to make spritz marks. Sprinkle with colored (or white) sugars, if desired.

Bake at 350 degrees for 15-20 minutes, or until lightly browned. Immediately cut into 3x1 inch sticks and remove from cookie sheet.

Moist raisin spice cookies – made in bars:

OLD FASHIONED OATMEAL BARS

1 cup raisins (chopped or whole)
3/4 cup water
1 cup quick cooking oats
1 cup flour
1/3 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 teaspoon soda
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/2 cup chopped nuts, if desired

Combine raisins with water and simmer for 10 minutes.

Combine oats and raisin mixture.

Add remaining ingredients and blend, then beat at medium speed of mixer for 1 minute.

Spread evenly in greased 9x13 inch pan.

Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes, until top springs back when touched lightly in center.

Brown sugar bars topped with chocolate and marshmallows – just the thing for the chocolate lovers:

S'MORE BARS

1 cup flour
1 cup oats
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon soda
2 tablespoons milk or cream
1/2 cup chocolate chips
2 cups miniature marshmallows
1/2 cup chocolate chips
1 tablespoon shortening

Blend flour, oats, butter, brown sugar, salt, soda and milk until crumbly. Press into bottom of greased 9x13 inch pan and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

Sprinkle bars with chocolate chips and then marshmallows and bake 10 minutes more.

Meanwhile, melt 1/2 cup chocolate chips with 1 tablespoon shortening. After baking, drizzle this mixture over the marshmallow layer.

Oh, my, here are some very rich and very tasty bars you will like:

CARAMEL MACAROON BARS

1/4 cup butter
3/4 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1 egg
2 cups flaked coconut
1 1/3 cups (14 ounce can) sweetened condensed milk

Combine butter, brown sugar, flour and baking powder. Add egg and blend well. Spread in greased 9x9, 10x8 or 11x7 inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

Combine coconut and milk. Spoon over caramel base and spread to cover. Bake 25-30 minutes more or until light golden brown. Cool and frost with caramel frosting (below). Cut small because these are rich like candy.

Caramel Frosting:
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons milk
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 cup powdered sugar

Melt butter and milk with brown sugar. Add powdered sugar to frosting consistency.

And now you can make a whole panful of candy bars for special snacking – here's the recipe:

PEANUT BUTTER CANDY BARS

3/4 cup butter
2 cups quick cooking oats
1 1/4 cups flour
1 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/3 cup dark corn syrup
1/2 cup peanut butter
1/2 to 1 cup chocolate chips

Melt butter in saucepan. Add remaining ingredients except peanut butter and chocolate chips. Press into bottom of greased 9x13 inch pan.

Bake at 375 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until light golden brown – DO NOT OVERBAKE.

Spoon peanut butter over hot bars and sprinkle with chocolate chips. When soft, spread to frost.

(If you want a layer of peanut butter and a layer of chocolate glaze on top instead of a mixture of peanut butter and chocolate, spread peanut butter over hot bars, then melt chocolate chips with 2 tablespoons of shortening and drizzle over peanut butter layer.)

Children Victims Of Most Fireworks Injuries

Kids deserve the care and protection of adults, and one way to care and protect is to keep youngsters away from places where fireworks are being used as playthings. In Minnesota, it's not only the right thing to do, it's the legal thing to do.

There is a certain amount of fascination with explosive devices for kids of all ages and folks of any age can be injured by fireworks regardless of how careful they may think they are. But young people who don't realize how dangerous even "harmless" items such as sparklers can be are the most likely to sustain or cause an injury—and frequently it is the bystander rather than the user who gets hurt.

That's why we say parents or other adults should keep children away from places where fireworks are being used. In haste to toss a lighted firecracker, a user often does not control its direction and the explosion may cause injury to someone nearby.

Bottle rockets, which many consider to be relatively safe, may be the most dangerous type of fireworks of all. Not only will cans or bottles used to launch them explode, showering fragments of metal or glass, but the rockets fly erratically and can easily harm bystanders.

Minnesota Sight and Hearing Association cites some statistics that we hope people will take to heart this Fourth of July season:

• Of the approximately 7,000 fireworks-related injuries each year in the United States, approximately 2,000 are eye injuries caused by consumer fireworks. About one-third of these injuries result in permanent eye damage and one-fourth in permanent vision loss or blindness. Nearly one in 20 victims lose all useful vision or require removal of the eye.

• 40 percent of all eye injuries caused by consumer fireworks are inflicted on bystanders;

• Three-fourths of all fireworks-related eye injuries are to boys between the ages of 13 and 15;

• Sparklers, often given to young children, burn at 1,800 degrees Fahrenheit—a temperature hot enough to melt gold!

"One of the reasons fireworks injuries continue to occur," according to an ophthalmologist who has treated victims with such injuries, "is because people don't know how dangerous these devices can be....The risk of losing an eye is not worth the excitement of watching fireworks explode."

While all fireworks remain illegal to sell in Minnesota, many people will likely make purchases in other states where they are still legally sold. And while it is also illegal to discharge fireworks in this state, many also will do that as well.

We recall days of our own misspent youth when the challenge of launching a Peacock Dried Beef can over the barn with a Gorilla brand firecracker was too great to resist. Our introduction to rocketry was probably just as illegal back half a century ago as it is now, but we never thought about it, although the fact that we had to buy our explosives across the border in North Dakota should have given us a clue.

Even then, despite our own use of firecrackers in the isolation of the farm yard, we were nervous around other kids who seemed more careless than we were. Perhaps because we wanted to get all the bang for our buck that we could, we never lit and tossed firecrackers haphazardly as other kids did. Not only were we interested in keeping all our fingers, when we put punk to a fuse we wanted to achieve more than just noise. We wanted something to move!

The lure of creating that perfect trajectory to clear the barn still exists, but we have managed to resist it for a few decades now. We recognize the danger and that the thrill isn't worth the potential harm. And we get nervous when we hear seasonal popping in the vicinity wherever we happen to be.

Eye doctors say most eye injuries could be prevented by wearing protective eyeglasses or goggles when setting fireworks. However, the safest way to view fireworks is through professionally conducted, community-sponsored displays. There will be a good one Sunday night in Thief River Falls. Why not call that one good enough and leave the private stuff alone?

Taking A Look At Political Term Limits

There is little doubt that a fed-up American public is sympathetic to establishment of term limits for its elected public officials. A Washington-based group called U.S. Term Limits claims that three out of four voters favor term limits and three out of four state legislators oppose them.

More than office holders, however, the group most opposed to term limits is that comprised of lobbyists. It is to the advantage of lobbyists to establish long-term familiarity with office holders that provides them with access and a chance to sell their position. And it's a lot easier and more productive to court the influential instead of convince the majority of a large group.

"Term limits equalize power within the legislature," states Paul Jacob, national director of U.S. Term Limits, "and thus lobbyists cannot ramrod legislation through on the basis of their relationships with one powerful member. Instead, they have to make their case on the merits and they must talk with all the representatives.

"This equality within the legislature is important," Jacob continues. "As citizens we deserve equal representation, but without term limits most of our representatives have little power in the legislature. Power stays concentrated in the hands of a few legislative leaders which facilitates the kind of backroom wheeling and dealing that costs the taxpayers dearly."

The rationale makes sense and it should be easy to say "amen" to that analysis. In rural Minnesota, however, we perhaps should not be too quick to leap aboard the term limits bandwagon.

Here in the "outstate" where we are badly outnumbered by the populous metro area, we have to scramble for any little advantage we can find. Stripped of any geographical equity in the legislature, we are at the mercy of the "equal representation" afforded by population politics. In other words, our sparse population allows us fewer elected representatives than other areas of the state.

All things being equal, under term limits we would be less than equal. We would have no chance to establish a power base. That accrues only through the present seniority system and its rewards for years of holding office. As distasteful as that might be to many of us, it's a pill we may have to swallow if we hope to get a second look in St. Paul.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

This Fourth of July holiday—a time for mid-summer celebration—is a great time to get together with family and friends and celebrate America's birthday.

But when it comes to drinking, Independence Day does not mean independence from responsibility. Beer is a fine product with a proud history. It is indeed fitting that it will be present at many of your celebrations and get-togethers again this Fourth of July, as well as throughout the rest of the summer.

Although responsibility is something that needs to be practiced year around, it bears special repeating at a time of year when local highways, lakes and rivers will be especially busy. If you choose to drink this holiday, please do so responsibly. Know your limits, make sure a sober driver is always behind the wheel, and insist that family and friends do the same.

We all want this holiday weekend to be a fun and safe one, and part of good times means remembering to "know when to say when."

Sincerely,
Shawn Newland

Take-A-Kid-Fishing
Make It A Habit, Not An Event

Scatter 120 kids among 35 watercraft, hand each of them a fishing pole and a bag of chips, throw in an interested adult or two and hand out some prizes. It's an easy recipe for success.

The challenge to last week's second annual Lake of the Woods Take-A-Kid-Fishing Day was more a question of magnitude than it was of concept. With nearly double the participants of the 1998 version, placing which kids in which boats with which guides and which first mates became more of an issue than worries about whether fish would be caught or rain would fall.

Success was as close to a given as was the existence of water, air and hot dogs. Which brings us to the meat of the matter here. If it really is that easy to make a kid's day a good one, then the "bigger picture" demands that such an event occur on a far more regular and much less elaborate basis.

Not the name: Take-A-Kid-Fishing. It doesn't say Take-Your-Kid Fishing. It doesn't suggest you Take-A-Relative's-Kid-Fishing. It merely prompts you to Take-A-Kid-Fishing. Any kid—boy or girl. The neighbor's kid. The kid who delivers the newspaper. The foul-mouthed little kid down the block who throws rocks at your mailbox. Any kid. You can't lose. Consider the pared-down basics of the recent effort.

Take-A-Kid-Fishing. Each of the 120 children involved was given a simple promise of five hours in a boat with another kid or two and a couple of reasonably attentive adults. The edges were glitzed up a tad with a T-shirt, something to eat and the potential for fish on the far end of the line.

Apparently the actual catching of fish was far less important than the possibility of catching as evidenced by the numbers from last year's event. In 1998, 72 kids went out in 25 boats. Nearly half of those boats returned with less than four fish, many with 0. Yet, despite the marginal productivity, those 72 kids went back to school or the playground or wherever and talked positively enough about their experience to boost this year's attendance by a whopping 70 percent! It certainly makes it clear what's consequential here.

Take-A-Kid-Fishing. Each of these 120 kids, 10 to 15 years old, was asked on his or her registration form for a level of fishing experience. The number of "never have been" or "a couple of times" responses was almost alarming. These are country kids in their early teens, living in close proximity to a legendary body of water. One would have expected more experience.

When you consider the rapid growth rate of America's urban centers and the disheartening shrinkage of the rural lifestyle, the Take-A-Kid-Fishing bell rings even louder. The harsh '90s call for double income households has left many kids with limited outdoor chances. Divorce rates of 50 percent and higher in some locales demand even more attention for kids who may not be your own, as the single parent struggle often leaves less opportunity for such an outing. In short, kids enjoy fishing and don't do it that often. Take-A-Kid-Fishing.

And when you're done finding good, guilt-ridden reasons to Take-A-Kid-Fishing, do it for a selfish reason. It's fun to see the fishing world through a fresh set of eyes. You'll have a new audience for your old jokes and tired fishing tales. You might get someone in the boat who actually admits to knowing less about fishing than you do.

And after you've taken this kid fishing and you've fulfilled your social obligation and made the world just a little better, maybe next month you could take that kid hiking or canoeing. And in September you could Take-A-Kid-Grouse Hunting. And in November, after you Take-A-Kid-Deer Hunting, you could Take-A-Kid-Out-For-Breakfast or Take-A-Kid-To-Church. And maybe, if we all did this Take-A-Kid thing enough, next year, when the Take-A-Kid-Fishing event rolls around again, it won't seem like such a big deal.

Fall sports schedules announced for NCTC

Fall sports schedules have been announced for 1999 at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Men's and women's golf will return as an intercollegiate sport at the school this year, joining the established football and volleyball programs.

"The addition of golf should be a real boost to area athletes who have an interest in competing at the college level," said Northland Athletic Director Rick Nelson.

Rick Nikunen will serve as the Pioneers' golf coach. It's an expansion of his Northland coaching duties that also include men's basketball and softball.

Returning for their second year as Northland head coaches this fall will be Dan Willoughby (football) and Mike Zachow (volleyball).

"We believe we have three quality head coaches," Nelson said. "These coaches will work hard to make sure our athletes are ready to perform and meet expectations in the classroom as well."

John Ott, Kurt Reynolds, Eric Melcher, Sean Huset, and Terry Wiseth will also be back this fall as Northland assistant football coaches.

Fertile-Beltrami football player signs with NCTC

Matt Horgeshimer, a graduate of Fertile-Beltrami High School, has signed a letter of intent to attend Northland Community and Technical College and play football for the Pioneers.

Horgeshimer played fullback, tight end and linebacker for the Falcons. He was named all-conference and all-section, earned Sectional Defensive Player of the Year honors, and was picked for the Fargo Forum Fab 44 listing.

"We are excited to sign a linebacker the caliber of Matt," said Northland coach Dan Willoughby. "He will be a dominant force on the Pioneer defense the next two years."

Detroit Lakes beats TRF Post 117 team in five innings, 12-2

Thief River Falls watched Detroit Lakes and the weather reduce 14 innings of baseball to just five Tuesday in an American Legion match-up at Memorial Park.

Game 1 ended in the fifth inning on the 10-run rule, 12-2. Rain then erased the second half of the scheduled Ninth District doubleheader.

Mike Wienen-coached Post 117 started the night with a 2-0 lead on RBI singles by Jarod Reierson and Steve Wiseth in the first two innings. But that was the extent of the Thief River Falls offense. Reierson, who was 2-for-3, and Wiseth had three of the visitors' four base hits.

Detroit Lakes took over with a five-run third inning, and put the game away by scoring seven times in the fourth.

The defeat, coming on the heels of 8-6 and 8-7 (nine innings) doubleheader losses at East Grand Forks the night before, dropping Thief River Falls to 3-6.

"We ran out of arms," reported Wienen. "We used four pitchers against East Grand Forks, and two more against Detroit Lakes. It's tough right now, but hopefully it will help us later."

The tough-luck losses to East Grand Forks, combined with the blowout at the hands of Detroit Lakes, have taken a toll on his team, according to Wienen. "Our confidence is down," he said. "We need a couple of wins."

Post 117 was scheduled to open the three-day East Grand Forks Invitational Friday with games against Red Lake Falls at 10 a.m. and Midway-Minto at 3 p.m. The match-ups in the round-robin format today (Saturday) had Thief River Falls playing Munich at 3 p.m. and Roseau at 7 p.m. Finals are scheduled Sunday.

Thief River Falls and Roseau square off again Tuesday, with Post 117 then facing Detroit Lakes in a Thursday rematch. Both of those outings are 5 p.m. doubleheaders at Irv Wilson Field.

Con-Con land meetings in northwest Minnesota produce lively debates

For nearly 70 years, most conversations about the use and management of Consolidated Conservation (Con-Con) lands have been guaranteed to be lively and diverse. Recent discussions about the future use of the remaining Con-Con lands in five northwest counties have not varied from that trend.

Con-Con lands are state-owned lands that Minnesota received in exchange for paying off ditch bonds issued by seven Minnesota counties in the early 1900s. According to state law, these lands are to be used for "conservation purposes" and are to be designated into management units. Over the years, nearly three-quarters of these lands have been designated as management units or sold.

Catalyst for the most recent Con-Con discussions was a DNR Commissioner's Order issued on Jan. 3, 1999. The order, written and signed by then-commissioner Rod Sando, designated about 187,000 acres as state wildlife management areas in Beltrami, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Marshall and Roseau counties.

However, within the order, Sando indicated that final designations would need to be made to move each of the parcels into the most appropriate designation unit. The order was then delayed for a period of six months to allow time for public input and comment. The order has since been rescinded by the Minnesota State Legislature.

"We have met with each of the county boards, held a series of open houses, and provided time and opportunity for individuals and organizations to give us input," said Wayne Edgerton, DNR Agricultural Policy director, who is heading up the Con-Con project.

According to Edgerton, the DNR has received 115 written comments, one petition with 216 signatures, and verbal comments at the open houses.

"As we expected, the comments have been diverse and wide ranging," said Edgerton. "We really appreciate all those who have taken the time to provide us with their perspectives."

The DNR is currently reviewing and formulating recommendations, based on the input, for designations of these lands. It is anticipated that proposed designations will be made by DNR Commissioner Allen Garber by late July.

For more information about this project, contact the DNR Information Center at 1-888-MIN-NDNR.

Antlerless deer permit quotas to increase for most of state this fall

Minnesota deer hunters will be offered a total of 177,380 antlerless deer permits this fall, a 26 percent increase from last year and the highest number offered since 1995.

The permits, which allow hunters the opportunity to harvest either an adult buck or an antlerless deer (doe or fawn), are the primary method that wildlife managers use to control deer numbers. The higher permit quotas for 1999 reflect the continued recovery of deer herds that were decimated by consecutive severe winters in 1995-96 and 1996-97.

Permit number increases were most evident in the northern part of Minnesota. In Zone 1, which comprises the northeastern forested part of the state, quotas increased from 6,280 in 1998 to 23,415 (273 percent) in 1999. In addition, permit numbers increased 35 percent in northern parts of Zone 2, which consists of east-central and north-central portions of the state.

In both zones, the number of permit areas restricted to bucks-only hunting regulations, which were implemented to protect does and fawns and aid in deer herd recovery, are much-reduced from the past three years. In Zone 1, bucks-only permit areas will be limited to the Leech Lake Indian Reservation and areas along Lake Superior. In Zone 2, only the Roseau River Wildlife Management Area, the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, and the Northwest Angle will have the bucks-only restrictions. In addition, permit area 211 north of Red Lake will be restricted to a limited number of antlerless permits available only to youth under age 16 during the firearms season; all other hunters in this permit area will be restricted to bucks only.

In agricultural areas of Minnesota, permit quotas also generally increased, except for some areas in the southwest and south-central parts of the state where deer populations are depressed due to high antlerless harvest levels in recent years. Quotas in Zone 4, which includes the extreme western and southwestern parts of the state, increased 7 percent.

For the first time, bucks-only restrictions have been put in place for hunters in parts of Zone 4 in extreme southwestern Minnesota near Marshall. Recent restrictions in antlerless permit quotas in this area have failed to reduce antlerless deer harvest, in large part due to unregulated harvest of antlerless deer by youth hunters under age 16 and by hunters with disabilities who are allowed to take antlerless deer without an antlerless permit. DNR wildlife managers believe that a bucks-only restriction for all hunters (including youth and disabled hunters, archers and muzzleloaders) is the only way to ensure that adequate numbers of antlerless deer could be protected to ensure deer herd recovery in the area.

Hunting and trapping regulations and deer licenses will be available in early August. The application deadline for permits will be Sept. 9.

Minnesota DNR survey...

Breeding duck population figures similar to last year

Breeding duck populations were similar to last year in Minnesota, according to results from the May waterfowl breeding ground survey. The survey is conducted annually by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"Total May duck populations and blue-winged teal were unchanged, while mallards declined 14 percent," said Jeff Lawrence, DNR waterfowl specialist. Mallards and blue-winged teal each constitute about one-third of the breeding ducks in the 40 percent of the state that is surveyed each year.

"The mallard breeding population in Minnesota this spring was estimated at approximately 316,000," Lawrence said. Mallards have been above 300,000 since 1992, and remain 56 percent above average since the current waterfowl survey began in 1968.

"While mallards declined somewhat from last year, they remained at good population levels. Blue-winged teal numbers were similar to 1998, but are 28 percent below the long-term average. Continentally, blue-winged teal have been at or near record population levels the past few years. However, they do not have as strong a tendency as mallards to return to the same area to nest. Numbers have increased farther to the west while being depressed in Minnesota," explained Lawrence.

Canada geese observed on the Minnesota survey were unchanged compared with 1998, and are 194 percent above the long-term average.

Wetland conditions were fair to good at the beginning of the survey in early May. High rainfall amounts throughout much of Minnesota in May increased water levels in much of the state and filled many temporary basins. May pond numbers in Minnesota increased 24 percent compared with 1998 and were 22 percent above the long-term average.

"Some duck nests were probably flooded with the increasing water levels, but the good wetland conditions should result in a strong renesting effort," Lawrence said. "Ducks will often try to nest again if their nest is destroyed."

To conduct the survey, a DNR conservation officer pilot and DNR biologist count ducks, geese and wetlands from a low-flying, single-engine airplane along the same routes each year. A U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service ground crew obtains a count of waterfowl along a portion of the routes to correct for birds missed by the air crew.

The number of breeding waterfowl in Minnesota is estimated each year as part of an annual inventory of North American breeding waterfowl. "Data on breeding duck populations from Canada and other states is not yet available, but preliminary reports suggest good duck numbers and good water conditions in many areas," Lawrence said.

The status of North American waterfowl populations will be considered by the Mississippi Flyway Council, an organization of waterfowl biologists and administrators representing 14 states and three Canadian provinces, at its July meeting. This group will develop recommendations on waterfowl hunting regulations to be presented to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in early August in Washington, D.C.

Financial Assistance Available

Second edition of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources' Financial Assistance Directory is now available. The DNR offers almost 50 financial assistance programs that are open to individuals, conservation groups, private landowners and local units of government. Assistance programs include things such as cost-sharing for private landowners to improve their forests or wildlife habitat, or matching grants to assist organizations in acquiring and protecting sensitive or unique natural areas.

To receive a directory by mail contact the DNR Information Center by calling toll free at 1-888-MINNDNR.

Sick dairy heifer calves can become poor milking cows

by George D. Marx
U of M Dairy Scientist
Northwest Experiment Station
Crookston

Some cows produce less milk because of unfortunate circumstances during the early part of their lives. Several calfhood diseases can restrict proper organ development or compromise proper recovery of organs to full potential. Lungs and heart tissue are the most affected with disease in calves.

For example, serious pneumonia or respiratory problems in a dairy calf may hamper the development of her lungs or cause a deterioration of lung tissue which will affect her for the rest of her life. Maximum milk production requires good, fully useful lung tissue, to support enough oxygen to transfer across tissues to maximize the synthesis and production of nutrients that make milk. Oxygen is the main element that supports life itself. Healthy animals, as well as people, need a good set of working lungs for best performance.

The other factor is that it will cost the same to raise a good heifer versus one that was set back as a calf. Costs are about $1.50 per day after weaning through to calving or about $1,100 plus the cost of the baby calf if they calve at 24 months of age. Longer feeding periods to calving due to poor growth, poor reproductive performance or delaying breeding adds cost to raising a herd replacement.

A goal to calve every heifer by 24 months is imperative to reduce costs and will not affect milk production as a cow. The calf with a problem does have a higher mortality rate and additional medication costs as well as a production loss when reaching milking age.

One of the ways to keep calves healthy is to be sure colostrum is fed from the dam the first three days of life. Do not feed pooled colostrum. Then look around to reduce any possible sources of infection. These could include the dam, maternity pen or calving area, other animals (particularly non-immune shedders), feeding utensils, preparation areas, dirty calf pens or calf hutches, rodents, birds or bad feed.

Reducing the dose of infectious agents through reduced time of exposure along with using individual pens or hutches, sanitizing utensils and disinfection of all housing areas will reduce infection possibilities.

Improving the calf's environment is an important management factor in preventing calf disease. Keep the feces from cows away from the calf, otherwise its first mouthful may be a bacteria-laden lick of manure which could also include Johnes disease organisms. House baby dairy calves away from the adult herd and remove them from the calving area as soon as possible.

Don't crowd calves and cause competition, especially between larger and smaller calves. It's always best to use individual pens or hutches while calves are on milk and thereafter for a period of time if possible. If calves are in group pens, be sure they are all the same size, otherwise the smaller calves are at a great disadvantage and may be nutritionally deprived by the larger calves.

If calves are raised in a warm barn, check the humidity control, fresh air intakes, proper ventilation and eliminate all drafty areas. Cold barns or drafts will stress calves and they may become weak, lethargic and depressed and thereby more susceptible to disease.

Also be sure to observe calves several times daily and if there is any sign of sickness or unusual symptoms such as coughing, scours, abnormal ears or eyes, cold or shaking, be sure to take a temperature reading and treat immediately as necessary.

Calves with diarrhea should get extra liquid via high-caloric oral electrolyte solution. Call a veterinarian for any unusual conditions or outbreaks of disease among a group of calves. He or she is usually a good resource to get to the bottom of the health problems.

Good nutrition management and health care are essential in producing healthy herd replacements that are ready to calve by 24 months of age and ready to produce milk at high levels unrestricted by prior health complications.

Wheat disease forecasting system underway

Hotline, website help growers make timely treatment decisions

Minnesota wheat checkoff dollars have helped develop a wheat disease forecasting system, to help wheat producers in the Northern Plains make timely treatment decisions.

The forecasting information can be found on the Internet at the web site: www.ag.ndsu.nodak.edu/cropdisease. The information is also summarized in recorded updates that wheat producers can access toll-free by phone at 1-888-248-7357.

North Dakota State University plant pathologist Leonard Francl is project manager of the wheat disease forecasting system, which measures fungal spores, wheat growth development, and weather conditions to pinpoint in near-real time the potential for scab, tan spot, and Septoria blotch disease infections in wheat.

The system uses weather data obtained from the North Dakota Agricultural Weather Network (NDAWN). Fungal spore samplers are located near 17 NDAWN weather stations across the Red River Valley and the northern tier of North Dakota. The sampling devices collect pathogen spores from the air and rain. Spore counts and growing degree days are added to weather information, and the data are then analyzed by three computer models to determine whether an infection period has occurred for each of the three diseases.

Francl says the computer models classify whether or not a given 24-hour period was favorable for infection. "Infection happens when an infectious pathogen contacts a susceptible plant in a suitable environment. Multiply this event millions of times and you have the beginnings of a plant disease epidemic in a field," says Francl.

To find out if the previous day contained an infection period, the models use hourly weather data sent from NDAWN to NDSU every morning, and summarized from noon to noon. Noon, rather than midnight, was chosen as a cut-off so that the dew period, critical for disease development, is considered in its entirety, says Francl.

The web site, and the toll-free number, give daily weather summaries, including humidity, temperature, and moisture. The presence of disease spore counts are given in three alert levels, using the three traffic-light colors of green, yellow, and red: Green means no spores detected in a particular area; yellow, a few spores have been found; and red, a large amount of spores were detected.

For scab to develop, Francl says the spores that cause the disease must germinate and infect wheat at flowering, in order for the pathogen to damage the crop. High humidity, rain and dew affect infection the most, while cool temperatures tend to limit fungal growth. These conditions are reported in the system to help producers decide whether infection is likely in their particular area, says Francl.

Along with the forecasts, the web site includes information on disease symptoms, and the window for timely treatments, as well as factors to help weigh whether treatment is necessary.

The Minnesota Wheat Research and Promotion Council ranked the monitoring of spores that cause scab as its highest research funding priority for 1999. The MWRPC is helping to fund the wheat disease forecasting system through the Minnesota wheat checkoff. North Dakota ag research and federal research funding, as well as private-source funding from the Otto Bremer Foundation and the Dakota Growers' Pasta Co., are also supporting the wheat disease forecasting system.

Reduce ration costs by using byproduct feeds

by George D. Marx
U of M Dairy Scientist
Northwest Experiment Station
Crookston

Dairymen and other livestock producers may want to take a look at some bargain prices for several different byproduct commodity feeds. These feeds can be utilized in rations an substitute for conventional feed grains. Even at lower grain prices, many byproduct feeds continue to be good buys on the market.

Byproducts such as corn gluten feed, wheat middlings, distillers grains, porcine meat and bone meal, malt sprouts, beet pulp and linseed meal are mostly at all-time lows for value provided in terms of nutrients.

Byproducts that have high protein contents and are low in cost per pound of protein include linseed meal, corn gluten feed and distillers grains. Barley distillers grains are higher in protein than the conventional 18 percent corn distillers grains. Corn gluten meal is a 60 percent protein, whereas corn gluten feed averages 25 percent protein.

Producers should utilize a nutritionist or a livestock specialist to balance their rations to meet the needs of their particular class of livestock, whether it be high-producing dairy cows, late-lactation cows, transition cows or growing replacement stock.

However, some producers with specific nutrition software for their computers are capable of calculating their own rations. The Minnesota Dairy Ration Balancer is an example of software available through the University of Minnesota.

Guessing at ration requirements to meet animal needs is too expensive. Overfeeding nutrients such as protein, minerals and energy (carbohydrates) is a waste of dollars, as is underfeeding needed nutrients. This can and will cause reduced production or cow problems resulting in lost income.

Byproduct feeds can be quite variable in their nutrient content and and it is highly recommended to have these tested or request a verified test result from the manufacturer or seller. do not rely on book values or assume a normal value as the ingredients in byproducts are known to change from one batch to another.

In summary, good buys are available for many byproduct feeds, but keep delivery costs in check. Sometimes haying in semi-loads can be cheaper, but may be too much feed for any individual producer. The alternative is to get several farmers to go together and divide a load or buy from a local feed dealer or elevator.

Follow label directions to avoid herbicide carryover

Crop producers who follow herbicide label directions shouldn't have to worry too much about crop injury in the year 2000 from a herbicide applied this year.

"That's assuming they have complied with label rate and rotation restrictions," says Bruce Potter, integrated pest management specialist with the University of Minnesota extension service.

"Injury from herbicide carryover results from the residual nature of some herbicides and their toxicity to some crops," Potter says. "Some crops, such as sugar beets, are very sensitive to carryover of some herbicides."

Potter says when herbicide carryover injures corn, the cause can usually be traced to one of two factors. The most likely factor is that excessive rates were applied, either on purpose or accidentally. The other possible factor is an unusual combination of weather and soil conditions (pH, texture, organic matter). Since soil conditions can vary within a field, the potential for herbicide injury can vary within a field.

The amount of information available on herbicide carryover is limited, he said.

"Occasional losses are hard to find in a trial," he points out. "In other words, the chance of finding the set of complex environmental conditions in a trial that will cause herbicide carryover injury is small. To find injury consistently, scientists would have to do things that are off-label with regard to such factors as rate and re-cropping interval."

Lack of information on carryover injury is even more likely with products that are relatively new and don't have a long history of use in a number of environments, Potter concludes.

Hulless oats are useful in calf grain starter rations

by George D. Marx
U of M Dairy Scientist
Northwest Experiment Station
Crookston

A number of producers are growing hulless oats as an alternative crop and it has several advantages over a conventional oat with a hull. Protein content is higher (17 to 19 percent), it is lower in fiber by less than half and is higher in fat by 30 percent over conventional hulled oats.

Density also is higher with 46 to 50 pounds per bushel. The disadvantages are slightly lower yields and higher costs of seed. Very few varieties of hulless oats are available at this time. The Paul hulless cultivar was used in a recent trial.

The trial involved 20 Holstein calves during the four-week preweaning period and 16 calves in the post weaning period of eight weeks. Half of the grain in the calf starter was either a conventional oat (Milton variety) or the hulless Paul oat. The starter was formulated to National Research Council (NRC) requirements for baby calves and contained 18 percent crude protein. Calves were all injected with Vitamin A, D and E at birth.

Theoretically, hulless oats should be of benefit to young calves that function more like a monogastric (single stomach) animal since the rumen is virtually undeveloped for digestion as a ruminant. Less fiber in the hulless oats should make the starter easier to digest for the young calves. The density of the hulless oats should also be of benefit since more can be consumed, considering the limited space in the stomach.

The results showed that calf growth and body weight gains were excellent for calves on both types of oats and performance was not significantly different but indicated a slight numerical advantage for calves fed hulless oats. Both grain starters were palatable and acceptable for calves based on adequate intake. No unusual health problems were observed in any of the calves.

In summary, hulless oats is an acceptable and useful ingredient in calf grain starter rations, performance was considered excellent based on growth rate and body weight gains. Nutrient analysis of the hulless oat shows an advantage of higher protein, higher fat, lower fiber and higher density than the conventional hulled oats.

EPA officials visit Valley to learn more about farming

How do farmers diagnose and treat specific weed problems? What role do pesticides have in controlling grain dockage? Environmental Protection Agency officials in Washington, D.C. have a better understanding of these issues and others relating to production agriculture, after participating in an environmental tour of the northern Red River Valley.

Four officials with the EPA's Office of Pesticide Products participated: Donald Stubbs, herbicide branch chief and member of the NAFTA subcommittee for Food Residues; Jim Saulmon, involved with the Re-registration Eligibility Decision; Kevin Costello, an EPA geologist; and Mark Hartman, chemical review manager in the EPA's pesticide reregistration program.

Stubbs said he and other colleagues from the EPA have a better realization that farmers here are "on the edge," operating on a thin profit margin, and that environmental laws can affect that margin. Stubbs said he is also more aware of the trade significance of different pesticide laws in the United States and Canada.

"The fact that Canada has pesticides registered that the U.S. farmers do not, and therefore can produce canola and cereal grains cheaper...that's one issue I'll take back and try to rectify. A second issue I'll take back...is the pricing difference, within the U.S. and between Canada and the U.S." said Stubbs.

In Grand Forks, the group toured AGSCO's state-of-the-art chemical handling facility, and toured the N.D. Mill, where they also discussed the use of crop protectants and grain fumigants to maintain grain quality. The group toured Northwood AeroSpray Co. near Northwood, and discussed pesticide and production issues at Michigan, where North Dakota State University Extension specialists briefed the EPA participants on best management practices farmers use in applying crop protection products.

At the Greg Daws farm near Michigan, the group learned more about spray calibration techniques, how farmers control pesticide drift, and saw a demonstration on the use of tramlines, which help guide spraying applications in the field. The group toured Monsanto crop research trials, and learned more about the need for crop protectant products on minor use crops, such as canola, peas, and lentils.

The EPA officials also stayed overnight with host farm families. "This is one of the most important aspects of the tour. They are able to see firsthand how farm families live. And when they return to Washington, D.C., they have more of a personal connection with how our nation's environmental laws affect family farms," says Paul Thomas, spokesman for the North Dakota Grain Growers Association, which organized the tour. The Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers was also a sponsor.

According to Tina, her youthfulness is a big plus with regard to her prognosis. "I was told that had I been 40, my chances would have been iffy," she says and goes on to use the word "curtains" to describe the prognosis had she been 70 years old.

The hormone produced by the thyroid gland affects growth and metabolism, and until she was able to take a hormone replacement, she and her mother agree that she was quite cantankerous and fatigued.

Although recovery after the second surgery took a bit longer, Tina went back to school at the University of North Dakota and completed her junior year.

Prior to her diagnosis, she had participated in the work study program at UND as well as working two jobs, one as a waitress and the other in the communications department at Altru Clinic. She gave up the waitress job, but continued in the work study program through the end of the school year.

She also continues to work as a switchboard operator at the clinic and while her status is part-time, she picks up extra hours whenever she can.

Tina went back to the Mayo Clinic for a checkup during spring break in April and is scheduled to return again in September.

She says she feels good, except for the occasions when she forgets to take her medication. "I get really crabby," she says. "Actually, it can be kind of fun," and with a twinkle in her eye explains that she can more easily vent frustration and get by with saying whatever happens to be on her mind.

A two and one-half inch scar at the base of her neck serves as a reminder of her ordeal, and while it isn't very noticeable, she has experienced bold questions about it from total strangers. In such cases, she sometimes can't resist a little mischievousness when offering an explanation.

This past weekend she competed in a state 4-H achievement and leadership competition in the Twin Cities. The competition involved four interviews and was good practice for the upcoming Miss Marshall County pageant.

Tina will represent Grygla in the pageant in Warren on Sunday, June 27. Taking some time off from her job, she spent the week at home in rural Grygla preparing for the pageant and practicing her saxophone solo while wishing the talent portion of the pageant allowed her to display what she feels is her real talent. Horses, however, don't fit on auditorium stages.

Next month, she will have the opportunity to show off her horsemanship at the Roseau County Fair when she shows Royale. Despite the dismal forecast of a few months ago, the horse's leg has healed nicely, and the Holtes are hopeful that by next year Royale will be ready to work for them again.

Tina is a strong believer in the power of prayer and maintaining a positive attitude and shares these positions with others.

As unofficial volunteers, she and a friend frequently visit patients on the oncology floor at Altru Hospital. A special friendship has developed with a 20-year-old patient who suffers from ostea carcinoma. The young man is currently out of the hospital, and Tina and her friend take him to movies and on other outings. He plans to be in the audience at the Miss Marshall County pageant, too, with a promise from Tina that she will introduce him to "all of the girls," meaning the pageant's other five contestants.

While Tina will begin her senior year at UND this fall, she will need two more years of school to complete the requirements for her double major in marketing and management and minor in communications.

Although, in the span of only a few short months, young Tina Holte has learned just how uncertain life can be, she remains vibrant and positive. Cancer has weakened her voice, but it hasn't dimmed her spirit as she makes plans and looks forward to the future.

United Lutheran Church of Gatzke will observe its 100th anniversary Saturday and Sunday, July 3 and 4. People throughout the area are invited to join in the celebration.

United Lutheran church of Gatzke observes centennial

Written greetings will be read from David Kronlokken, whose parents, Rev. and Mrs. John Kronlokken, are both deceased, and from Mrs. Andrew Kubik, whose pastor husband is now disabled and not able to attend.

Congregational History

As land was opened for settlement in the 1890s, immigrants from Norway moved into what is now the Gatzke area. A number of settlers also relocated from the Brookings, SD, area where they had first made their homes. These residents soon felt a need to establish places of worship.

Religious meetings were first conducted in homes and schools. Two Lutheran churches were built only four miles apart, each serving members of a different Lutheran synod. Landstad church was affiliated with the United Norwegian Lutheran synod influenced by the teachings of Hans Nielson Hauge. Moose River church members were more inclined to follow the familiar Norwegian State church.

As the years went by, members of both congregations "took a more middle of the road approach," according to United Lutheran church members researching church history for the centennial.

By 1945, both churches realized it was to their financial benefit and growth in faith to join and call a pastor to live among the membership. For years both churches had relied on visiting pastors who were unable to hold regular services. At that time there was also a realignment of Lutheran churches taking place which involved wider scale mergers and consolidations.

Under the leadership of Rev. John Kronlokken, Landstad and Moose River churches held a merger meeting Feb. 1, 1946, and selected the name United Lutheran church for the combined church body. Also through realignment, the newly former United Lutheran became a part of a two-point parish with Our Saviour's Lutheran church of Thief Lake.

It was the dream of United Lutheran church members to provide their pastor with a suitable parsonage and to build a new church building. Rev. Kronlokken, the first called pastor of the congregation, and his wife lived for a time in a tiny 14x16-foot house.

Late in 1946 a two-story house was purchased and used as a parsonage until 1982. At that time a new rambler-style parsonage was built while Rev. Robert Amundson was pastor.

Rev. Emil Bagley arrived to serve the congregation in 1949 and under his leadership work on a new house of worship was started in 1955. The building was completed and dedicated on July 7, 1957.

"We have been blessed with wonderful pastors through the years, and look forward to seeing many of them again," a member of the reunion committee said. "We extend an invitation to everyone to share this very special time with us as we celebrate our centennial anniversary."

Blue iris is one of the plants that will be discussed when Janet Boe, plant ecologist, speaks Sunday, June 27, at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge east of Holt. The program on plants and their relationship to wildlife will take place from 2 to 4 p.m. as part of the refuge open house from 1 to 5 p.m. —Photo by Gary Tischer became known as the Strandquist post office as it was relocated along the railroad tracks. John E. Strandquist continued as postmaster until 1914 when Leonard Franzen was selected for appointment under the civil service system. John Nelson was appointed Nov. 2, 1916, and built "a substantial new building" on Main Street to be used for a post office. Nels Sundberg finished Nelson's term but was soon called to military service.

Anna Ottina Rokke, commonly called by her middle name, became postmaster in 1918 and continued her service until 1934 when Ed Stennes became acting and later regular postmaster. During his tenure he built the post office next to Huset's Store. His service lasted until 1941 when Dolpha Johnson was named to the position. She had the longest period of service, 24 years, until succeeded by Gladys Johnson in 1965.

Gladys served for a dozen years and the present post office was built in about 1975. When she left in 1977 the duties were fulfilled by Iola Rokke as Officer in Charge. Lorene Wernberg was postmaster from 1977 to 1982 and Iola Rokke was named postmaster and served until 1985. The present postmaster, Loretta Bothum, was appointed Dec. 21, 1985.

N. P. Nelson was a rural mail carrier out of the Strandquist office in 1909. Ingvald Rokke served as a rural carrier out of the Strandquist office for 45 years from 1921 to 1966. He and his wife Iola moved to Thief River Falls in 1988 and Ingvald died in 1990 at the age of 93.

Rasmi Nelson was a rural carrier for 25 years from 1913 to 1938. Charles Kranz was mail carrier from 1937 to 1977.

Ag Commissioner heads forum

Commissioner Hugoson

Commissioner of Agriculture Hugoson was appointed to his office by Gov. Arne Carlson in July of 1995 and reappointed by Gov. Jesse Ventura in January of 1999. With his wife Patricia and son Jon, he operates a 700-acre corn and soybean farm in Martin county.

First elected in 1986, he was elected to five terms in the state House of Representatives and served four years as Assistant Minority Leader. During his terms in the legislature he served on agriculture, taxes, transportation and transit committees.

Hugoson earned his bachelor of arts degree in social science education at Augsburg College in Minneapolis in 1967, served in the U.S. Army following college graduation—including a tour of duty in Vietnam—and has done graduate work at Mankato State University.

In recognizing the need for state agencies to be accessible to citizens, he initiated a major reorganization of the department, focusing greater attention on customer service.

During his service as Commissioner, he has worked to strengthen Minnesota's value-added industries and international trade opportunities. He has participated in fact-finding missions to Europe and the Pacific Rim and frequently hosts international government and business leaders. He also serves on Minnesota's World Trade Center board.

As the livestock industry has attracted controversy across the nation, Hugoson has argued that it is possible—indeed necessary—for a community to have both a clean environment and a strong agriculture industry.

As a member of the state's Environmental Quality Board, he helped build support for a statewide study on the economic, environmental and social impacts of animal agriculture. The in-depth study is expected to help guide state and local policy relating to animal agriculture as the state enters the 21st century.

Commissioner Hugoson also serves as president of the Midwest Association of State Departments of Agriculture and, in that capacity, serves on the board of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture.

Director Fredrickson

Karen started her working career with the government as a program assistant in the Thief River Falls office. She became a county executive director and managed the county office in Pipestone for five years, becoming a district director in 1998 and moving back to Pennington county. She is the only woman in Minnesota serving in the capacity of district director.

Karen grew up with a farm background, raised on a dairy and small grain farm in Pennington county. She says she has always enjoyed the rural life, starting out as a child working on projects in 4-H to the life of today working with the farmers of northwest Minnesota in obtaining the government programs that are administered through the Farm Service Agency.

Region jobless rate falls again to 4.4 percent

Unemployment in Region 1 took another drop in April to 4.4 percent, down from 5 percent in April of 1998 and 5.6 percent in March of 1999. Every county in the region had a decline in unemployment from April a year ago, ranging from .2 percent in Pennington county to 1.3 percent in Roseau county.

The only county in the state to show unemployment in double figures was Clearwater county in Region 2 with 11.4 percent, down from 12.7 percent in April of 1998 and 15.2 percent in March of 1999.

Unemployment rates for April of 1999 in each of the counties of Region 1 include the following with the rate for April of 1998 listed in parentheses:

Kittson, 4.9 (5.4); Marshall, 9.2 (9.7); Norman, 4.8 (5.9); Pennington, 4.9 (5.1); Polk, 3.3 (3.8); Red Lake, 6.8 (7.5); and Roseau, 2.7 (4.0).

Minnesota's statewide seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 2.2 percent while the national rate was 4.3 percent.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Julie Olson to be president of Chamber of Commerce

Julie Olson will begin her duties as president of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce July 1, succeeding Bob Bergan. Bergan is retiring after 20+ years as head of the Thief River Falls Chamber.

Olson has been employed with the Chamber of Commerce since 1980, where she has served as administrative assistant. In 1989 she became director of the Convention & Visitors Bureau, a division of the Chamber. During the past 10 years she has worked to promote Thief River Falls as a destination for travel, leisure and business – economic and tourism – of this region.

With Olson's advancement, the Chamber of Commerce position will be vacated. A search committee through Hornberg Associates of Bemidji will be conducted to find a replacement.

Olson is a native of Thief River Falls, a graduate of Lincoln High school and a business administration graduate of Northland Community and Technical College. She was employed for seven years in sales and service with Terry Nelson's State Farm Insurance before going into taking her position with the Chamber of Commerce.

Julie and her husband, Jeff Olson, have two children, Christopher Chad, 15, and Kelsey, 13, and Mallomie, 2.

"We have appreciated the services and dedication of Bob Bergan during his term of service," noted Ron Winter, chairman of the board of directors. "We, as a board, wish him well with his plans for a deserved retirement.

"The board is pleased to have a person with Julie's experience and abilities agree to step into the presidency. She is well qualified for the office and her appointment will assure a smooth transition in the organization's leadership."

Julie Olson will become president of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce effective July 1, succeeding Bob Bergan who will be retiring after filling the post for the past nine years.

Jesse Ventura takes ride on new Polaris

Minnesota Governor Jesse Ventura recently took a ride on the new Polaris Genesis FFV personal watercraft. The new Polaris is considered the world's first production personal watercraft powered by a flexible fuel engine and vessel personal watercraft technology. Governor Ventura was decked out in a black wetsuit complete with the Ski Boss. "I love it, but I feel like the Caution from the Batman movies," Governor Ventura said of the new Polaris customized for the occasion. "This is a great example of what industry regulating itself. I encourage anybody who hasn't been on [a personal watercraft] to get out there and do it. You'll have 4 blasts."

Governor Ventura was commissioned the introduction of the Polaris Genesis FFV, the first personal watercraft that meets emissions standards in all 50 states. The watercraft consumes 25 percent less fuel directly into the engine cylinder for cleaner, efficient burn of the fuel/air mixture, preventing unburned gas from escaping into the air. Polaris plans to integrate this new direct fuel injection technology into its entire line of Polaris personal watercraft models over time.

The new personal watercraft also features a sound reduction system that reduces noise by 50 percent, making it one of the quietest personal watercraft available.

Management changes made in Arctic Cat departments

Several changes are being made in the product management and engineering staff at Arctic Cat Inc., in Thief River Falls, according to information released by Arctic Cat's marketing president of marketing.

Jeri Rathmann has been promoted from Team Arctic racing manager, to the position of product line manager for Arctic Cat's snowmobiles. Ron Solberg, who has been product manager for all lines, will specialize as product manager for all sports vehicles and personal watercraft.

"We have a very competitive edge and future growth opportunities in product planning, marketing, purchasing, manufacturing and administration. We will coordinate product innovations, improvements and recommendations and remain aware of industry trends and competitive activity."

Blackwell has a history with Arctic Cat and this industry that makes him ideal for the position of marketing product manager," Blackwell said. "His experience and knowledge will be invaluable to the development of future snowmobile models."

Julie Olson will begin her duties as president of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce July 1, succeeding Bob Bergan. Bergan is retiring after nine years as head of the local business organization.

Olson has been employed with the Chamber of Commerce since 1985, where she has served as administrative assistant. In 1989 she became director of the Convention & Visitors Bureau, a division of the Chamber of Commerce, where she has worked to promote Thief River Falls as a destination for travel, leisure and business customers and for residents of this region.

With Olson's advancement, the Chamber of Commerce presidency and the Convention & Visitors Bureau directorship will be combined into one office.

Olson is a native of Thief River Falls, a graduate of Lincoln high school and a business administration graduate of Northland Community and Technical College. She was employed for seven years in sales and service with Terry Nelson's State Farm Insurance business prior to taking her position with the Chamber of Commerce.

Julie and her husband, Jeff Olson of Erl's Market, have three children: Chad, 15, Anthony, 13, and MaKenzie, 5.

"We have appreciated the services and dedication of Bob Bergan during his term of service," noted Ron Winter, chairman of the board of directors of the Chamber, "and wish him well with his plans for a deserved retirement.

"The board is pleased to have a person with Julie's experience and abilities agree to step into the presidency. She is well qualified for the office and her appointment will assure a smooth transition in the organization's leadership."

Julie Olson will become president of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce effective July 1, succeeding Bob Bergen who will be retiring after filling the post for the past nine years.

Jesse Ventura takes ride on new Polaris

Minnesota Governor Jesse Ventura recently took a ride on the new Polaris Genesis FFI, personal watercraft. The new Polaris is considered the world's cleanest-running personal watercraft.

A long-time and vocal personal watercraft enthusiast, Governor Ventura was decked out in a black wetsuit complete with black fringe. "I love it, but I feel like the Creature from the Black Lagoon," said Ventura as he modeled the suit Polaris customized for the occasion. "This is a great example of an industry regulating itself. I encourage anybody who hasn't been on (a personal watercraft) to get out there and do it. You'll have a blast."

Ventura's ride commemorated the introduction of the Polaris Genesis FFI, the first personal watercraft that meets emissions regulations set by the Environmental Protection Agency for the year 2006. Through new engine technology, the Polaris Genesis uses one-third less fuel than typical personal watercraft and is 60 percent quieter.

Engineers have been working on the Polaris Genesis for more than three years. In addition to reduced emissions, it also improves fuel consumption, produces less smoke and makes engine starting easier. Genesis FFI's sophisticated direct fuel injection system responds to several factors that can influence fuel demand, including temperature, barometric pressure, throttle position and throttle acceleration rate. It then delivers exactly the right amount of fuel directly into the engine cylinder for a clean, efficient burn of the fuel-air mixture, preventing unburned gas from escaping into the air. Polaris plans to integrate this new direct fuel injection technology into other Polaris personal watercraft models over time.

The new personal watercraft also features a sound reduction system that reduces noise by 60 percent, making it one of the quietest personal watercraft available.

Despite crisis, few farmers attend forum Thursday

By Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

Perhaps the persistently adverse circumstances of the past several years have finally sapped the last of the strength of area farm families. That could be one conclusion drawn from the small attendance at the forum on Weathering the Farm Crisis Together Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon at the Northland Community and Technical College gymnasium in Thief River Falls.

Attendance of approximately 75 people, despite the appearance by Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture Gene Hugoson as speaker, was a fraction of what sponsors and panel participants had hoped to attract.

Those who did attend voiced the frustration and asked the unanswerable questions of those who did not:

• How do we pass our farms on to our children with conditions the way they are?

• Who will farm the land when the present older farmers are no longer able to do so?

• If we can't make a living farming, how can we get out of the business financially intact?

• If people have any idea how bad things are, does anyone care?

The last question indicated the feeling of hopelessness that many farm families in this area are experiencing as a bad situation appears to be getting worse. It is also the reason the Area Ag Information Center set up and sponsored the forum with an emphasis on togetherness in weathering the farm crisis. The message is that farmers in difficulty are not alone and that the cause of their plight probably is not attributable to something they may have done or not done.

Commissioner Hugoson said his recent trip to Washington, DC with Gov. Jesse Ventura and others was to spread the word about the farm crisis to people beyond the major crisis area. He noted the attraction which Gov. Ventura provides, and he complimented the governor on telling news media questioners who sought his opinions on several matters that "we're here to talk about agriculture."

Hugoson said that the delegation emphasized to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman, President Clinton's economic advisors, Congressional leaders and others that while the rest of the national economy is doing well, such is not the case with agriculture.

He said they lobbied for improvements in the crop insurance program and more importantly for a "revenue assurance" program for distressed farmers. "Something will be coming out of Washington," was his expectation, but he could not speculate on how much or in what form.

In reply to the initial question asked at the forum on how present farmers can enable their sons to continue in farming under today's conditions, Hugoson said he is faced with the same question and has no definite answer. He has a son who is a freshman at the University of Minnesota who had expressed an interest in operating the Hugoson family farm, but the Commissioner said that interest is waning in light of poor potential profitability.

Gauging by existing conditions and immediate expectations for the future, Hugoson said the major options seem to be to get large or to be small and diversified and find a niche market in a specialty area. He said he would advise his son to be prepared to do something other than farm or to plan on doing something else for income while he is farming.

The Commissioner said that while we may resist change that affects our lifestyle and preferred way of operating, businesses other than farming and employees of those businesses have also had to make changes. He cited Norwest Bank, Honeywell and the media among those which have faced major recent changes.

Several complaints were made about shared appreciation situations where property values have dropped but debt share remains high. Panel members acknowledged that outside market forces have influenced property values but said that any changes in that situation would have to be as a result of federal legislation.

Mark Bertrant, Polk county farm loan manager with the Farm Service Agency in Crookston, said he understood some of the difficulties but the agency's goal was to reach the proper value of the property.

Commissioner Hugoson said that for farmers to expect to influence changes, they will need to support the legislators who support them by appearing in larger delegations at lawmaking sessions.

Suggestion was made that a set-aside program to idle land for a shorter term than the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) but at a comparable rate per acre would be preferable for many farmers and could be less costly to the government.

Commissioner Hugoson replied that CRP had been established as an environmental program and that Commissioner Gene Hugoson was guest speaker and a panel member at the open forum for area farmers Thursday at Northland Community and Technical College.

Dennis Bartz, program service branch chief of the Risk Management Agency in St. Paul, was one of the panel participants at the forum on the farm crisis Thursday.

Garnette Hanson, manager of the Area Ag Information Center in Thief River Falls, moderated the farm crisis forum panel Thursday at Northland college in Thief River Falls.

Explanation of how the shared appreciation plan is intended to work was given by Mark Bertrem of the Polk county Farm Service Agency office in Crookston during the forum on "Weathering the Farm Crisis Together" Thursday morning at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. At left is Michelle Benton, CPA and at right is Mike Philipp, executive director of the Red Lake county Farm Service Agency office.

Management changes made in Arctic Cat departments

Several changes are being made in the product management and snowmobile racing divisions at Arctic Cat, Inc., in Thief River Falls, according to information received from Mark Blackwell, vice president of marketing.

Joel Hallstrom has been promoted from Team Arctic racing manager to the newly created position of product manager of Arctic Cat snowmobiles. Ron Solberg, who has been product manager for all lines, will specialize as product manager for all terrain vehicles and personal watercraft.

Brian Sturgeon, who has 18 years of snowmobile racing and performance experience, will succeed Hallstrom as Team Arctic racing manager.

Blackwell said the series of internal moves is designed to promote the growth and strength in each of Arctic Cat's three product lines.

"Arctic Cat has experienced tremendous growth in the last seven years with the diversification into the personal watercraft and all-terrain vehicle markets," Blackwell said. "In an effort to continue our competitive edge and foster greater focus in product planning we have specialized our product manager positions."

Hallstrom has 15 years of snowmobile industry experience. In May of 1984, after receiving his bachelor of arts degree from Bemidji State University, he interned as a detail draftsman and technical illustrator in Arctic Cat's engineering department. That fall he became a full-time draftsman and illustrator, serving in that role until being named Team Arctic racing manager in 1987.

In his employment with Arctic Cat he has been responsible for a variety of engineering and marketing projects ranging from magazine tests, Pride magazine, the company newsletter, snowmobile graphics, high performance model development and building Team Arctic into the industry's most decorated race program.

As snowmobile product manager, Hallstrom will develop product plans collaboratively with engineering, marketing, purchasing, manufacturing and administration. He will coordinate product innovations, improvement and recommendations and remain aware of industry trends and competitive actions.

"Joel has a history with Arctic Cat and this industry that makes him ideal for the position of snowmobile product manager," Blackwell said. "His experience and knowledge will be an asset in the development of our future snowmobile lines."

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere

Since we're looking at a summer holiday weekend, you probably already have decided on a main dish to serve your guests, so I've come up with some little extras you might like to serve with your favorite meats. Most of the recipes are ones I've cut and saved from various newspapers and magazines because I thought they looked good enough to try some time. What better time than the present?

These potatoes would be great with any type of grilled meat – steaks, chicken, even hamburgers – and aren't those lovely little new potatoes ready by now:

RANCH ROASTED POTATOES
1 packet (1 ounce) Hidden Valley original ranch dressing mix
2 pounds small red potatoes, quartered
1/4 cup vegetable oil

Place potatoes in plastic bag and add oil. Toss to coat. Add dressing mix and toss again until coated. Bake on ungreased baking pan at 450 degrees for 35 minutes. (Serves 4-6.)

These potatoes will melt in your mouth and surely replace the old potato salad for your picnics:

CHEESE POTATOES
3 tablespoon butter
6 large potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese
Chopped fresh parsley

Melt butter in large nonstick skillet. Cook potatoes until almost tender and lightly browned. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and pour milk over all. Boil gently until milk is absorbed.

Sprinkle with cheese and allow it to melt. Stir. Serve in fry pan or place in bowl and sprinkle with parsley. (Serves 6.)

Here's another potato recipe that sounds almost like a baked potato only made in a pan – double or triple it for your crowd:

HASH BROWN BAKE
1 packet (1 ounce) Hidden Valley original ranch dressing mix
1 1/4 cups milk
3 ounces cream cheese
6 cups hash brown shredded potatoes (frozen)
1 tablespoon bacon bits
1/2 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese

In blender, combine dressing mix, milk and cream cheese. Pour over potatoes and bacon in 9 inch baking dish. Top with cheese.

Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. (Makes 4 servings.)

Remember this old favorite? I still think it is a great summer salad that goes with just about any type of meal. Use fresh veggies if you have them - just quick cook the green and wax beans until they are still crunchy but brightly colored – and use those fresh herbs from your garden to make the dish even better:

SUMMERTIME BEAN SALAD
8 ounce can red kidney beans
8 ounce can wax beans
8 ounce can green beans
1/2 cup sliced onion
1/2 cup vinegar
1/4 cup olive oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon basil
Salt and pepper to taste

Drain all beans. Combine beans and onion in large bowl.

Make dressing by combining rest of ingredients and pour this over the beans and onions in bowl, stirring well. Cover and chill for at least 2 hours. (Serves about 6 people.)

You'd have to make more of these for a bunch, but wouldn't they be a tasty addition to your buffet table this holiday:

DEVILED EGGS WITH VEGGIES
4 hard cooked eggs
2 tablespoons sour cream
2 tablespoons finely chopped zucchini
1 tablespoon finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon chopped fresh or 1/4 teaspoon dried dill weed
1/4 teaspoon mustard
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Pimentos, if desired

Cut peeled eggs lengthwise in half. Slip out yolks and mash two of them with fork (you will only need 2 – use others for something else).

Mix in remaining ingredients gently. Fill egg whites with egg yolk mixture and top with pimentos, if desired. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve.

Here's a very low fat snack that everyone will love – only 30 calories in a tablespoonful:

HERBED YOGURT CHEESE
4 cups plain nonfat yogurt
1/4 cup chopped fresh or 1 tablespoon dried dill
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped

Line 6 inch strainer with coffee filter or double thick cheesecloth. Place strainer over bowl.

Mix all ingredients and pour into strainer. Cover strainer and bowl and refrigerate at least 12 hours.

When ready to serve, unmold onto plate and top with freshly ground pepper and additional dill weed. Serve with assorted crackers.

Wouldn't these be great with some tender, juicy grilled steaks:

STUFFED MUSHROOMS
36 medium mushrooms (about 1 pound)
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons butter
1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
1/4 teaspoon ground turmeric
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Remove stems from mushrooms and reserve caps. Finely chop enough stems to measure 1/3 cup. Cook chopped stems, onion and green pepper in butter in skillet about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally, until tender. Remove from heat and stir in remaining ingredients.

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 11x7 inch baking dish with butter.

Fill mushroom caps with stuffing and place, filled sides up, in dish. Bake uncovered for 15 minutes.

Set oven control to broil and broil with tops 3-4 inches from heat for about 2 minutes or until lightly browned.

Here's one more easy appetizer side dish you can make ahead to serve with crackers and/or a variety of fresh vegetables:

PARMESAN CHEESE BALL
2 (8 ounces each) packages cream cheese, softened
2/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2/3 cup finely chopped nuts
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
Coarsely chopped nuts for outside

Mix all ingredients except coarse nuts. Shape into ball and then roll in the coarsely chopped nuts.

Wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate at least 8 hours. Let stand at room temperature 30 minutes before serving.

And here are a few other ideas for a summertime snack tray:

SNACK IDEAS
Slice chilled, cooked potatoes with skins on and arrange on plate just before serving. Top with sliced cheese or cheese spread.
Toss hot cooked tortellini with Italian dressing – cover and refrigerate until cold. Place on a platter with toothpicks here and there so guests can pick them up.
Make mini kabobs with toothpicks or pretzel sticks as skewers. Combine cold sandwich-type meats, cheese, vegetables or fruit.
Wrap thinly sliced cooked ham or cheese around asparagus spears, pretzel sticks, celery sticks, melon wedges or anything else that can be cut into long, julienne strips.
Stuff pitted ripe olives with julienne strips of cheese, cooked meat or raw vegetables.
Make a simple dip and arrange in a bell pepper, grapefruit or small melon. Cut a thin slice off of the bottom to make it stand upright easily. A simple Spiced Vegetable Dip can be made with the following:
1 cup small curd creamed cottage cheese
2 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon onion powder
1 teaspoon curry powder

Place cheese, milk and lemon juice in blender. Cover and blend on high about 1 minute, stopping to scrape sides occasionally. Add remaining ingredients, cover and blend 1 minute longer. Cover and refrigerate at least 1 hour.

Road work to start on Highway 71 by Itasca State Park

Construction work on Highway 71 between Park Rapids and Itasca State Park will get underway Tuesday, July 6, according to the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

Project supervisor Roger Bachmann said the work will consist of repairing culvert and frost-heave damage, installing turn lanes and by-pass lanes, removing the old bituminous surface and applying new surfacing.

"Motorists can expect to encounter some delays as traffic will be required to alternate through the construction zone, following a pilot car," Bachmann said. "The project is expected to be completed by mid-September, weather permitting."

NightCAP patrols watching Polk Co. road July 4

Safe & Sober NightCAP patrols will be watching for impaired drivers in Polk county this weekend. The Minnesota State Patrol, Polk County Sheriff's department and Crookston Police department will work a cooperative enforcement effort over Independence Day weekend.

Troopers, deputies and police officers involved in the NightCAP saturation will stop drivers for any traffic offense. State Patrol Lieutenant Marv Field says the saturation will increase the likelihood of detecting intoxicated or drug impaired drivers.

"Enjoy your Fourth of July celebration this weekend in the Polk County area, but don't let your celebration end with a bang," said Lt. Field. "There were 273 alcohol-related traffic fatalities last year in Minnesota. We will be out working this weekend to keep that number down."

Wrong Again

"A dog brings you no joy so great during the course of his life, that it makes up for the pain that is caused by his death." —Anonymous

This is a no-brainer. The reason for the anguish over the passing of a pet is just what the above statement suggests—the memory of all the positive things the animal had provided during its life. I was immune to such heart-wrenching potential—I had Sid.

Sidney's parenting was never an issue. His father was the 1986 California Field Trial Champion and his mother was a locally-renowned duck-retrieving legend. AKC registration was a mere formality. As Labs, they had passed on the finest of physical characteristics to their son.

Big and square, with a coat as thick and durable as the shag carpet in your basement, Sid was perfectly adapted for the challenges of lakeside existence at the 49th parallel. His untrained, just-weaned litter mates sold for $450 apiece and so it was with great gratitude and anticipation that we received the six-week-old puppy from my in-laws as our '87 Christmas gift.

I don't remember the exact number of days it was before Sid laid permanent claim to the back seat of our $22,000 mini-van, but within 24 hours of his arrival there it was obvious that the dog odor and shed hair would remain until the vehicle was sold.

The one thing that could leverage him out of that plush bench seat was the prospect of a ride in some other less refined conveyance like a boat or a Bombardier. His favorite was the 4-wheeler, upon which he would sit, rather than reduce himself to the bestial level of running alongside.

Despite his imposing genetics, the "retriever" instincts never quite gelled. He accompanied me on numerous duck hunting expeditions, but the closest he ever came to being more than a casual observer was a curious swim out across a frigid island slough to see what it was I had shot and then waded through the waist deep waters for.

I once saw him retrieve a small stick that had been tossed about 60 feet from shore, but I'm not convinced it was for any other reason than that the chunk of wood had a shape approximating that of a gristly steak bone.

His eating habits were legendary. Never one to beg or demand more, Sid simply understood the patterns of human life well enough to be in close proximity to cabins and fish houses when food was available. He perfected a nonchalant, almost disinterested manner that had fishing guests nearly pleading with him to take the best of what they had to offer.

Bread untoasted or without butter was unacceptable. Pancakes without syrup would be buried. Candy was for kids but cookies met with approval. He steadfastly refused any pork products. The fact that his body weight never dipped below 120 pounds—despite the fickle nature of his diet—is a testament to the sheer volume of food that was forced in his direction.

Sid's relationship with the Oak Island bear population did little to raise my estimation of his worth. Any other dog, and I mean any other dog would at least have barked a time or two when a hungry black bear started rooting through nearby garbage bags.

I often caught Sid, however, either figuring that sizable black animal was a sibling or that there was nothing in that stinky pile of plastic bags that he would want anyway, continuing with his back deck evening nap while the local bruin, a few yards away, ripped through the discarded trash.

The most significant moments of my relationship with Sid occurred by way of my wallet. In addition to the normal vaccination and checkup expenses incurred by most dog owners, Sid managed to sprout things he shouldn't have.

Several growths from his legs, the removal of two toes and the extraction of a 12-pound, basketball sized tumor, put a serious dent in our annual vacation fund.

Incidentally, the veterinarian still claims that the largest tumor was a personal record for him and its extraction briefly raised our hopes that Sid might yet run and frolic like other dogs having been freed from a considerable chunk of excess weight. Sid, however, merely filled the newfound gap in his frame with a generous helping of Dog Chow and continued to approach life at his usual, leisurely pace.

So when someone like the anonymous quotee above suggests that a dog's demise will bring pain, I have always countered that the dog must first offer something of value before the anguish and grief can begin. Something. Fetch the ball. Come when you're called. Pretend to be happy to see me when I return home after a hard day's work. Get out of the mini-van for five minutes. Anything.

So, last week, when Sid quietly and unremarkably breathed his last after twelve inactive, slothful, expensive, unproductive years around my house, I knew I had nothing to fear. There would be no pain.

Well, you can certainly add another slash to my already crowded, personal chalkboard of big mistakes.

Materialism Not A Viable Substitute For Religion

"Communities began falling apart only after adherents to a different vision of the good life—one based on material prosperity and equality rather than religious virtue—began using the government and the courts....to undermine the ability of religion and tradition to shape local life," writes political scientist Bruce Frohnen in the current issue of Family Policy, published by the Family Research Council.

Frohnen sees an irony in what he believes has happened across the land.

"The assault on community has often been driven by newcomers who move to small towns because religiously informed traditions have made these communities delightful places to live or raise a family," he observes. "Frightened away from the big cities by high crime and social disintegration, these newcomers are horrified to find the local still joining together in public expression of faith.

"Pushing an ideology of strict separation of church and state, the newcomers appeal to the courts to move creches off public property, to remove displays of the Decalogue from courthouses or to eliminate prayers from public ceremonies. In the process, they undermine the very thing they sought: a safe, functioning community."

That smaller communities in the nation have been better able to maintain a safe and stable lifestyle is no accident, the political scientist notes. Stable families and low crime rates existed because the people promoted faith-based morality among their people.

"Towns in America came together," Frohnen writes, "to express their faith and reaffirm the moral code it prescribes. Such practices formed the essence of community, fostering a practical consensus based on religious faith and moral truth."

Not all erosion of community can be blamed on "newcomers" fleeing the large cities, however. Breakdown of families has occurred within communities when materialism has been allowed to replace spiritualism. Gratification of self rather than commitment to others has been not only accepted but promoted with emphasis on "self-esteem" and "do your own thing." Materialism makes it easy to find other things to do on the weekend than go to church.

Frohnen has formulated his recipe for renewal in America, and it sounds like a logical mixture.

"To restore viable communities," he advises, "Americans must reorder their public and private lives on the recognition that religious faith is the central, most important and most basic calling of life. The most important requirement for renewed communities is courage. Americans need courage to join with their neighbors to express their faith, not defiantly, but insistently. They need courage to form their own neighborhoods.

"They need courage to resist the state takeover of their schools....They need courage to strengthen their churches, calling upon clergymen to uphold the morality and faith given by God and affirmed by their traditions. They need courage to act in public ways that show love of neighbor and a determination to uphold standards, abiding morality and faith."

That'll work.

Crown Passes To A New Miss Thief River Falls

Last Saturday evening in the Lincoln high school auditorium the crown of Miss Thief River Falls passed to a new recipient—another in the line of young women who have earned the right to be called community royalty. Each has brought something special to the program and, perhaps more importantly, has taken something away with her.

It is impossible for those who bear the Miss Thief River Falls title not to benefit in some way from it. That benefit goes beyond the scholarships earned and prizes received, although they are certainly an integral part of the package. Their major gain is in the growth and development they achieve from the responsibility of being under public scrutiny and the experience of officially representing an entire community.

We have never seen a Miss Thief River Falls who did not complete her year of service with more poise, confidence and maturity than she had when she first earned the crown. In nearly every case that development was in excess of what could be expected from just another year of life and learning.

Katie Christensen, who received the crown and title Saturday, is not lacking in either talent or poise. Her considerable vocal and other musical talent has placed her in the spotlight for a number of years, and she radiates a stage presence that is gained in no other way than by being there and being confident you belong and deserve to be there. Katie is comfortable with being the center of attention on stage; she's been there, done that.

What we expect to see, and have no doubt will happen, will be the emergence and development of an even more open, receptive and responsive personality in the next 12 months. As her position thrusts her into more situations of interaction with strangers and exposure to unfamiliar circumstances, the personality that she displays to friends and family will expand and mature. It is part of growing up, to be sure, but the role of royal community representative hastens the process and enforces it with the urgency to do well.

We suspect that if any person who has worn the crown of Miss Thief River Falls is asked if the experience was a positive force in the changing of her life, there would be no hesitation in an answer of "yes, definitely."

For that matter, we would be surprised if most of the candidates who have participated in the pageant and not won the crown would not agree that the experience was worthwhile. It is therefore a puzzle why more local young women seem reluctant to get involved in an experience that would do them a lot of personal good. The outward appearance in the pageant is that there is only one winner. The truth is, every candidate wins, and that makes the effort worthwhile.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

This is an appeal to Americans of all political persuasions: Before you back any candidates, be very sure to learn where they stand on the most important issue of all, that of NAFTA and GATT.

The sovereignty of our country is at stake, along with our precious freedoms, which we are taking for granted. These freedoms do entail a great deal of responsibility by each of us, and right now our prime responsibility is to know who we elect to all levels of government.

Sincerely,
Earl Brekkestrand

Johnston herd again leads in Red Lake-Pennington DHIA

Todd and Kathy Johnston herd again led the Red Lake-Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement Association's monthly report, topping the statistics chart for the month of May. The report was prepared by Randy and Margaret Rasmussen, supervisors.

The 66-cow Johnston herd, 91 percent of which was in milk in May, averaged 74 pounds of milk, 2.6 pounds of butterfat and 2.3 pounds of protein.

Warren Malwitz Dairy was in second place on the report with 87 percent of the 120-cow herd in milk and averaging daily production of 68 pounds of milk, 2.3 pounds of butterfat and 2.1 pounds of protein.

Walter Bros. Dairy was a close third as 87 percent of the 255-cow herd was in production in May and averaged 68 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of butterfat and 2.1 pounds of protein.

Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station filled fourth and fifth places. Eighty-eight percent of the 42-cow herd of large animals was in production and averaged 67 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of butterfat and 2.2 pounds of protein for fourth place. The small cow herd of 68 animals, 85 percent of which was in milk, averaged 67 pounds of milk, 2.3 pounds of butterfat and 2.1 pounds of protein.

Other herds in the top 15 included the following with number of cows in the herd, percentage in milk and average pounds of milk, butterfat and protein listed respectively:

Morlyn and Deb Omquist, 45, 82%, 67, 2.3 and 2.1; Excel Dairy (3X), 1,136, 84%, 66, 2.4 and 2.0; Wayne Vettleson (3X), 171, 86%, 65, 2.3 and 2.0; Wesley Bring, 32, 97%, 63, 2.1 and 1.9; and Gary and Polly Bakken, 30, 83%, 62, 2.1 and 2.0;

Also Jeff Boutain, 28, 96%, 61, 1.8 and 1.8; David Oslund, 253, 92%, 59, 2.2 and 1.9; Tom and Diane Kolstoe, 45, 89%, 59, 2.0 and 1.8; Tom Willett, 51, 80%, 58, 2.2 and 1.8; Steve Nelson, 63, 90%, 58, 2.2 and 1.7; and Greg Zak, 44, 86%, 58, 2.0 and 1.8.

Because average production includes all cows in the herd, not just those milking that month, the number of dry cows will adversely affect the herd average.

Book on pilots in RRV written by Crookston author

Pilots Along the Red River Valley is the title of a 454-page book written by Gene Miller of Crookston and unveiled at a gathering of pilots in Crookston June 26. The hard cover book has nearly 300 pictures of pilots and their airplanes.

Pilots and the history they made from the Thief River Falls area include pioneer pilot Christ Kierk and his entire flying family, Martin Rantanen, Robert Davidson, Milton Davidson of Newfolden, Ronnie Davidson of Holt, Larry Hagen and Roland Klamar of Gatzke, Maurice Steiger of St. Hilaire and others included in the Thief River Falls Flying Club of the 1950s.

After three years of research, Miller determined that the Fertile Flying Club appears to have the longest continuous operation record in the Midwest. The book includes the history of several flying clubs in the valley area.

Not all pilots responded to his request for information, Miller said, but "the 230 pilot flying career records were about all I could afford to print." He feels the book gives a good cross section of general aviation in the valley over the past 60 years.

With no profit or pay for his time, Miller says, the book is priced at $50 per copy with an additional $7.75 for Minnesota sales tax and shipping. Miller may be contacted at 304 Golf Terrace, Crookston, MN 56716.

AAA on July 4 travel

This Fourth of July weekend, 37.4 million Americans are expected to travel 100 miles or more from home, the highest volume of travel for that holiday in 13 years, says AAA.

This year's July 4 projections represent a 5 percent increase over the same period last year. The record for July 4 travel is 38 million in 1986.

"A strong economy, low unemployment and minimal increases in vacation costs have led consumers - in high numbers - to plan vacations this summer," said Barb Buchholz, spokesperson, AAA Minnesota/Iowa.

Of those taking a trip this holiday, 32.4 million are expected to go by auto, light truck or recreational vehicle, a 5 percent increase over last year. Another 5 million will travel by airplane, train or bus, up 9 percent over the previous year.

In the Midwest, which includes Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota; and the West South Central U.S., Arkansas, Louisiano, Oklahoma and Texas, 6 million people will be traveling by auto/truck/RV, or 12 percent of the population, which represents a 5 percent increase over last year.

The most popular holiday destinations will be cities with 32 percent of the total travel volume, followed by oceans and beaches at 21 percent, and towns and rural areas, 19 percent. Other popular destinations include lake areas, 7 percent; mountain areas, 6 percent; state and national parks, 6 percent; theme/amusement parks, 4 percent; other, 2 percent; and don't know/no response, 3 percent.

Fuel Prices Down Slightly. Minnesota motorists hitting the road for the holiday will find pump prices down slightly from last month. In Minnesota, the average price of self-serve unleaded gasoline is $1.11 per gallon.

Last year, holiday travelers in Minnesota spent $1.13 to fill their tanks. In 1997, they spent $1.27 per gallon; and in 1996, they spent $1.29.

"After an 18-cent spike in gasoline prices in March and April, prices at the pump have been leveling out," said Buchholz.

The national average price of unleaded self-serve gasoline decreased 1.5 cents since June to $1.142 per gallon, according to AAA.

The national average prices for self-serve regular unleaded gasoline in AAA's pre-July 4th survey for the last five years were: 1998, $1.108 per gallon; 1997, $1.25; 1996, $1.303; 1995, $1.288; and 1994, $1.115.

AAA's Fuel Gauge Report is based on data from Oil Price Information Service - the nation's most comprehensive source of petroleum pricing information.

Keeping Holiday Travel Safe. Be alert for road construction. Road construction projects abound this summer, requiring extra caution on the part of holiday drivers. Motorists should be alert for changes in lane patterns and reduced speed limits in construction zones. Speeding fines double in construction zones in most states.

Designate a driver. As more than 32 million Americans hit the road for the Fourth of July weekend, AAA reminds motorists to celebrate the holiday responsibly. In 1997, 508 people were killed across the country in motor vehicle crashes over the Fourth of July holiday. Forty-nine percent of those fatalities were alcohol related.

AAA is a not-for-profit federation of 90 clubs with more than 1,100 offices providing 42 million members in the U.S. and Canada with travel, insurance, financial and auto-related services. AAA Minnesota/Iowa, the local affiliate, serves more than 700,000 members in Minnesota and Iowa. For more information, visit AAA's Web site, www.aaa.com.

Middle River Community Action Groups formed

On June 14 nearly 60 people gathered in the Middle River school gymnasium to begin the process of responding to concerns brought up at the Community Action meeting held on May 21. Of those present, 20 percent were teens from the community.

Unlike the first meeting, which was structured to draw out concerns from the community as a whole, the June 14 meeting was designed to get individuals into small groups to work out ideas and actions.

Prior to the June 14 meeting, the Youth Assets Task Force met to review the minutes and surveys from the first meeting and came up with four areas of concern: curfew, law enforcement/police liaison, community interaction, and block parenting.

Some ideas that surface within the Community Action Groups included: addressing the need for better communication within the community; relocating the community bulletin board and making it more appealing; developing a quarterly newsletter; having ongoing activities for the youth; establishing a "block parent" program within city limits; creating a student/parent phone book to facilitate communication among parents of school age children; exploring the possibility of hiring a city police officer; and varying opinions concerning the age and time to be set for the city curfew.

The chairpersons for each Community Action Group are: Candy Gram, block parenting; Eldon Sparby, law enforcement; Danny Geer and Trudy Klegstad, community interaction; and Colleen Peterson, curfew. Each chairperson will follow up on the ideas and actions suggested by their group. The Youth Assets Task Force will follow up with each chairperson in the fall as part of their ongoing process of studying and evaluating the assets of the community in relation to the youth.

Helmet flying, Roseau runner Josh Olson went from first to third on a sixth inning single by Casey Thompson in the first game of Tuesday's American Legion baseball doubleheader against Thief River Falls at Irv Wilson Field. Post 117 third baseman Andrew Solem took the throw. Roseau won both ends of the twinbill 14-5, 15-4.

Roseau sweeps Post 117 team

Success came early for Thief River Falls Tuesday in an American Legion baseball doubleheader against Roseau at Irv Wilson Field. But it didn't last. Post 117 scored five times in the first inning of Game 1, only to lose 14-5. The visitors completed the sweep with an almost-identical 15-4 final in the nightcap. The first one went the full seven innings; the second one was done in five because of the 10-run rule.

Inability to hold on to a first-game lead was not a shocking revelation to Thief River Falls coach Mike Wienen. A busy schedule and sore arms have put demands on an already thin pitching staff. While Brett Johnson did a credible job the first couple of times through the Roseau line-up, his effectiveness waned as the game wore on. Had Wienen been able to call on a bullpen, Post 117 might have been able to squeeze out a win. But with few options available, Johnson had to gut it out.

Three first inning Roseau errors had opened the door for Thief River Falls. One of the errors scored a run. Jeff Rislov had a two-run triple into the left-center field gap, Andrew Solem picked up an RBI on a fielder's choice play, and Josh Jensen plated a run with a line drive off pitcher Nathan Lee.

Roseau chipped away at the early deficit as Devyn Brandt drove an RBI single to the left field wall in the second inning; Josh Olson scored a run on a two-out, bad-hop infield single in the third; Parry Eidsmoe bounced a run-scoring single into left field in the fourth; and an Olson home run and an Eidsmoe sacrifice fly tied it 5-5 in the fifth.

That pattern continued in the sixth when the winners went ahead 9-5 on an RBI double to left-center by Justin Oster, a high-bouncing single over shortstop that provided Casey Thompson with an RBI, and a two-out, two-run bloop single into short right field by Chad Stromlund.

A slide by Thief River Falls' Brett Johnson took Roseau second baseman Justin Oster off his feet and broke up a fourth inning double play in the first game of Tuesday's American Legion baseball doubleheader played at Irv Wilson Field. Roseau won both games, 14-5, 15-4.

Roseau completed the comeback in the seventh on the strength of three home runs. Brandt and Oster began the inning by clearing the left field fence with solo shots, and after an error and a walk ended Johnson's day on the mound, Olson greeted relief pitcher Ryan Loeslie with a home run on a fly ball that slipped inside the right field line foul pole to finish the scoring.

Ahead just 5-4 after three innings in Game 2, Roseau broke things open with five-run efforts in the next two at-bats against the mistake-prone Post 117 defenders.

Roseau is now 3-0 against a Thief River Falls team that lost for the ninth time in 15 starts.

A scheduled Thief River Falls doubleheader at Warroad Friday was postponed when Post 117 found itself short of players on the start of the Fourth of July weekend.

Elk numbers dictate hunt...

DNR announces there will be no elk hunting in Minnesota this fall

For the first time in four years, an elk hunting season will not be held in Minnesota, according to Department of Natural Resources officials.

Intent of hunts in recent years has been to reduce elk numbers in the Grygla area herd to a goal population of 20-30 adult animals prior to calving. Surveys indicate that the population is currently within this range.

Harvest of elk is necessary to reduce agricultural crop damage in the area. Hunters have harvested a total of 13 elk during hunts that were held in 1996-1998. Elk hunting has been permitted in a 56-square-mile area near Grygla.

A total of 17 permits were offered for hunts during the last three seasons. Eight elk were taken in 1996, while three were taken in 1997 and two in 1998. Five of the 13 elk were yearling or mature bulls; the remaining animals were cows.

Elk hunting is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity in Minnesota. Hunters apply in parties of two.

Future hunts will be proposed when the elk population in this area exceeds the population goal. Winter population surveys will be used to track Minnesota elk populations. The resulting estimates will be used to make recommendations for elk seasons.

Grygla elk herd spends most of its time in the Thief Lake work area. More information on this herd may be obtained by contacting Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area headquarters at 218-222-3747.

TRF third at EGF tournament

Thief River Falls had a third place showing at the 14th annual East Grand Forks Classic American Legion baseball tournament played June 25-27.

The 10-team event featured two days of two-division, round-robin match-ups that led to the Sunday finals.

Post 117 out-scored Red Lake Falls 17-12 in Round 1 and outlasted Midway-Minto 10-7 in Round 2 before dropping a 10-6 decision to Munich in Round 3.

The 2-1 Thief River Falls showing in the Red Division was matched by Red Lake Falls, but the head-to-head result was the tie-breaker. That put Post 117 in the third place game, where Thief River Falls beat Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 15-8.

A Thief River Falls offense that produced 48 runs in the four tournament games was led by Andrew Solem, who was 11-for-16 at the plate (.688) over the three days.

Matt Oakes, who normally coaches the Thief River Falls 14-15-year-olds, directed Post 117 during the weekend in absence of Mike Wienen, who attended his sister's wedding.

Munich edged host East Grand Forks 7-6 in the championship game.

The three tournament wins doubled the 1999 victory total for a Thief River Falls team that was 3-6 coming into the event.

Management changes made in Arctic Cat departments

Hallstrom assumed his new responsibilities July 1.

Ron Solberg joined Arctic Enterprises in 1970 as manager of engine development and testing. In 1982 he began work for Yamaha Motor Corp., and served as snowmobile product manager for 10 years. He worked as an independent consultant in Arctic Cat's new ATV line in 1993 before officially joining the company in 1994. He has a bachelor of science degree in business management.

Under Solberg's guidance, Arctic Cat developed such award-winning products as the ZR 600 EFI snowmobile, an ever-expanding ATV line now including the new 500 4x4 Automatic and a watercraft line boasting one of the industry's first environmentally-friendly craft, the TS 1100 Li.

"ATVs now constitute 23 percent of Arctic Cat's business, and that number is on the rise," Blackwell noted. "The need to focus and give the appropriate attention to each product line has become more critical, and with Ron's vast experience and industry knowledge we will be able to meet larger goals in the ATV and personal watercraft markets."

Solberg will assist Hallstrom through his transition as snowmobile product manager. Each will be responsible for product planning, product improvements and innovations, pricing and promotional programs and staying abreast of industry trends and competitive actions for their respective product lines.

Sturgeon began snowmobile racing in 1981 and seven years later joined the successful T/S Racing Team of Fergus Falls. He experimented with cross country, snocross, ice racing, grass and ice drags and even asphalt speed runs, but found his niche on the oval track. One of the most decorated racers in snowmobile racing history, he won 12 Eagle River World Championships, the 1995 Snow Week and Snow Action Racer of the Year honors and countless career wins and top finishes, including the 1999 Midwest International Racing Association (MIRA) 500 Pro Stock Enduro championship.

For the last seven years, Sturgeon has served as sales manager for Black Magic Motorsports, the recognized expert in high performance Arctic Cat aftermarket parts. He coordinated many aspects of product development, promotion and sales, and dealer, customer, media and racer relations. Heavily involved in promoting safety for racers, he was one of the founding members of a special safety committee in the United States Snowmobile Association (USSA) race circuit.

"Brian's success, on and off the track, has made him a recognized and respected name in the snowmobile industry and racing community," Blackwell said. "He brings to Arctic Cat a wealth of experiences and we are pleased to have him on board."

Sturgeon will begin his new assignment July 19. He will be responsible for managing and coordinating Arctic Cat's snowmobile racing effort, including racer development, promotional programs and events and assisting in product planning and product development.

Missing Marshall County girl found by searchers

Two-year-old Ariona G. Carpenter, daughter of Froncis Engen of Newfolden, was located by a searcher on an ATV at about 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, June 29. Ariana, who had been reported missing at about 10:30 a.m. that same day, was in good condition.

Marshall County Sheriff's department was about to begin a major search effort involving multiple agencies when Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Conservation Officer Mike Ramftorf on an ATV located the young girl. According to the sheriff's department Ariana had wandered away from her rural home about five miles northeast of Newfolden in New Main township. When located, she was about a mile from her residence along a wooded trail.

Agencies assisting in the search effort included the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, the Minnesota State Patrol, Bagley K-9 unit, Pennington County K-9 unit, Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, Newfolden Fire Department and other volunteer citizens from the Newfolden area.

Despite crisis, few farmers attend forum on Thursday

environmentalists believe the 10-year CRP term is necessary for wildlife to acclimate to the habitat. "Unfortunately," he said, "it is easier to get money out of Congress for wild animals than it is for farmers."

He also said that a set-aside program to reduce supply and raise prices wouldn't work as well now as it did a couple of decades ago. In our world economy, he said, if we produce less in the United States, other countries will produce more to compete with us. And it is difficult, he said, to convince American consumers that their food supply is in jeopardy.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls repeated the oft-heard comment that "something has to be done" to bring a solution to the farm crisis. "There is something wrong," he said, when farmers can't make their operations cash flow but grain companies are showing 23 percent profits.

"Something has to be done this summer," he said, and urged farmers to organize. "If we sit back and wait for the farm crisis to be solved, we may have a job in Minneapolis or St. Paul but we won't have one here."

One person questioned why the federal food stamp program was administered by the Department of Agriculture. The budget expense to support food stamps is said to be larger than that spent on the farm program, yet lumping food stamps into the ag budget makes it appear that farmers are getting more than they are. Hugoson speculated that it was because the food stamp program started with provision of surplus commodities.

Michelle Benton and Ray Safranski, CPAs in Thief River Falls, briefly reviewed tax liabilities that can affect farmers attempting to liquidate. For many of the sales of farm assets, Benton said, please remember that the farmer is responsible for paying the income taxes even if a lending institution received all of the cash as payment on debts and the farmer did not actually receive any cash.

Benton and Safranski both emphasized that farmers in transition should consult with a knowledgeable tax advisor before taking actions such as selling crops, livestock, machinery or land.

For instance, most farmers are on a cash basis and therefore have no cost basis in raised livestock because the expenses to raise the livestock were deducted when incurred. Sale therefore can result in a large amount of taxes due on the sales total.

Karen Fredrickson, district director of the Farm Service Agency, said she had received a fax late the previous day that modifies the clean tillage option on idled contract acres and allows the last operation in the fall to be done in a northeast-southwest direction to leave ridges perpendicular to the prevailing winds. The modification is for 1999 only.

Mike Phillipp of the Red Lake County Farm Service Agency said that efforts are made to change or stretch parameters when weather prevents landowners from meeting cover seeding deadlines.

Commissioner Hugoson was asked directly if he opposed extension of the CRP limitation in several northwest Minnesota counties from 25 to 30 percent.

He answered that he had stated his views in response to a letter from the state FSA office, and those views indicated he felt a short term program to be preferable to the 10-year CRP commitment. A denial of extension letter from the USDA office in Washington cited opposition to the extension from the Minnesota Department of Agriculture.

As he had done earlier in news releases, Hugoson quipped that he wished he had the influence attributed to him in affecting other decisions in Washington. He said he was later advised by USDA officials that there was no way under existing law for the expanded sign-up to take place.

Other than those mentioned earlier in this article, panel members included Kevin Duffy, attorney; Dennis Bartz, program service branch chief with the Risk Management Agency in St. Paul; Mary Relerson and Jan Boll, Minnesota farm advocates; and Garnette Hanson, office manager of the Area Ag Information Center who served as moderator.

Groundbreaking for NCTC expansion set for July 13

$4 million expansion and remodeling this year is part of $11 million project in two phases

Interior view of the commons area to be constructed in Phase I at Northland Community and Technical College shows the concept of easy student access to admissions, financial aid, counseling, minority student services, registration, bookstore and offices.

Groundbreaking for a $4 million addition and remodeling project at Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) in Thief River Falls will take place Tuesday, July 13, at 11:45 a.m. on the mall in front of the college.

Work has been underway since this spring on a $1.5 million roofing and ventilation project which is part of the current $5.5 million Phase I of construction. Completion of Phase I is projected for November of 2000.

The college has applied for $5.4 million for Phase II of the consolidation project and that request will be presented to the year 2000 session of the Minnesota legislature. Should that phase be funded, a year would be allowed for planning, design and bidding with construction to start in 2001.

Hank and her husband, Mitch, raise strawberries, sweet corn and the flowers that are dried and sold in bunches and arrangements year-round in their shop. The shop also features an array of antiques and collectibles.

Berry Blossom Farm flowers near Erskine

A few acres of land, a lot of ambition and the desire to learn. For Hank and Mitch Thompson these elements have contributed to the ever-evolving business and enviable lifestyle that they have discovered in retirement.

The Thompsons are the owners of Berry Blossom Farm near Erskine. While their first names may lead you to think that they're a pair of bachelor brothers, they are rather a married couple with "Hank" obviously being the nickname for something more feminine.

The Thompsons came to Minnesota six years ago from California's San Diego county. Retired from the Navy, Mitch had operated an insurance business in California where Hank sold securities and worked as a financial planner and later as a back office operations manager for a health group.

As they planned for their retirement, they searched for the right location. "This seemed to be it," says Hank when referring to the farm near Erskine. However, when they arrived in Minnesota, they weren't quite ready for retirement so they found jobs in the area.

While Hank had grown up in the Detroit Lakes area, Mitch came from the southeastern part of the country and had adapt to Minnesota winters. Before purchasing a snowblower, they parked their vehicles at the end of the driveway as a way of being assured that they would be able to get to their jobs each day. Now, since leaving those jobs, Hank says that they look forward to an occasional snow storm.

Although the couple is retired from outside employment, Berry Blossom Farm keeps them busier than ever. The 35-acre farm includes a building site, pond, small lake and about 17 acres of tillable land where they grow

Too much water in wrong places topic of meeting

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch

A recurring Red River Basin problem of too much water in the wrong places too often resulted in a meeting on flood preparedness, protection and recovery Wednesday, July 7, at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Sponsoring the meeting, attended by about 30 interested individuals from throughout the area, was the the International Flood Mitigation Initiative—an organization formed and funded by the U.S. Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the Province of Manitoba, Canada. The session included a free dinner.

Public input was sought by the group to assist in accomplishing its mission of promoting and developing achievable and action-oriented flood mitigation goals and implementation strategies in the next 10 years. Flood mitigation was described as "systematic and sustained actions that substantially reduce risk of harm to human life, property and the environment."

At the meeting Wednesday those in attendance were divided into four discussion groups to list things of value they believed should be protected from flooding and goals they would like to see accomplished by the year 2010. Each of the groups was led by a moderator who listed the suggestions on a wall poster.

The IFMI personnel intend to use the information and suggestions received in Thief River Falls and at similar meetings in Breckenridge, in Fargo and Valley City, ND and in Emerson and Morris, Manitoba to assist in formulating an action plan.

A number of suggestions and desirable goals were listed at the meeting but few specifics given as to how to achieve the desired results. As might be expected, some of the goals sought by various participants as desirable were contrary to the suggestions of others.

At the meeting of one of the discussion groups, for instance, the first two items listed as achievements by the year 2010 were diking and drainage, two actions which seem at cross purposes. In another session, importance of a basin-wide authority was touted as a means to accomplish meaningful management of surplus water, while several of the individuals attending emphasized the need for local control.

In dinner table conversation, several of those in attendance indicated

Emergency board initiates disaster declaration request

Initiation of the process to request a Secretarial Disaster Declaration by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture took place at a meeting of the Pennington County Emergency Board (CEB) Thursday afternoon, July 8, at the Farm Service Agency office in Thief River Falls.

The CEB is comprised of USDA officials, FSA committee members, University of Minnesota extension educator Howard Person and the county sheriff's department. Thursday the board was joined by area lenders, business people and county commissioners.

The group agreed that crop conditions in the county warrant a Disaster Declaration and initiated the request process.

Primarily, the Declaration will make low interest emergency loans available through the Farm Service Agency. However, the Declaration also would further inform officials in Washington of the severity of the prevailing ag crisis in the county and region, Schafer said.

FSA will process the request next week. Declaration by the Secretary of Agriculture is not expected to be issued in an immediate basis.

The group also discussed the extent to which the ag crisis is affecting the county as a whole, throughout all sectors of the community. FSA will submit a report of the county's situation to Tracy Beckman, Minnesota FSA state executive director and the State Emergency Board for further consideration and use in communicating with officials in Washington, DC, Schafer added.

Spectators will see performances on Saturday from Romance - South American Dancers, the Bob Jackson Dixieland Band, Uganda Dancers, Cathy Erickson Band, Rumba Seis - South American band, and the Marv Nissel band.

The Fialka Ukrainian Dance Ensemble, Squire Lawrie (clown), and Batuque Percussion Ensemble will be among the groups performing on both days.

New to events and activities at the St. Hilaire All Nations Cultural Festival is a flea market and Trinity Trio. Other activities include Curfman's Critters with its mule-drawn stage coach and buggy rides, and petting zoo. In addition, there will be a kids carnival sponsored by the Key Club, arts and crafts, lefse demonstrations, a rolling pin contest, and the Coon and Crocket Muzzleloaders (fur trade encampment).

Food concessions will also be present at the festival. The show will go on rain or shine. Regardless of the weather, spectators will also be able to enjoy the show from under a new 50-foot by 105-foot roofed area or several large tents.

Sunday performers include the Trinity Trio, Fialka Ukrainian Dance Ensemble and "Friends," Hispanic Dance Theater, Celtic Way, Ching Wu Lion Dance Society, Batuque Percussion Ensemble, and Marv Nissel band.

This year's emcee will be Phillippe Habeck.

Daily admission is $8 for adults, and $3 for children 12 and under. An advance two-day pass can be purchased for $12 at the Kruse Inn, Eagle Square in Red Lake Falls, the Petro Pumper and Budget in Thief River Falls.

Fialka Ukrainian Dancers has been a favorite of spectators at the All Nations Cultural Festival in St. Hilaire. The group will make a return appearance at this year's Seventh Annual All NationsCultural Festival, which is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, July 10-11.

Too much water in wrong places topic of meeting

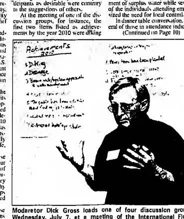
by Murvin Lundin
Northern Watch

A recurring Red River Basin problem of too much water in the wrong places too often resulted in a meeting on flood preparedness, protection and recovery Wednesday, July 7, at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Sponsoring the meeting, attended by about 50 interested individuals from throughout the area, was the International Flood Mitigation Initiative—an organization formed and funded by the U.S. Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the Province of Manitoba, Canada. The session included a free dinner.

Public input was sought by the group to assist in accomplishing its mission of promoting and developing achievable and action-oriented flood mitigation goals and implementation strategies in the next 10 years. Flood mitigation was described as "systematic and sustained actions that substantially reduce risk of harm to human life, property and the environment."

At the meeting Wednesday those in attendance were divided into four discussion groups to list things of value they believed should be protected from flooding and goals they would like to see accomplished by the year 2010. Each of the groups was led by a moderator who listed the suggestions on a wall poster.



The IFMI personnel intend to use the information and suggestions received in Thief River Falls and at similar meetings in Breckenridge, in Fargo and Valley City, ND and in Emerson and Morris, Manitoba to assist in formulating an action plan.

A number of suggestions and desirable goals were listed at the meeting but few specifics given as to how to achieve the desired results. As might be expected, some of the goals sought by various participants as desirable were contrary to the suggestions of others.

At the meeting of one of the discussion groups, for instance, the first two items listed as achievements by the year 2010 were diking and drainage, two actions which seem at cross purposes. In another session, importance of a basin-wide authority was touted as a means to accomplish meaningful management of surplus water while several of the individuals attending emphasized the need for local control.

In dinner table conversation, several of those in attendance indicated

Moderator Dick Gross leads one of four discussion groups Wednesday, July 7, at a meeting of the International Flood Mitigation Initiative (IFMI) at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. The session sought public input on means for flood prevention and mitigation in the Red River Basin in the U.S. and Canada. Gross is deputy director of the Consensus Council which is providing staffing for the IFMI.

Berry Blossom Farm flowers near Erskine

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

A few acres of land, a lot of ambition and the desire to learn. For Hank and Mitch Thompson these elements have contributed to the ever-evolving business and enviable lifestyle that they have discovered in retirement.

The Thompsons are the owners of Berry Blossom Farm near Erskine. While their first names may lead you to think that they're a pair of bachelor brothers, they are rather a married couple with "Hank" obviously being the nickname for something more feminine.

The Thompsons came to Minnesota six years ago from California's San Diego county. Retired from the Navy, Mitch had operated an insurance business in California where Hank sold securities and worked as a financial planner and later as a back office operations manager for a health group.

As they planned for their retirement, they searched for the right location. "This seemed to be it," says Hank when referring to the farm near Erskine. However, when they arrived in Minnesota, they weren't quite ready for retirement so they found jobs in the area.

While Hank had grown up in the Detroit Lakes area, Mitch came from the southeastern part of the country and had to adapt to Minnesota winters. Before purchasing a snowblower, they parked their vehicles at the end of the driveway as a way of being assured that they would be able to get to their jobs each day. Now, since leaving those jobs, Hank says that they look forward to an occasional snow storm.

Although the couple is retired from outside employment, Berry Blossom Farm keeps them busier than ever. The 35-acre farm includes a building site, pond, small lake and about 17 acres of tillable land where they grow

Emergency board initiates disaster declaration request

Initiation of the process to request a Secretarial Disaster Declaration by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture took place at a meeting of the Pennington County Emergency Board (CEB) Thursday afternoon, July 8, at the Farm Service Agency office in Thief River Falls.

The CEB is comprised of USDA officials, FSA committee members, University of Minnesota extension educator Howard Person and the county sheriff's department. Thursday the board was joined by area lenders, business people and county commissioners.

The group agreed that crop conditions in the county warrant a Disaster Declaration and initiated the request process.

Primarily, the Declaration will make low interest emergency loans available through the Farm Service Agency. However, the Declaration also would further inform officials in Washington of the severity of the prevailing ag crisis in the county and region, Schafer said.

FSA will process the request next week. Declaration by the Secretary of Agriculture is not expected to be issued in an immediate basis.

The group also discussed the extent to which the ag crisis is affecting the county as a whole, throughout all sectors of the community. FSA will submit a report of the county's situation to Tracy Beckman, Minnesota FSA state executive director, and the State Emergency Board for further consideration and use in communicating with officials in Washington, DC, Schafer added.

Thank You!
I would like to thank the person or persons who were responsible for reminding me there are still petty thieves around rural Marshall County. I hope you are enjoying your full set of all four collector sets of Hamm's Bear mirrors, and your new Budwieser hitch clock and mirror.
I especially admire your ambitious efforts in climbing the awning with a crowbar for a trophy set of moose horns. I hope you are as happy with them as I was. I also hope the mixed gas from my boot didn't cause any plug fouling problems with your car or truck.
Good luck in all your future burglaries.
Thanks Again!

Cool desserts are just right for this hot weather. These recipes are from a 1969 cookbook – not that old, right? You may find something new in the (slightly) old recipes, or some old favorites you (or your mother) used to make. I have substituted "medium cake pan" for the "refrigerator tray" called for in some of the recipes, since most of us don't use refrigerator ice cube trays any more.

What in the world is this? It's something freezing cold and delicious:

GRAHAM CRACKER PUDDING

2 cups graham cracker crumbs
1 full cup miniature marshmallows
1 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 cup powdered sugar
1 cup coconut
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup cream
1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped

Thoroughly mix cracker crumbs, marshmallows, nuts, sugar, coconut, vanilla and cream.

Line medium-sized cake pan with heavy waxed paper and pack mixture into pan. Freeze firm.

When ready to serve, slice with warm knife and top with whipped cream.

(If desired, use vanilla wafers, chocolate cookies or macaroons instead of graham crackers.)

My mother made a dessert similar to this one for special occasions – I still love to have it in the freezer for "emergencies":

FROZEN LEMON DESSERT

16 graham crackers, finely crushed
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup softened butter
2 egg yolks
1 egg
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup cream, whipped
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix crumbs and sugar. Blend in butter. With back of spoon, press 2/3 of crumb mixture firmly in bottom of cake pan, reserving remainder of crumbs for topping. Chill crust in pan.

Beat egg yolks, egg and sugar together until very thick. Stir in lemon juice and salt and cook over simmering water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens.

Place mixture in bowl and cool.

Beat cream until it piles softly. Fold into cooled mixture with lemon rind and vanilla. Place over crumbs in pan and sprinkle with reserved crumbs. Freeze firm.

How about something fancy and flavorful for that neat summer get-together:

BLACKSTONE PUDDING

1 pint vanilla ice cream
2 tablespoons rum
1/4 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1/2 cup walnuts, finely chopped
1/4 cup maraschino cherries, finely chopped and drained
1/4 cup currents (or raisins)
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Soften ice cream with rum in bowl.

Blend pineapple, nuts, cherries and currents into ice cream. Fold in whipped cream and place in cake pan. Freeze firm. (Can be placed in individual molds for a really fancy dessert – rinse molds with cold water and drain before filling with semi-solid mixture – pack mixture into molds and freeze firm – to serve, unmold.)

We've got to have something chocolate too:

CHOCOLATE PARFAIT

3/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup water
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1/8 teaspoon salt
3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled
2 cups heavy cream
2 teaspoons vanilla

Heat sugar and water slowly to boiling and cook to 238 degrees (soft ball).

Pour sugar water syrup in fine stream over beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add salt and continue to beat until mixture is cool. Add chocolate and blend gently.

Whip cream until stiff enough to hold a soft peak. Fold whipped cream and vanilla into egg white mixture. Freeze. Serve cut in squares or let stand a while and spoon into pretty glasses.

CHILLED ANGEL FOOD

1 angel food cake (oblong)
3/4 to 1 cup flaked coconut
1 cup crushed and drained raspberries (fresh, frozen or canned) – press through sieve to remove seeds if desired
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons sugar
2 cups heavy cream, whipped
If using fresh raspberries, save a few to top dessert

Cut a slice about 1 inch thick from top of cake. Remove center, leaving walls and bottom about 1 inch thick.

Crumble cake which as been removed and mix with 1/2 cup coconut, raspberries, vanilla, sugar and enough whipped cream to hold mixture together (about 1/2 cup). Fill cake with mixture and replace top. Chill several hours.

Whip remaining cream and sweetened to taste.

To serve, cover cake with whipped cream and sprinkle with coconut. Top with whole raspberries, if desired.

(Or use fresh strawberries for this fancy cake.)

Here's another easy one you can prepare ahead of time and have in the freezer:

COCONUT DELIGHT BOMB

1 layer fresh white cake
3 cups heavy cream
1/4 to 1/2 cup sugar
2 cups moist coconut
1/2 cup blanched almonds
8 large maraschino cherries

Crumble cake very fine.

Whip 2 cups of the cream, adding sugar to taste.

In bowl, arrange alternate layers of cake crumbs, whipped cream and coconut. Cover and chill for 12 hours.

When ready to serve, whip remaining cream, adding sugar to taste.

Unmold "bomb" from bowl and frost with whipped cream. Sprinkle with coconut and garnish with almonds and cherries. (If you don't want to bother with unmolding, place cake layers in pretty bowl and garnish with the whipped cream, coconut, almonds and cherries. Let stand out of freezer a while before serving.

One more simple cake-type dessert:

SEA FOAM DESSERT

Sponge cake
1 cup heavy cream
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup pistachio nuts, chopped
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1 teaspoon vanilla
Green food coloring
Dash of salt
1 egg white

Line bottom and sides of mold with slices of sponge cake.

Whip cream only until it holds its shape.

Fold in sugar, nuts, flavorings and just enough green coloring to give a tint.

Add salt to egg whites and beat stiff. Fold into cream mixture. Pour over cake in mold and cover top with slices of cake.

Freeze firm. Unmold to serve. Garnish with nuts and/or more whipped cream, if desired.

Me-Me Generation Makes Children Expendable

Barbara Curtis was a winner in a writing contest sponsored by The Amy Foundation, founded in 1976 by W. James Russell and his wife Phyllis. Curtis is the mother of 11 children, including three with Down Syndrome, two of which are adopted. Her entry is reprinted here for its insightful viewpoint.

KIDS, DO YOU KNOW WHERE YOUR ME-ME GENERATION PARENTS ARE?
by Barbara Curtis

How can we live day-to-day with our children in a world spinning out of control?

We were on our way home from the orthodontist—11-year-old Ben, eight-year-old Sophia sporting new rainbow braces, and I— when we heard the news from Springfield, Oregon, the latest casualty in the epidemic of teen shoot-'em-ups.

This time I could not hold back the tears.

This time my stomach recoiled as if my own body had taken a blow. As if, finally—after Pearl, West Paducah, Jonesboro—the shock had subsided and the pain had begun.

I flashed back to the first time Sophia heard the news of a mother who murdered her own children. Stricken, she turned to me, eyes filled with fear.

"Mommy," she whispered, "how could a mommy do that?"

I wept that time, too, because I already knew the answer.

We had been heading for it for two decades—since Roe vs. Wade, then a triumph for this radical feminist, pro-abortion spokeswoman. Back in those days, I scoffed at the stodgy, moralistic opposition with its talk of slippery slopes and respect for human life. I just didn't get it.

I get it now.

Now with a quarter-century hindsight, I'd say the slippery slope turned out to be a perilous precipice. Once we had fallen off the edge, we were in a moral freefall.

But who could have guessed that in the next 25 years, U.S. mothers would choose to end the lives of 35 million children through abortion? Or that by 1996 the murder rate for infants less than a week old would double?

The children we spared, the children who happened to arrive at times when they were "wanted" or "convenient" or "affordable"—or those whose valiant mothers bore them anyway —they are now the children like Sophia, the children who want to know why.

Though my own early years were far from ideal—neglected, poor, alone—I never remember being afraid for my life. As a latchkey kid (before there were enough of us to name), I pulled my key from under the mat, I rode my bike and rollerskated around Washington, D.C., with a freedom my own kids—now "safe" in suburbia—will never know.

Can we even begin to imagine the toll it must take on our children to hear daily of violence against children—by strangers, by parents, and now by kids at school? And why are so many children now turning to violence themselves?

Clearly, we have taught them that their lives are worth little.

Children are not too clueless to grasp their own unimportance in their parents' scheme of things. First, we've given them a degree of freedom that signals we don't really care. We've turned them loose in a permissive wilderness without a moral compass.

Parents who've found fault with faith have given their children nothing else to replace it.

Kids know they're not important enough to keep their parents' marriage together. Nor can they compete for Mom's time when career or a more affluent lifestyle beckons.

Yes, the Me-Me-Me Generation has done a bang-up job of convincing their kids that kids are expendable.

In 1989 Bob Dylan wrote.

We live in a political world
Courage is a thing of the past
Houses are haunted, children aren't wanted
The next day could be your last.

I know because I've lived through them before: We are living in radical times. Times that call for a new counterculture—those willing to go against the flow, to say it doesn't mean a thing if our pockets, our refrigerators, our gas tanks, our IRAs are full, if our hearts are running on empty. The Bible says, "What good is it for a man to gain the whole world, yet forfeit his soul?" (Mark 8:36 NIV)

The future of our society depends on parents who will invest more in giving their children a spiritual foundation: often, people such as I— who had to start from scratch to find out how.

My husband Tripp and I are often asked how we have produced so many good children. I can only share the truth—that we haven't done it alone. No, it didn't take a village. Our faith in God has seen us through. Faith which goes beyond church on Sunday and grace at meals to a more relational, sustaining approach.

The Lord will guide you always;
He will satisfy your needs in a sun-scorched land and will strengthen your frame.
You will be like a well-watered garden like a spring whose waters never fail.

That's also a Bible verse, Isaiah 58:11. I didn't grow up with the Bible. Yet in its pages my children and I have found goodness, guidance and grace. [illegible]

Words that bring comfort at times like these.

Time For A Little Culture Once Again At St. Hilaire

Seventh annual All Nations Cultural Festival at the park in St. Hilaire takes place today and Sunday with performances beginning at 11 a.m. today and 10 a.m. Sunday. Daily admission is $8 for adults and $3 for children 12 and younger.

The festival has grown steadily in its seven years into an attraction that draws spectators from an ever-widening area. Tents provide shade or protection from rain, whichever is needed during the two-day event, and performances go on as scheduled rain or shine.

Organizers work overtime to provide an entertainment program that provides a mix of interests and offers a new cultural twist or two or more each year. This year the program includes everything from a percussion ensemble to Dixieland to polka to South American, African and Celtic entertainers.

Returning for performances both Saturday and Sunday is the popular Fialka Ukrainian Dance Ensemble from Selkirk, Manitoba, with its high energy, colorful authentic costumes and enthusiastic performances. Fialka has been a well-received fixture at each of the cultural festivals and seems to anchor the program as the "class act" by which all others are judged.

All roads lead to St. Hilaire this weekend for an extra little touch of culture.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

In recent weeks we have heard a lot about gun control. Following every school shooting our lawmakers seize the opportunity to introduce any and every piece of legislation concerning guns, no matter how ridiculous it sounds.

A real prizewinner is the proposal that would limit the purchase to one gun per month. What exactly is this supposed to accomplish?

There were two boys responsible for the school shootings in Colorado and it was reported that one of these boys had kept a diary for 12 months prior to the disaster, detailing his intentions. If the one gun purchase per month was law, it would mean the boys still could have amassed an arsenal of 24 guns.

Is there any law concerning guns that has actually spared one life? I think not. These laws were not designed to prevent crime; they were designed to get votes from a gullible public. To put it very bluntly, our politicians are using the bodies of slain school children as stepping stones to further their careers.

If this weren't true, ask yourselves why they don't tighten laws to punish the lawbreaker instead of the gun? If someone misuses a gun and commits a crime, what happens? the lawbreaker is arrested but all too often is out on bail within hours, punishment usually is minor, while the gun is locked up and eventually destroyed.

One last thing: one of the most famous handguns—the Colt single action revolver—was called the Peacemaker. Wouldn't it be a comfort to know that in every home there was a Peacemaker?

Thank you.

The Future Is Now

I used to guide a publishing mogul from the Twin Cities. He was a regular customer, making trips to Lake of the Woods at least twice a year, and over time our conversations in the boat became friendly and casual.

He was always interested, each Spring, in the changes, however incremental they might be, that had occurred in our somewhat "separate" area of the world. A handful of Mays ago, I remember being eager to point out to him the arrival of complete cell phone coverage across the lake. We were, I boasted, taking long strides into the 20th century.

"I wish you had never told me that," he responded in an obviously crestfallen tone. "I come here because I can look my family and business associates in the eye and honestly tell them I can't be reached. Now I'm accessible again and my responsibilities have returned."

I didn't guide him again after that. Perhaps he pushed on to remote areas further north, though the advent of global satellite phone technology may have ended his vacations altogether. But on this, the 25th anniversary of laying of underwater electric cable to the islands and on the eve of this month's laying of underwater hard-line phone connections to those same areas, it seems appropriate that I'm reminded of his existence.

The laying of the underwater electric cable in 1974 was met with little resistance. While a few may have griped a bit about "independence" and "loss of local flavor," most felt that this move away from self-generated power was a good one. The thump and stench of diesel power plants disappeared, evening "lights out" curfews were extinguished and early morning showers became available before donning a pair of boots. Some rustic character may have been lost, but the new level of convenience was hard to ignore.

Telephone systems arrived in the '80s amidst similar protestations about sacrificing the unique "bucolic nature" of island life. The marine band radio had served businesses and residents adequately for years and questions as to its modern day replacement were raised.

As one local put it, "Tourists and cabin owners come up here to get away from what we are now offering. Where's the logic in that?"

Once again, however, convenience provided an inevitable draw and what began as an isolated curiosity grew into a radio-phone system in each island structure.

July of this summer is the targeted month for beginning hard-line phone cable placement to each potential island customer. The move can in no way be construed as a profit-hungry exercise by the local phone provider; the islands have historically proven themselves a financial liability for most utilities that dare stick their fingers in this remote pot.

But with overcrowded towers and a public's insatiable desire for e-mail and the internet, the updated system seems to be an inevitable step forward. The growth of area businesses and the necessity to remain competitive through new advertising medium makes this a must for their survival. Indeed, simply the ability for a local resort to provide a prospective, inquiring client with something more than a busy signal forces the phone company's hand.

Quietly, there are still questions being raised. Are the technological advances which make this isolated area more like the rest of the world also detracting from what makes it different? Uninterrupted electricity is a given. Hard line phone service is a couple of months away. Customs and Immigration has become a video experience. Perhaps tar is on the horizon. Though a little more slowly than elsewhere, the 20th century arrives.

These musings are essentially moot, as necessity puts the most romantic of notions to bed early. Change is inevitable and imperative. But if you're curious about how some of the people up here feel about these changes, or if you'd just like to call and talk about the "good ol' days," I encourage you to do so. Most of the locals arrived in that area because of just that rustic, remote quality and love to rehash some of the "rougher" times.

I'd wait a month, however, before you place that call. Once they get those new phone lines laid, you'll stand a much better chance of getting through.

Mutton Bustin' is part of Thunder on Hooves event

Persons interested in registering their children to participate in the mutton bustin' portion of the Thunder on Hooves bull ride at the Pennington County Fair are asked to stop at the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce office and sign the waiver of liability forms. Pre-registration is mandatory for the event sponsored by Tony Dorn, Inc.

The sheep riding for children ages four through eight and weighing under 70 pounds has been a popular part of the annual PBR bull ride. Twenty children per night will be allowed to ride and all participants will receive a blue ribbon and two-liter bottle of pop provided by Pepsi-Cola.

Thunder on Hooves is the name given to the bull ride which takes place at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 23 and 24, at the county fair in Thief River Falls. Sanctioned by the Professional Bull Riders Association (PBR), Thunder on Hooves offers more than $39,000 in cash prizes and points in the PBR standings.

East Grand Forks runner Scott Johnson found himself sliding into the tag by Thief River Falls third baseman Andrew Solem in the fourth inning of Wednesday's American Legion baseball doubleheader opener at Irv Wilson Field. Johnson was trying to advance from first to third on a single to center by Matt Marek, but was cut down on a pin-point throw by Nick Wilcox. Thief River Falls won the game 13-5. East Grand Forks won the nightcap 18-14.

Legion rivals split twinbill

Ninth District American Legion baseball rivals Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks combined for 50 runs Wednesday in a doubleheader split at Irv Wilson Field. Thief River Falls won the opener 13-5. East Grand Forks won a second-game slugfest 18-14.

The split left the Mike Wienen-coached Post 117 squad at .500 with an 11-11 record heading into a scheduled weekend appearance at the Park Rapids Invitational – a six-team field that also includes New London-Spicer, Staples, Pine City, and Badger/Greenbush-Middle River. It was Thief River Falls' fifth game in three days.

Run production has not been a problem for Thief River Falls lately. The team has hit double figures six straight games. Wednesday, Post 117 banged out 30 base hits off East Grand Forks pitching, including seven home runs by five different players.

"Offensively we're where we want to be," noted Wienen, "and our defense has improved. Our pitching has come around. We played 37 innings in three days, so our arms were a little off. But we don't mind playing a lot of games. I think it will help us at the end. We're developing three-four solid starters, and Andrew Solem has become our closer. If the game is close in the fifth, sixth or seventh innings and we need help, Solem will be in there."

East Grand Forks started the home run derby on a picture-perfect baseball night when Travis Foster launched a first inning two-run shot over the left field fence in the opener. But Thief River Falls pitcher Joey Pribula, backed by an error-free defense, didn't give up another run until Jamie Kaiser hit a solo homer in the fifth.

By then, Thief River Falls enjoyed an 8-2 lead thanks to a combination of hitting, well-executed early-game sacrifices and a half-dozen East Grand Forks errors.

"We're getting people on base and moving them up with bunts," noted Wienen. "We're manufacturing an offense. And even though the kids are hitting the ball well, they don't get upset if they are asked to put down a bunt. They're all disciplined enough to get the job done."

It was a sacrifice by No. 3 hitter Jarod Reierson that advanced Steve Wiseth and Derek Berg, who opened the Thief River Falls first inning with singles, and set up a pair of runs on a one-out error off the bat of Solem. It was a lead Post 117 would never relinquish.

Wiseth hit a two-run home run to left in the second inning and a double by Jeff Rislov in the third had an error tacked on to it for a run and a 5-2 lead.

Thief River Falls took control in the fourth, thanks in part to three East Grand Forks errors that led to three unearned runs and an 8-2 spread. Solem again watched two runs cross the plate on an error on his at-bat, and Pribula picked up an RBI on a bad-hop single.

First two Thief River Falls fifth inning batters were retired before Wiseth's third hit of the game, a single, preceded back-to-back first pitch home runs to left by Berg and Reierson.

East Grand Forks' Matt Marek doubled home two runs in the top of the sixth, but Thief River Falls answered in the bottom of the inning with a solo home run by Rislov and a two-out double to right by Ryan Loeslie that was followed by an RBI single to right by John Marben.

Thief River Falls continued the offensive assault in Game 2 when Berg and Josh Jensen added to the home run total. But this time, East Grand Forks joined the fun with a 22-hit attack.

"Both teams hit the ball real well," said Wienen. "There were a lot of legitimate, well-hit balls. I don't think we've ever hit seven home runs in a doubleheader before."

Down 15-10, Thief River Falls got back in it when Berg hit a three-run home run in a four-run sixth inning that chopped the difference to 15-14.

However, East Grand Forks sealed it with a three-run effort in the seventh that included two bunt singles to help load the bases with nobody out. A sacrifice fly, then a two-run single by Scott Johnson put an end to Post 117 comeback hopes.

"I'm pretty satisfied with the split," noted Wienen. "We played well. We're competitive."

TRF BASEBALL

State tournament-qualifying Lake Agassiz District playoffs will be held July 15-18 for baseball players ages 13-15.

The 13-year-olds will play their games at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. First game will be played Thursday at 9 a.m. Thief River Falls I and II will be joined by teams from East Grand Forks, Crookston, Roseau, Red Lake Falls, and Warroad.

Playoffs for the 14-15-year-olds will take place in Warroad, where Thief River Falls will have a single entry, along with teams from Warroad, Baudette, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Roseau, and Red Lake Falls.

There will also be a two-out-of-three game playoff series for 14-year-olds between Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks – the only area programs fielding teams for just 14-year-olds. TRF rallies net wins

A pair of come-from-behind efforts carried Thief River Falls to a 14-11, 10-3 Ninth District American Legion baseball doubleheader sweep over host Crookston Tuesday.

Post 117, after jumping out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning, trailed 10-6 after five innings in Game 1. But a 3-run home run by Andrew Solem highlighted a six-run sixth that secured the win.

Looking for a doubleheader split, Crookston carried a 3-2 lead into the seventh inning in Game 2. However, Thief River Falls sent 11 batters to the plate in an eight-run outburst to complete the sweep. A bases-loaded double by Nick Wilcox was the big blow in the inning.

"It was a really good night for our kids," reported Thief River Falls coach Mike Wienen. "They hit the ball and played good defense. To come from behind and win both games like that really helps the confidence."

Thief River Falls picked up the two wins while using three 15-year-olds to fill gaps left in the line-up due to schedule conflicts. Usually 16-year-olds play when the 17-18-year-olds are not available, but a VFW twinbill that night against East Grand Forks took away that option and left Post 117 with a younger-than-normal roster. The trio of Garret Hoglo, Danny Almquist and Mike Kimball played well, according to Wienen. "They filled some big shoes, and did a nice job for us," he said.

Pioneer Days July 14 and 15

Thief River Falls Park & Recreation Department and Pennington Historical Society will sponsor Pioneer Days for children between the ages of 8 and 14 on Wednesday, July 14 and Thursday, July 15 at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village in Thief River Falls.

Between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. each day, children will enjoy nine different presentations about pioneer life and participate in such hands-on activities as candle making and butter making. They will also make their own lunch at the village.

The event is limited to 25 participants each day, and the cost is $3. For more information or to register, call (218) 681-2519.

Acreage reporting deadline for crops is Thurs., July 15

Thursday, July 15, is the last day for farmers to report crop acreage for 1999, according to Glenn Schafer, county executive director of the Pennington County Farm Service Agency. Crops reported after that date will be subject to a per farm and field charge.

Farmers who wish to receive loan deficiency payments, commodity loans, non-insured crop benefits (NAP), CRP payments and other benefits, or grow fruits and vegetables, are required to certify their acres.

Those who have not already done so are asked to contact the FSA office for an appointment.

Public comment in developing goals, objectives and actions for flood preparedness, protection and recovery in the Red River Basin was received at a meeting attended by about 50 people in Thief River Falls Wednesday, July 7. Four discussion groups such as the one pictured above listed objectives they would like to see accomplished in the next 10 years for flood prevention and mitigation. International Flood Mitigation Initiative was the organizer.

Too much water in wrong places

that they thought it was important for them to continue to attend meetings and express their specific views and concerns, but they shared a healthy skepticism that much would be actually accomplished toward the flood mitigation goal. Among the major problems seen were the geographic size and diversity of economic interests in the area and the cost of any meaningful mitigation efforts.

Among people attending were county and other local government officials, watershed board managers, and farmers and other individuals concerned about protection of their property and livelihoods.

The fifth of the six meetings was held Thursday evening in Emerson, Manitoba. The last will be July 12 at Morris, Manitoba. Approximately 350 people are expected to have participated in the six sessions and the information collected will be presented to a meeting of the IFMI group Wednesday, July 14, in Morris, Manitoba.

IFMI is coordinated and facilitated by the Consensus Council and is an 18-month program funded by a one-time grant. At the end of the 18 months, in July of 2000, it will make its recommendations to the sponsors.

Dick Gross, deputy director of the Consensus Council and an IFMI staff member, said the group recommendations can be expected to get a positive response because of the emphasis on building partnerships among the diversity of interests represented in the the IFMI organization.

Gross said a second round of meetings will likely be held in December to gain further public input in establishing strategies and benchmarks toward accomplishing goals. He termed participation at the first round of meetings as "positive and helpful."

Groundbreaking for NCTC expansion set July 13

NCTC. "We began planning this project in 1993 when the technical and community colleges began looking at becoming one college. In 1994 the legislature appropriated $100,000 to develop a pre-design for the project and in 1998 appropriated $5.5 million for construction.

"Our application for Phase II construction funds ranks high on the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities (MnSCU) priority list and we anticipate a favorable response from the legislature next year to permit completion of this $11 million campus update."

The Phase I project will feature a new front entrance where the cosmetology entrance has been located and a commons area leading to a centralized Student Services Department. The commons area will provide students easy access to admissions, financial aid, counseling, minority student services, registration, bookstore, placement and business offices. New location for the cosmetology program, computer labs and maintenance will also be featured in the project.

"This project will tie the former separate colleges together and we will be able to operate and appear as one college," Dr. Gunderson said.

"We have been a consolidated college since 1995, however, our present facility didn't allow us to consolidate all support services in one centralized location which was convenient for all of our students. Soon we will have an impressive new exterior appearance and a modern, student-friendly service area as well."

Phase II of the project calls for remodeling of science classrooms, learning resource center and library entrance and addition of computer based technology classrooms in the space between the extreme west portion of the campus and the theater entrance, Dr. Gunderson said.

The public is invited to attend the groundbreaking ceremonies which will include participation by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Thief River Falls; Rep. Tim Finseth, Angus; Rep. Jim Tunheim, Kennedy; Al Johnson, associate vice chancellor of facilities for the MnSCU system; Jim Whipkey, Division of Building Construction of the Minnesota Department of Administration; representatives of the architectural firm of Tiebwasser, Helenske, and Associates; local officials and students; administration, faculty and staff of the college.

Berry Blossom Farm flowers at Erskine

strawberries, sweet corn and a wide variety of flowers for drying.

A two-acre strawberry patch yields berries that customers can either pick themselves or purchase pre-picked. A third acre will be ready for picking next year as will a quarter acre of raspberries.

While the weather didn't allow the Thompsons to plant quite as much sweet corn as usual, the yield from three acres will be retailed and wholesaled this season.

While the berries and sweet corn satisfy the taste buds of the farm's customers, it is the blossoms that provide visual beauty on a year-round basis.

Over thirty varieties of flowers, a mix of annuals and perennials, are grown, harvested and dried.

Varieties include Silver King artemesia, sweet Annie, wooly lambs ears, pink, white and yellow yarrow, lemon mint, anise hyssop, oregano, sunflowers, German statice, blue salvia, delphiniums, larkspur, lavender, marigolds, daisies, hydrangea, tansy, goldenrod, safflower, baby's breath, dusty miller, peonies, cone flowers and more.

As the flowers bloom they are harvested, bunched and hung to dry in the upstairs of a barn. With the various varieties coming into season at varying times, the process is continual right up until freeze up.

Drying is done the old fashioned way. The flowers are hung upside down in bunches from coat hangers, and ideal conditions are hot, dry and dark. Currently, Mother Nature is raising havoc with the drying process of row after row of peonies as the cooler, damp conditions extend their drying time.

While some flowers retain their brilliant color as they dry, others fade and take on an antique appearance.

Once dried, the flowers are removed from the hangers, sorted and rebunched according to count or weight and wrapped in cellophane to be sold.

Hank also makes arrangements with many of the flowers and sells them in the gift shop in the lower level of the barn.

While the shop began in a 12 by 20-foot area, it has expanded with the addition of the antiques and collectibles that complement the bunched florals and arrangements. Hank loves old things and auctions making addition of antiques to her inventory a natural thing to do.

Hank did not start the venture with a vast knowledge of flowers and plants. She has taken an eight-week floral course at Northwest Technical College in Detroit Lakes and become a Master Gardener. She has also read numerous books about flowers, plants and antiques.

"When you're working with things you love, you learn fast," Hank says.

Instead of keeping all that she has learned to herself she has shared it with countless others by teaching community education classes in communities throughout the area. While some classes are hands-on courses that enable students to make floral arrangements, others involve demonstrations or lectures about such topics as the history of flowers and their uses and meaning to other cultures.

Hank has also shared her vast knowledge with garden clubs and other groups when she has either visited their meetings or entertained them at the farm.

Groups of friends are also invited to spend an enjoyable day at Blossom Berry Farm where they can make the dried floral arrangement of their choice under Hank's guidance. Participants pay only for the materials they select and are not charged an instructor's fee, and if women bring a sack lunch, Hank will even provide the coffee and lemonade. Appointments can be made by calling (218) 687-4740.

The addition of a furnace to the barn has enabled the Thompsons to stay open year-round, and business remains brisk through the holiday season. While traffic may slow down after Christmas, Hank stays busy creating new arrangements for the oncoming season.

The Thompsons' customers come from all over the area, and word of mouth has been their best form of advertising. The farm is easy to find, located just one mile east of Erskine on Highway 2.

Hank's an animal lover, too, and several animals add to the setting's quaintness. Domestic ducks grace the pond in the backyard, a couple of cats wonder about, and although Winston looks like he might be a guard dog, he lays in the driveway and barely raises his head as you get out of your vehicle. Churchill, however, is always on the go and always has something to "say." He's a domestic tom turkey who spends his days following four guinea hens about the grounds.

Berry Blossom Farm is a fun place to spend an hour or an afternoon as it offers an interesting assortment antiques and collectibles and a variety of beautiful dried naturals and arrangements not commonly found elsewhere. Best of all, you'll discover the warm hospitality of Mitch and Hank Thompson and witness the busy, but enjoyable way of life that a well-planned retirement has afforded them.

Interpretive program at Lake Bronson

Lake Bronson State Park will hold a number of interpretive program activities on Friday and Saturday, July 16 and 17.

At 4 p.m. on Friday, July 16, a solargraphics program for children will be held at the beach. Children will make a unique shadow picture with natural objects.

A program on bats will be held at 8 p.m. on Friday, July 16, at the picnic shelter. These mysterious creatures fly through the night often causing fear and misconception. Learn the truth about bats and what we can do for these important mosquito-eaters.

A night hike will begin at 10 p.m. Experience the sights and sounds of nature in a whole new way — in the dark. Bring your insect repellent and your night eyes and meet at the tower for this night hike.

On Saturday, July 17 at 3 p.m. a prairie parklands tour will be held. Visit still wandering sand dune areas that once moved along the lake bottom and beach ridges of Glacial Lake Agassiz. Experience the waving grasses, hardy wildflowers, and flitting butterfly wings of summer. See majestic aspen and gnarled old oaks as they provide cool relief to hikers. Gather for this auto tour at the water tower parking lot a few minutes before 3 p.m.

All programs are free and open to the public, however, a vehicle permit is required to enter the park. For more information call 218-754-2200.

First-time home buyers workshops

Buying a home is one of the most important decisions that a person makes today. In order to prepare home buyers for this important step, the University of Minnesota Extension Service and Minnesota Housing Financing Agency will offer a "Home Stretch" Home Buyer Workshop on Wednesday and Thursday, July 28 and 29. The workshops will be held from 6:30 - 9:30 p.m. at the Courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

The 2-session workshop is designed for the first-time home buyers of low to moderate income; for homeowners ready to finance a contract for deed, or for persons just interested in exploring the possibilities of home ownership. Participants will gain a thorough understanding of the home buying process. They will find out - how much home they can afford, what lenders look for in a buyer, how to eliminate the barriers to home ownership, and what kinds of mortgage assistance programs are available.

A certificate of completion will be provided to all participants who attend all workshop sessions. Many lending programs now require completion of a home buying workshop to be eligible for their mortgage products.

The registration fee for the workshop is $5 per household. Call the Pennington County Extension Office at 218-683-7030 or 1-800-681-2116 to receive a registration brochure with more information.

Seating is limited so register now. Registration deadline is Friday, July 23.

Volunteers needed to protect Minnesota's natural heritage

The Nature Conservancy invites you to join other volunteers at Pembina Trail Scientific and Natural Area in Polk County on Saturday and Sunday, July 10-11. Participants will remove approximately three miles of old fence line from the boundary of the preserve. You may register for either or both days. Those coming from either the twin cities area or the Fargo/Moorhead area or south of it are encouraged to take advantage of carpools being offered by the Conservancy on Saturday. Your volunteer work has a direct contribution toward the maintenance and restoration of the Pembina Trail.

A visit to the 1,650-acre Pembina Trail Scientific and Natural Area also affords the chance to explore a nearly extinct landscape. The preserve lies on the west edge of a conspicuous Glacial Lake Agassiz beach ridge, and is a high quality remnant northern tallgrass prairie, which today covers only a small fraction of its native range. Natural communities represented at this preserve include wet and mesic tallgrass and gravel prairie, aspen woods, wetlands, and willow thickets. Prairie plants found here include June grass, purple prairie clover, big and little bluestem, mat muhly, sedges, water hemlock, and Indian hemp. Pembina Trail has one of the largest and healthiest populations of the federally threatened western prairie fringed orchid. The 36-acre marsh is also found at the southern end of the preserve, attracting nesting sandhill cranes. In addition, 73 bird, 11 mammal, 35 butterfly and three amphibian species are known to make their homes within the boundaries of this preserve. Summer displays of diverse and colorful fields of wildflowers and butterflies make a visit to Pembina Trail most rewarding.

Participants will also find their visit here educational. Individuals and families are encouraged to take part in this volunteer event. Each participant is requested to bring work gloves, a hat, sunblock, insect repellent, lunch, and water. Volunteers under 18 years of age must either attend with a parent/guardian or contact The Nature Conservancy before participating.

For more information, including carpooling, and to register, please contact Sonia Winter at The Nature Conservancy office in Glyndon. She may be reached by telephone at (218)-498-2679 or by e-mail at swinter@tnc.org. Please leave your name, telephone number and mailing address.

The Nature Conservancy is an international conservation organization that works to preserve plants, animals and natural communities that represent the diversity of life on Earth by protecting the lands and waters they need to survive. The Minnesota Chapter has 20,800 members and volunteers and has been involved in the protection of over 270,000 acres in the state. The Nature Conservancy of Minnesota owns more than 29,000 acres which include native prairies, wetlands and woodland communities.

Youthnet EXtreme Team arrives in Thief River Falls

by Marilyn Sayler

When YouthNet eXtreme arrives in Thief River Falls this weekend, it will come with all the energy one would expect of an international touring team. But the members will also be fired-up by some additional booster rockets — they anticipate experiencing a "community extraordinaire". They are aware of this community's response to their message (positive values, positive choices, positive lifestyle) and they are excited! They are excited about the fact that Mayor Mark Borsheim will be appearing with them on Thursday and that Katy Christensen has chosen to support their message by making YouthNet eXtreme one of her first public appearances as Miss Thief River Falls. They are excited about the presence of the media during the week as KTRF's Mark Allan, KKAQ's Tim Holmseth, KSRQ's Jeff Eckstein and The Times' John Mattson each take an evening to "promote the positive." They like how the business community has jumped on board making available dozens of door prizes from t-shirts and gift certificates to a CD player and a $100 savings bond and still the prizes continue to roll in. They like the fact that several community bands and worship teams will appear with them throughout the week. YouthNet eXtreme sees that Thief River Falls is serious about its motto "Where Everybody is Somebody". Having just completed a stint in New York City, the team is ready to reinforce hometown values in a setting where "somebody" means especially the youth.

YouthNet eXtreme will be in Thief River Falls July 12-17 bringing a week of drama and music promoting positive values, positive choices and positive lifestyle.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 12-14, the team will appear at Lincoln high school. Thursday they will be at the former Our Savior's Lutheran Church, 401 St. Paul Ave. South. Friday and Saturday, July 16 and 17, YouthNet will again be at the Lincoln high school auditorium. Each evening's presentation will be new and different. Although geared for teens and young adults, YouthNet eXtreme has a wide age appeal, and no one is excluded from attending.

Public attendance is encouraged. Admission is free. This event has been organized by volunteers from Opeo, Arms Christian Fellowship.

For more information call 683-3251 or 681-1776.

Card of Thanks

THANK YOU
Thanks to everyone who came to celebrate our birthdays. Thanks for cards and gifts and special thanks to our families and friends who brought all the food and made the day so perfect.
Lillian & Alma Wegner

THANK YOU
I would like to thank the person or persons who were responsible for reminding me there are still petty thieves around rural Marshall county. I hope you're enjoying your full set of all four collector set of Hamm's beer mirrors. And your new Budweiser hitch clock and mirror. I especially admire your ambitious efforts in climbing the awning with a crowbar for a trophy set of moose horns. I hope you are as happy with them as I was. I also hope the mixed gas from my boat didn't cause any plug fouling problems with your car or truck. Good luck in all your future burglaries.
Thanks again!

CARD OF THANKS
An exuberant word of thanks to everyone who sent me cards during my hospital stay at Abbott Northwestern and my convalesce at my daughters home. Your messages of care and healing helped me recover from my heart surgery.

$40,455 in arts program funds awarded by RDC

Funds totaling $40,455 for arts programs in northwestern Minnesota have been awarded by the arts council of the Northwest Regional Development Commission (RDC), according to Mara Lunde, director of the arts council.

Awards included $9,145 in Local Regional Arts Development projects; $1,050 in Small Arts projects; $15,000 in Public Art projects; $10,800 in Residency projects; $1,460 in Individual Artist projects; and $3,000 in Student Artist projects.

Under the Local Regional Arts Development program, the following grants were awarded:

• Artists Unlimited of Lake Branson will receive $870 for the sponsorship of a watercolor workshop by Marilyn Hughes September 18-20;

• Norman County East school in Twin Valley was awarded $1,275 for sponsorship of the Missoula Children's Theatre workshop and performance of Rumplestiltskin on August 16-21;

• Polk County Agriculture Fair in Fertile was awarded $2,500 for sponsorship of the Plymouth Playhouse performance of How to Talk Minnesotan on July 9;

• Middle River community Theater will receive $2,000 for production of The Crazy Quilt Club September 29-30 and October 1-2;

• General Federation of Women's Clubs Zeldians in Thief River Falls will receive $7,500 for the creation of an artistic bench to be placed in Elk's Park beside a new fountain along the Riverwalk.

Under the School Residency program, two artists were pre-selected and schools could choose which artist they wanted to sponsor. The schools selected will provide a $300 match and the RDC will support the remaining costs of the five-day residency, which amounts to approximately a $1,200 grant per school.

Schools selected to work with Lisa McGrath to conduct a clay/ceramic residency are Lafayette high school in Red Lake Falls, Fertile/Beltrami school, Climax school, Fosston elementary school, Norman County East school in Gary and Badger school.

Schools selected to work with Jim Rock in a theater tech residency are Greenbush/Middle River high school, Hughes elementary in Red Lake Falls and Fosston high school.

Under the NWRDC/McKnight Individual Artist program, Heather Sabin of Fosston was awarded $710 to complete several mixed media paintings in order to photograph and display them for sale on her website and Robert Lutz of Crookston will receive $750 for the studio production of his original music onto tape and compact disc.

Student Artist grants of $500 each were awarded as follows:

Plummer man pleads guilty in Plummer Pipeline case

Randy Lee Konickson, the vice president of a Plummer excavation company that was burying rocks in a field when an underground pipeline was ruptured, pled guilty Thursday, July 15, in United States District Court.

Konickson pled guilty to violating the Oil Pollution Act, namely, negligently discharging crude oil into waters of the United States in quantities that may be harmful. Konickson entered his plea before Judge John Tunheim in Minneapolis.

Konickson and the company itself, Plummer Excavating, Inc., were charged by a federal grand jury in April. The case against Plummer Excavating is still pending.

This is the first case in the nation under the National One-Call law which requires that any person who engages in an excavation activity must first use an available one-call notification system to establish the location of under Groundbreaking for Phase I of the remodeling and addition to Northland Community and Technical College was conducted Tuesday, July 13, at 11:45 a.m. The college is currently involved in the $5.5 million first phase which will include extensive remodeling and some additional building space. Participating in the groundbreaking (from left) are Jim Whipkey, Department of Administration, building construction; State Rep. Jim Tunheim, Kennedy; Dr. Orley Gunderson, college president; Laura Landin, student senate president, NCTC; Norm Trelbwasser, architect; Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Thief River Falls; and Allen Johnson, MnSCU, facilities division. Phase 2 of the project will require approval of an additional legislative request of $5.4 million.

Ag. Disaster request is denied for NW Minnesota

Like several northwestern Minnesota counties, Pennington county has been hit hard by the agricultural disaster. A disaster declaration had been requested by the Governor before Pennington county had an opportunity to file its request. On Tuesday, July 14, the Pennington county board approved a request for a disaster declaration, and even before the ink on the application was dry, officials learned that the request had been denied.

"Earlier this week," said Sen. Rod Grams, "I had the opportunity to visit northwestern Minnesota to see firsthand the devastation caused by spring flooding and relentless summer rains. That's why I'm disappointed with the Clinton Administration's rejection of a Presidential Disaster Declaration that would bring much-needed relief to the people of Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, and Roseau counties."

"What makes this decision even more troubling," continued Grams, "is that the Administration has already approved similar aid to counties in North Dakota. Following this discouraging announcement, I'll continue to work closely with local officials, Governor Ventura, and the rest of the Minnesota Congressional delegation to ensure that any appeal of this decision is given fair and proper consideration."

Pennington County

Pennington County Commissioners approved a request Tuesday, July 14, to seek a agriculture disaster declaration. The request asks the Governor to petition the secretary of agriculture to declare Pennington County a disaster area.

The county board's declaration was information from a Pennington County Emergency board (Pennington County Farm Service Agency) report issued July 8. The report states that of the 450 farms left in the county and 262,000 acres available for agricultural production, only 60,000 acres are planted to an annual crop this year.

The report states that of the 450 active farms in the county, up to 150 will experience significant changes in the operations due to financial stress. "The changes will occur in three predominant ways: 1) 60 farmers will cease farming and sell their land; 2) 50 farms will cease operation and be rented to other farmers; and 3) 40 farms will be scaled back to only encompass the operator's owned land. Considering that normal turnover is approximately 10 farms per year, it is expected that over 30 percent of active farmers will dramatically scale back or quit farming.

Donation brings Humane Society closer to its goals

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Her lips are sealed... While anyone who is acquainted with Vicki Heckman would agree that she is not what would be described as a quiet person, she has a secret, and she's not telling.

Vicki is the president of the Pennington County Humane Society and recently received a telephone call from an individual who wished to discuss the work of the society and donate $30,000 to the organization with the understanding that he/she would remain anonymous.

The gift will be made in the form of three annual payments, and it is the hope of the donor that others will follow his/her example. Vicki has not shared the name of the potential donor with anyone, not even the society's board of directors.

For Heckman and the others, the name of this generous person is not nearly as important as what the donation will mean to their cause.

The Pennington County Humane Society began with a core group of concerned individuals whose primary mission was work with the City of Thief River Falls in finding homes for the homeless and abandoned animals that ended up at the city's pound facility. The animals at the pound come from Pennington county as well as several other counties that contract for services with the city.

The organization opened a checking account with an initial deposit of $44. Limited funds, however, did not keep members from concentrating their efforts on what they were able to do at the time, and the society became actively involved in the placement of animals in the spring of 1998.

Because the amount of time an animal can be held at the pound is limited, foster homes in the Thief River Falls area and as far away as Hallock have been secured for animals who are waiting to be adopted.

While paid membership of the society has grown to include about 150 people, those who are actively working with the animals remains a small group of about 20 caring, dedicated and busy individuals.

Several members volunteer their time at the pound each week, cleaning cages, walking dogs and showing animals. Currently, animals can be viewed at the pound on Wednesdays from 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 to 10 a.m.

Three members make up the society's pound committee and include Deb Fremstad, Maggie Kaste and Dawn Williamson. The committee's duties include returning lost animals to their owners, taking photographs, making posters and working to place animals.

In addition to working with the pound, the organization also receives calls from people who are moving and cannot take their pets with them and others who, for one reason or another, are unable or unwilling to keep their pets.

Deb Fremstad is in charge of returning messages left on the society's answering service and, according to Heckman, spends at least eight hours most days talking on the telephone, discussing animals and coordinating referrals between families who must give up their pets and others who are looking for those types of animals.

Records kept for each animal include the name given to the animal, dates it is brought to the pound, placed in foster care and adopted, the names of those who provide foster care or adopt the pet, health and medical information as well as any distinguishing characteristics that the animal may possess.

In keeping with its mission statement to provide education regarding the humane and ethical treatment of animals, the society has been involved in a number of community education activities. Scott Benson spoke to a small animal class at Lincoln High School and made a presentation about animal safety at Safety Camp in Thief River Falls in June. The society has a monthly spot on KTRF's Coffeetime program, and members are sometimes joined by Dr. Gemma Drees who discusses issues of interest to the society and pet owners.

Publicity and fund raising are other ongoing activities of the group.

Gail Holland is the public relations chair and organized a booth at the Home, Sport and Family show in April. The exposure resulted in the adoption of several animals in foster care, and money was raised through a successful raffle.

[illegible] for the raffles at last year's Pennington County Fair and the home show were donated by area businesses. Local businesses also sponsor many of the advertisements that appear in the Northern Watch

From the moment Pennington County Humane Society members met "Biff," they thought he would make a good nursing home pet because of his easy going nature. As it turned out, Biff was adopted by the Good Samaritan Nursing Home in Warren and has brought joy to many of its residents.

The schools selected will provide a $300 match and the RDC will support the remaining costs of the five-day residency, which amounts to approximately a $1,200 grant per school.

Plummer man pleads guilty in Plummer Pipeline case

Randy Lee Konickson, the vice president of a Plummer excavation company that was burying rocks in a field when an underground pipeline was ruptured, pled guilty Thursday, July 15, in United States District Court.

Konickson pled guilty to violating the Oil Pollution Act, namely, negligently discharging crude oil into waters of the United States in quantities that may be harmful. Konickson entered his plea before Judge John Tunheim in Minneapolis.

Konickson and the company itself, Plummer Excavating, Inc., were charged by a federal grand jury in April. The case against Plummer Excavating is still pending.

This is the first case in the nation under the National One-Call law which requires that any person who engages in an excavation activity must first use an available one-call notification system to establish the location of under

Ag. Disaster request is denied for NW Minnesota

Like several northwestern Minnesota counties, Pennington county has been hit hard by the agricultural disaster. A disaster declaration had been requested by the Governor before Pennington county had an opportunity to file its request. On Tuesday, July 14, the Pennington county board approved a request for a disaster declaration, and even before the ink on the application was dry, officials learned that the request had been denied.

"Earlier this week," said Sen. Rod Grams, "I had the opportunity to visit northwestern Minnesota to see firsthand the devastation caused by spring flooding and relentless summer rains. That's why I'm disappointed with the Clinton Administration's rejection of a Presidential Disaster Declaration that would bring much-needed relief to the people of Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, and Roseau counties."

"What makes this decision even more troubling," continued Grams, "is that the Administration has already approved similar aid to counties in North Dakota. Following this discouraging announcement, I'll continue to work closely with local officials, Governor Ventura, and the rest of the Minnesota Congressional delegation to ensure that any appeal of this decision is given fair and proper consideration."

Pennington County

Pennington County Commissioners approved a request Tuesday, July 14, to seek a agriculture disaster declaration. The request asks the Governor to petition the secretary of agriculture to declare Pennington County a disaster area.

The county board's declaration was information from a Pennington County Emergency board (Pennington County Farm Service Agency) report issued July 8. The report states that of the 450 farms left in the county and 262,000 acres available for agricultural production, only 60,000 acres are planted to an annual crop this year.

The report states that of the 450 active farms in the county, up to 150 will experience significant changes in the operations due to financial stress. "The changes will occur in three predominant ways: 1) 60 farmers will cease farming and sell their land; 2) 50 farms will cease operation and be rented to other farmers; and 3) 40 farms will be scaled back to only encompass the operator's owned land. Considering that normal turnover is approximately 10 farms per year, it is expected that over 30 percent of active farmers will dramatically scale back or quit farming.

Donation brings Humane Society closer to its goals

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Her lips are sealed . . While anyone who is acquainted with Vicki Heckman would agree that she is not what would be described as a quiet person, she has a secret, and she's not telling.

Vicki is the president of the Pennington County Humane Society and recently received a telephone call from an individual who wished to discuss the work of the society and donate $30,000 to the organization with the understanding that he/she would remain anonymous.

The gift will be made in the form of three annual payments, and it is the hope of the donor that others will follow his/her example. Vicki has not shared the name of the potential donor with anyone, not even the society's board of directors.

For Heckman and the others, the name of this generous person is not nearly as important as what the donation will mean to their cause.

The Pennington County Humane Society began with a core group of concerned individuals whose primary mission was work with the City of Thief River Falls in finding homes for the homeless and abandoned animals that ended up at the city's pound facility. The animals at the pound come from Pennington county as well as several other counties that contract for services with the city.

The organization opened a checking account with an initial deposit of $44. Limited funds, however, did not keep members from concentrating their efforts on what they were able to do at the time, and the society became actively involved in the placement of animals in the spring of 1998.

Because the amount of time an animal can be held at the pound is limited, foster homes in the Thief River Falls area and as far away as Hallock have been secured for animals who are waiting to be adopted.

While paid membership of the society has grown to include about 150 people, those who are actively working with the animals remains a small group of about 20 caring, dedicated and busy individuals.

Several members volunteer their time at the pound each week, cleaning cages, walking dogs and showing animals. Currently, animals can be viewed at the pound on Wednesdays from 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 to 10 a.m.

Three members make up the society's pound committee and include Deb Fremstad, Maggie Kaste and Dawn Williamson. The committee's duties include returning lost animals to their owners, taking photographs, making posters and working to place animals.

In addition to working with the pound, the organization also receives calls from people who are moving and cannot take their pets with them and others who for one reason or another, are unable or unwilling to keep their pets.

Deb Fremstad is in charge of returning messages left on the society's answering service and, according to Heckman, spends at least eight hours most days talking on the telephone, discussing animals and coordinating referrals between families who must give up their pets and others who are looking for those types of animals.

Records kept for each animal include the name given to the animal, dates it is brought to the pound, placed in foster care and adopted, the names of those who provide foster care or adopt the pet, health and medical information as well as any distinguishing characteristics that the animal may possess.

In keeping with its mission statement to provide education regarding the humane and ethical treatment of animals, the society has been involved in a number of community education activities. Scott Bentson spoke to a small animal class at Lincoln High School and made a presentation about animal safety at Safety Camp in Thief River Falls in June. The society has a monthly spot on KTRF's Coffeetime program, and members are sometimes joined by Dr. Gemma Drees who discusses issues of interest to the society and pet owners.

Publicity and fund raising are other ongoing activities of the group.

Gail Holland is the public relations chair and organized a booth at the Home, Sport and Family show in April. The exposure resulted in the adoption of several animals in foster care, and money was raised through a successful raffle.

Prizes for the raffles at last year's Pennington County Fair and the home show were donated by area businesses. Local businesses also sponsor many of the advertisements that appear in the Northern Watch

From the moment Pennington County Humane Society members met "Biff," they thought he would make a good nursing home pet because of his easy going nature. As it turned out, Biff was adopted by the Good Samaritan Nursing Home in Warren and has brought joy to many of its residents.

Polk County Mounted Posse helps at fair

Fertile- Polk County Mounted Posse assisted law enforcement personnel last week at the Polk County Fair in Fertile.

The volunteer non-profit organization operates under the direction of the Polk County Sheriff's office with search and rescue as one of its main functions.

The posse has 20 members and has been involved in continuous training. Funds for the organization are raised through donations and the sale of hand-tied halters made by its members.

Since becoming active about eight months ago, the group has participated in a half dozen searches. In addition to those duties, the posse also devotes time to community service, fund raising, parades and horsemanship. Fertile Journal

Sherry LaCoursiere

Everyone will be husy at the fair next week. Here are some treats you can have on hand for everyone when they come home – if they should happen to still be a little bit hungry.

These yummy bars are just like pecan pie, but you can use walnuts if you don't have pecans on hand:

PECAN DREAMS

First Layer
1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup powdered sugar
1 cup minus 2 tablespoons flour
Second Layer
2 eggs
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1 1/2 cups packed brown sugar
1 cup coarsely chopped pecans

To make first layer, combine butter, sugar and flour, mixing until well blended. Pat mixture into ungreased 9x13 inch pan.

For second layer, beat eggs lightly in small bowl. Sift flour and baking powder and add with brown sugar to eggs. Mix smooth. Stir in pecans. Spread over first layer.

Bake at 375 degrees for 30-40 minutes, until golden brown and set. Cool and cut.

Easy to make, but just the thing for a quick chocolate fix:

GRAHAM CRACKER BROWNIES

1 (14 ounce) can sweetened condensed milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 (6 ounce) package semi sweet chocolate chips
1 cup coarsely chopped nuts
2 cups graham cracker crumbs (24 2-inch crackers)

Butter bottom and sides of 8 inch square baking pan very well.

In large bowl, mix condensed milk, vanilla and salt. Stir in chips, nuts and crumbs, mixing until well blended. (Dough is very stiff.)

Place dough in prepared pan and use hands to pat into even layer. Bake at 350 degrees (325 if glass pan) for 20-25 minutes. Let cool to room temperature before cutting.

Why buy chocolate cookie dough when anyone can whip up one of these giants in a minute – and it's so good fresh from the oven:

SUPER CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIE

1/4 cup white sugar
1/3 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup softened butter
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/3 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped nuts
3/4 cup chocolate chips

In large bowl with an electric mixer, cream sugars and butter on high until light. Beat in egg and vanilla. On low speed, add flour, soda and salt, mixing well. Fold in nuts and chocolate chips.

Spread dough on greased 12 or 13 inch round pizza pan and bake at 350 degrees for 15-18 minutes or until lightly browned. DO NOT OVERBAKE. Cool, then slice into wedges or bars or just break off pieces if you can't take the time to cut.

Try to let this one age a couple of days, because it will be that much better if you do – make the big chocolate cookie for eating right away and tuck this one in the corner for tomorrow or the next day:

BUTTERSCOTCH DATE BARS

1/3 cup butter, softened
3/4 cup white sugar
2 eggs
1/3 cup butterscotch ice cream topping
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup chopped nuts
Powdered sugar

Combine butter and sugar. Beat in eggs, butterscotch topping and vanilla. Add flour, soda and salt, mixing well. Fold in chopped dates and nuts.

Pour mixture in greased 9 inch square pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool before cutting.

Squares may be tossed in powdered sugar. They are best if aged in airtight container or bag for a couple of days before eating, if you can wait.

These bars are like candy and a very special treat for some Canadians at Christmas time:

NANAIMO BARS

Crust:
1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup sugar
5 tablespoons cocoa
1 3/4 cups graham cracker crumbs (1 wrapped package)
1/2 cup chopped almonds or walnuts
1 cup coconut
1 egg
Second Layer:
1/2 cup softened butter
2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons whipping cream, not whipped (or flavored liquid coffee creamer)
2 cups powdered sugar
Top Layer:
4 ounces chocolate chips
2 tablespoons butter

To make crust, combine butter, sugar, egg and cocoa in double boiler. Place over boiling water and stir until mixture resembles a custard. Remove from heat and add crumbs, coconut and nuts. Spread in buttered 9x13 inch pan. Press down and refrigerate.

For second layer combine butter with cream and powdered sugar. Amaretto flavored liquid coffee creamer may be used instead of whipping cream. Spread over cooled crust.

To make topping, melt chips and butter together, blending smooth. Spread over top. Chill. Store in refrigerator.

Thirty-three Minnesota National Guardsmen from Company B 2/136th Infantry Mechanized in Thief River Falls and Crookston recently returned from SIMNET training at Fort Knox, KY. The guardsmen spent a full week receiving training in a Bradley vehicle simulator. The simulator, which is used as a training device, brought the operators in contact with enemy and recorded the results. One of the participants said it was excellent training. The temperatures were warmer than the guardsmen were used to, however. The guardsmen are pictured disembarking from a troop transport at the Regional Airport in Thief River Falls.

ground pipelines in the excavation area.

Konickson admitted in court that he ordered an employee to bury rocks in a field adjacent to Plummer Excavating's facility. He admitted that he knew the field contained buried pipelines, yet he failed to obtain a One-Call excavation ticket prior to digging. When the company employee struck a crude oil pipeline with a backhoe, Konickson failed to notify the appropriate law enforcement and pipeline authorities.

The pipeline ruptured as a result of a gash and caused nearly 5,200 barrels of 218,000 gallons of crude oil to spill into the field and eventually into a county drainage ditch that flows into the Clearwater River. As a result of the crude oil leak and corresponding noxious fumes and fire hazards, authorities evacuated the town of Plummer.

Konickson faces a maximum potential penalty of one year in prison and/or a $100,000 fine. The actual sentence will be determined by Judge Tunheim based on the federal sentencing guidelines. A sentencing date is expected in eight to 10 weeks.

The case is the result of an investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency - Criminal Investigation Division, the U.S. Department of Transportation, the Minnesota Office of Pipeline Safety and the Red Lake County Sheriff's department. Assistant United States Attorney R.J. Zayed prosecuted the case.

Bar Association helps students in public interest law

Fourteenth District Bar Association, a voluntary organization of attorneys in the eight northwest Minnesota counties of Kittson, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau, has made a $1,000 grant to the Loan Repayment Assistance Program of Minnesota (LRAP-MN).

Kent Harbison, volunteer president of the LRAP board of directors, expressed gratitude of the board and of LRAP's grantees. "This generous contribution has helped LRAP to continue assisting in providing a broad range of legal services to disadvantaged Minnesotans," he said.

The Loan Repayment Assistance Program helps recent graduates of Minnesota's three law schools who have chosen to work in public interest law. Because law school tuition has increased 300 percent since 1990 and public interest positions can provide only limited salaries, many graduates who go to law school in order to practice public interest law find that their educational debts prevent them from doing so, Harbison said.

The average educational debt of LRAP's 1999 grantees is $60,000. Without the help of LRAP in repaying educational loans, many could not do the public service legal work they had dreamed of when deciding on law as a career, the president added.

LRAP grantees have served Minnesotans in financial distress all over the state of Minnesota, including Thief River Falls, Red Lake, Warroad and the White Earth areas.

A Game of Percentages

Al Linder, king of all modern statistical fishing significance, once suggested that "you can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time."

Some ascribe this wisdom to Abe Lincoln, our 16th President, and the confusion is understandable. The line was apparently found carved into the soft wooden exterior of an old midwestern school desk with the initials "A.L." scratched underneath.

The assumption was made that it had to have come from Honest Abe because of the line's obvious political wisdom. It has been verified recently, however, that what appears as insightful campaign strategy is actually a money-wise synopsis of the earliest Lindy Rig marketing strategies etched into that desktop with a broken tipped Normark fillet knife.

Another of Al's statistical perceptions concerns the mid-summer patterns of lake walleyes. He claims that in a given body of water (Lake of the Woods, for instance) roughly 70 percent of a walleye population is of a schooling nature and the other 30 percent pursue their existence in a more solitary fashion. Naturally, when faced with optimal weather and other related fishing patterns, an angler will want to pursue the schooling fish. The reward potential on a numbers basis is far greater.

However, when confronted with some of the more common restrictions of July/August fishing (e.g. big winds, the threat of thunderstorms, a passionate distaste for the snagginess of bait-fishing a reef, or simply the basic human need to fish near shore), Linder's observations offer much-needed encouragement.

What I'm getting at in a long-winded, somewhat verbose fashion, can be summed up far more plainly. As a matter of fact, those unadorned words may have been Linder's original offering: "There are always some fish in the weeds."

Once again, 70 percent of those fish follow what we like to believe are traditional walleye patterns. Mid-summer moves those more socialized fish and their schooling brethren deeper into the lake basin. Water temperature, forage and oxygen levels all play a role. When you locate one walleye, you can generally expect more. Standard schooling behavior.

"Weed" walleyes, on the other hand, tend to be less nomadic and more singular in their habits. When the mass exodus from the shallows occurs in late June, these loners remain behind, content to tough it out in the rapidly growing foliage, surviving on a varied diet of just about anything that may happen by. Minnows, frogs, crawfish, leeches, insects and even snails become fair game. Feeding is aggressive and non-discerning.

The "catching" process is an exacting, often painstaking, yet thoroughly enjoyable process. In the murkiness of Lake of the Woods, weedlines are defined by depth. Sunlight can reach down only so far through the turbid waters to promote the growth of vegetation. The further north one fishes, the clearer the water becomes and, hence, the deeper the weedline.

Just for a reference point, the weedline around Oak Island, about halfway across the lake, is normally at nine feet. Exactly nine feet. Not 8.5 feet and not 9.75 feet but nine feet. The specific nature of the weed growth creates a virtual wall, and it's along this edge that you want to fish.

If you're perfectly positioned along that edge, the pole fishing the inside will constantly be picking off weeds and the pole on the outside will be catching fewer fish than the pole on the inside. In short, you know you're fishing that edge properly if everyone is complaining.

Now, not all weeds are created equal. Some hold fish and some don't. Pump up the weight of your sinker and cover ground. You might pass along the edge of a quarter mile of weeds between fish. Some weeds are just better than others and you've got to remember that you're fishing for 30 percent of the walleyes now instead of 70 percent. The up side is that these fish tend to be larger on average and hit more aggressively. There's also the added bonus of variety as northerns, bass and perch tend to fill in the gaps between walleyes.

And when you've covered a weedline thoroughly, picking up the active fish that have positioned themselves in ambush points along the outside edge, slap on some quarter ounce jigs, pull up the outboard, and drift through the very middle of the mess. Less active walleyes will hang reluctantly back in the shallower slop, but can be coaxed into picking up a patiently offered bait.

The approach is similar to the largemouth bass technique known as "flipping" where a jig is suspended from six feet of monofilament, placed in specific holes in the weedbed, wiggled a time or two, then pulled out and placed in the next open pocket in the vegetation. It may sound tedious, but anybody who says walleyes aren't good fighting fish hasn't had to battle a four-pounder on six pound test in four feet of weed-choked water.

To summarize, you'll spend 70 percent of your fishing time trying to fool all of the fish when really you'll only be duping a small percentage of the 30 percent that you're actually pursuing.

Sometimes you'll catch some of the fish and sometimes you'll catch none of the fish, but most certainly you'll never catch all of the fish although it'll be fun all of the time. Honest. Ask Al or Abe.

MDA announces grants for dairy diagnostic teams

Minnesota Department of Agriculture has announced the availability of $190,000 in grants for dairy diagnostic teams. The funds may be used by the dairy diagnostic teams during the period through June 30, 2000.

The purpose of these grants is to establish an educational delivery team that will provide new technologies and information applicable to small and medium-sized dairy farms throughout the state as a means to enhance the financial success and long-term sustainability of Minnesota dairy farms.

Diagnostic teams work with farmers to help them adopt new practices and technologies that will help the farm become more sustainable. Examples of these practices include rotational grazing and other sustainable agricultural methods. The teams typically include agricultural educators, extension specialists and industry representatives.

Ag Commissioner Gene Hugoson said the state's dairy diagnostic programs are an example of the type of creative problem solving Minnesota will need to demonstrate if it is to remain a dairy-producing powerhouse in the 21st century.

"The program is really about helping farmers see their strengths and helping determine adjustments they can make to get where they want to be," Commissioner Hugoson said. "Producers are always searching for ways to improve their operation to keep pace with the industry, and the diagnostic teams are a wonderful tool for them in this effort."

The programs are run by non-profit organizations, with funding from the state by way of the MDA. The program is targeted at small and medium-sized dairy farmers, who have been dropping out of business at a rate of nearly three a day due to ongoing economic difficulties in the industry. As a result, MDA will give preference to organizations whose grant proposals are aimed at assisting small and medium-sized farmers. Programs with low administrative costs relative to services delivered to farmers are also favored.

For a grant application contact Katy Kulesa, MDA Planning Grants Analyst at 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55107, or call her at 651-215-3946. Faxes may be sent to 651-297-5176. All grant applications must be received by no later than 4:30 p.m. on August 20, 1999.

More Guns, Less Crime; Statistics Offer Proof

"Bad things can happen with guns, but guns can also prevent bad things from happening.... Sixteen national surveys—from organizations like the Los Angeles Times, CNN, Gallup and Peter Hart and Associates, as well as several universities—indicate that at least two million times a year, people use guns defensively to prevent crime. Those incidents are rarely discussed.

"Instances of mothers using guns to prevent their children from being kidnapped by carjackers seldom make even the local news. Public shootings or bombings that are stopped before they happen are frequently ignored....It is much more newsworthy if somebody is killed or badly harmed than if a woman brandishes a gun and a would-be attacker runs away. But both the crimes that are avoided and those that come to fruition must be taken into account in making policy."

These statements were made by researcher John Lott Jr. in a talk at a forum sponsored by Center of the American Experiment in Minneapolis.

John Lott Jr. teaches criminal deterrence and law and economics at the University of Chicago. He has held positions at Stanford, UCLA, Rice and the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania and was chief economist at the United States Sentencing Commission in 1988 and 1989.

Statistics compiled by Lott have caused him to determine that there are several myths which needlessly frighten people and prevent them from using the most effective means for defending themselves and their families.

Conventional advice is that passive behavior is the safest course for people who are attacked. Lott shows statistically that the safest course of action for either a woman or man confronted by a criminal is to brandish a gun. Women who behave passively are 2.5 times more likely to end up being seriously injured than women who resist a criminal confrontation with a gun. For men, the rate is 1.4 times.

Friends or relatives are listed as the most likely killers in murder cases. Lott says that the FBI lists gang murders, murders between drug buyers and drug sellers, murders of cab drivers by passengers and murders between prostitutes and pimps as "acquaintance murders."

Gun control advocates blame the murder rate in the United States on the large number of guns owned by Americans, but Lott finds no real international relationship. Many countries, including Switzerland, New Zealand, Finland and Norway—have gun ownership rates similar to the United States, but have low murder rates. Israel probably has one of the highest gun possession rates in the world, yet its murder rate is about 0 percent below Canada's low rate.

Family guns are claimed to be more likely to kill you or someone you know than to kill in self defense. But when relatives of people who have been killed by a gun are asked whether that person owned a gun, they aren't asked whether that was the gun that was used in the killing. Surveys assume that it was. When people have gone back and looked at that, they have found that, at most, about four percent of those murders could actually be attributed to the gun that was in the home.

Regarding accidental deaths from family firearms, there were 200 such deaths among children under the age of 15 in the United States in 1996. For children under the age of five, there were 30. If only handguns are considered, the number is in the low teens each year. While any accidental death is a tragedy, compared to other risks that exist in the home, the accident rate for guns is trivial.

"About 80 million people in the U.S. own between 200 million and 240 million guns," Lott says. "it is hard to think of any other item in the home that is anywhere near as prevalent and anywhere near as dangerous that has such a low accident rate. Children under the age of five are more likely to drown in water buckets or die in fires that they themselves start with cigarette lighters.

"....it is puzzling to me why there is so much coverage of this one type of accidental death when others are so much more frequent....We realize that we could end the 950 drownings that occur each year if we banned pools for children under the age of 15, but we opt for the pools.

"Accidental gun deaths represent a real cost, but you also allow parents to protect their families. When you look at both sides, you find a net gain: guns save many more children's lives than they cost."

Lott also has found that increasing the number of permits to carry concealed handguns has substantially reduced violent crime. Only seven states do not allow citizens to carry concealed handguns. Thirty-one states have "shall-issue" laws, whereby permits must be issued to citizens who meet certain qualifying criteria and pay the fee. Twelve states, including Minnesota, have "may-issue" laws where applicants must demonstrate a legitimate need to a public official who then subjectively determines who qualifies for a permit.

Opponents of concealed carry laws fear use of the guns in the heat of anger, such as after a traffic accident. Lott says that several million people now have permits to carry guns and some states have allowed residents to carry guns for as long as 60 years. Despite all those millions of people with permits and all the years that the laws have been in effect, there is only one recorded case in which someone actually fired a permit-concealed handgun after a traffic accident.

That incident happened in January of 1996 in Texas when two pickup trucks sideswiped each other. One of the drivers got out and started pummeling the other through the open window of his vehicle—detaching his left retina, fracturing his cheekbone and breaking his jaw. When the attacker attempted to pull him through the open window, the person being attacked pulled out his permit-concealed handgun and fired it at the attacker.

There has also never been an instance in which the owner of a permit-concealed handgun has killed a police officer, but there are a couple dozen cases where officers say they would not be alive today had it not been for the assistance of a person with a permit-concealed handgun.

Lott says that his research has found that by far the most important factors affecting crime rates over time are higher arrest and conviction rates. But the police virtually always arrive after a crime has been committed. What should victims do when they have to confront would-be criminals by themselves?

Among the different types of "gun control" laws, the only one with any statistically supported beneficial impact was the "right to carry" law. States that issued the most permits had the biggest drops in violent crimes; over time, as more permits were issued, there were further drops in violent crime. This supports the contention that the probability that victims can defend themselves raises the risk of committing crime for criminals.

Lott's study looks at crime data for all 3,054 counties in the United States from 1977 through the end of 1994.

"Women benefit much more from concealed handguns than men," Lott said. "Women benefit for a very simple reason: when a criminal— typically a man—attacks a woman, there is a large strength differential. The presence of a gun represents a much bigger change in her ability to defend herself than it does for a man."

(Further information from Lott's presentation will be included in the editorials in the next issue of the Northern Watch.)

LETTERS

Dear Human:

My name is "Ten Pin." I'm five months old and I have a problem. When I take my master for a walk, he makes me wait at a marked crossing and then makes me run across the street so as not to hold up traffic.

Most humans in town respect our right-of-way, but on three occasions last week a middle-aged woman, a middle-aged man and a teenage girl just about ran us down when we were in the crosswalk after leaving the sidewalk as soon as the light indicated go!

I've got a long time to live and to help out and I refer any drivers who may have forgotten to page 116 of the Minnesota Driver's Manual.

Thank-you.
"Ten Pin"

Donations sought to finish moose research project

The tragic, June 11 plane crash that took the life of moose researcher Eric Cox and Grant Coyour, a Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Conservation officer/pilot, also left three year's worth of field work unfinished in an important moose research project in northwest Minnesota. The parents of both men have recently established a fund to raise money to help finish the project as a memorial to their sons.

The two families, along with the Minnesota DNR, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the universities of Idaho and Massachusetts, where Cox studied, are launching the "Eric Cox and Grant Coyour Memorial Fund for Moose Research."

Individuals and organizations interested in donating to the fund should make their contributions payable to: The Eric Cox and Grant Coyour Memorial Fund for Moose Research, in care of The University of Idaho, Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Moscow, Idaho 83844.

The moose research project began in 1996 with the goal of discovering why the moose population in northwestern Minnesota began steadily declining in the early 1990s. Data on approximately 150 radio- and satellite-collared moose was being gathered and analyzed by Cox in preparation for a final report that was to be his doctoral dissertation for a Ph.D. in wildlife science from the University of Idaho.

"The research was studying factors involving both high mortality and low reproductive rates," explained Scott Laudenslager, assistant DNR wildlife manager at Norris Camp, headquarters of the Red Lake Wildlife Management Area (WMA). "Some answers were beginning to surface, but there was much more work to be done before any 'cause and effect' conclusions could be supported scientifically."

According to Laudenslager, the project is seeking donations to the memorial fund to help cover additional research expenses and to hire a post-doctoral researcher to analyze the data and finish the report.

"The research is too far along to bring in another post-grad student," explained Laudenslager. "No other student could legitimately pick up where Eric Cox left off and feel that they'd earned a degree with their own project.

"At the same time, we need someone with a Ph.D. level of wildlife knowledge and research expertise to finish the project," said Laudenslager. "Any wildlife management decisions we make in the future need to be based on solid scientific data and professional analysis of the work that Eric started."

Much additional information could still be gathered from the field, especially on moose mortality. Batteries in the collars of the most recently collared moose could last another two years or more. In addition to tracking the location and movement of live moose, the collars give off a special signal whenever a lack of movement indicates a moose has died.

"Some of the project's most valuable information has come from the examination of deceased moose," explained Laudenslager. "It would be very helpful to find and examine additional moose, to analyze their general condition, take blood and tissue samples, and determine the cause of death."

Project managers estimate it will take between one and two years to finish the research, analyze the data and produce a report. For more information about the moose research project or the memorial fund, contact Gretchen Mehmel or Scott Laudenslager at the DNR Red Lake WMA, Box 100, Roosevelt, MN 56673, or call 218-783-6861.

MDA seeks applicants for new position

Minnesota Department of Agriculture has announced that it is seeking qualified applicants to fill a Risk Management Specialist position, as authorized by the 1999 Minnesota legislature to help agricultural producers analyze risks related to farming today.

The position would provide and coordinate delivery of risk management services to Minnesota farmers. The specialist will work with farmers to analyze risks related to production, marketing, financing, and agricultural contracts. Emphasis will be on delivery of services for agricultural contracts, marketing and dispute resolution.

MDA Assistant Commissioner Perry Aasness said that farmers face difficulties today that are very different from past years. Federal farm policy and the changing marketplace in today's agricultural industry require producers to actively manage risks related to production, marketing and financing.

"Farmers are saying that they can't endure more adversity and are seeking ways to reduce risk," Assistant Commissioner Perry Aasness said. "Farmers today face uncertainty related to crop and livestock production, commodity markets, financing, and legal issues."

The position will also offer advisory services to processors regarding Minnesota laws. In addition, the specialist will educate farmers on the protections they have under Minnesota law, investigate complaints between producers and processors, and coordinate dispute resolution services.

Qualified applicants should send a resume to: Minnesota Department of Agriculture, Attention: Perry Aasness, 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55107 or call 651-297-3219. Applications will be accepted through Friday, July 30, 1999.

Josh Olson picks up all-star game honors

■ Legion contest is played in TRF

Josh Olson of Roseau began the night by winning the home run hitting contest and ended it by being named the most valuable player in Wednesday's Tony Sipe American Legion all-star baseball game played at Irv Wilson Field.

A good-size crowd turned out on a near-perfect night to watch the collection of 18-year-olds who are finishing their senior year of American Legion baseball this summer. The North, with players from Thief River Falls, Roseau, Greenbush, Warroad, and Fosston, beat the South, featuring players from East Grand Forks, Fertile, Ada, Twin Valley/Ulen-Hitterdal, Red Lake Falls, Crookston, and Winger, 8-6.

The North didn't get on the scoreboard until the bottom of the sixth inning when Olson showed that winning the pre-game home run contest was no fluke with a three-run opposite field homer that erased a 3-0 South lead. The inning started with a single to left by Warroad's David Berry and a walk issued to Thief River Falls' Andrew Salem before Olson deposited a 3-1 pitch from Crookston's Chito Longoria over the 315-foot marker down the left field line.

Thief River Falls' Joey Pribula bounced a one-out single into left field and, after a pair of walks, a sacrifice fly by Thief River Falls teammate Ben Stechman produced the go-ahead run before the sixth came to a close.

The South had opened the scoring on a two-run fourth inning home run to left by East Grand Forks' Scott Johnson off Fosston's Brad Duerr. It became 3-0 in the top of the sixth when three walks and an error – all with two out – brought home a run on a full-count, bases-loaded walk issued to Aaron Seykora of Twin Valley/Ulen-Hitterdal.

Matt Hargeshimer of Fertile beat out an infield single to open the South seventh and scored on a two-out single by the middle by Pete Wang of Winger for a short-lived 4-4 tie.

The North won it in the next half inning when Berry had a lead-off double to left and Olson's towering fly ball disappeared into the black sky and fell behind the right fielder for an RBI triple. Justin Merriman of Warroad drove in a run on a fielder's choice, and a double to center by Thief River Falls' Jeff Rislov made it 7-4.

Nick Wilcox of Thief River Falls drew a lead-off walk in the eighth inning, advanced on a wild pitch and fly-out, then scored on an error as the North extended its lead to 8-4.

Final runs crossed the plate in the South ninth when East Grand Forks' Ben Horken bounced a two-out, two-run single into center field.

■ Game notes. Thief River Falls Post 117 Color Guard was on hand for the national anthem...Coaches were allowed some liberty with their substitutions to ensure everyone had ample opportunity to play...The South used seven different pitchers, the North used six...Best defensive plays of the night were turned in by Pribula, who made two pop-foul catches against the screen behind the plate, and Rislov, who made a long run and a diving catch on Red Lake Falls' Mark Lorenson in left field to open the ninth inning...Mike Wienen of Thief River Falls, Darrell Stromlund of Roseau and Aaron Pesek of Greenbush were the North coaches. Shane Zutz of Red Lake Falls and Steve Gust of East Grand Forks coached the South...MVP award was based on a vote by the four-man umpire crew that included Chris Mills, Roger Cota, Mike Drury and Chris Etta of Thief River Falls.

A play at the plate in the fifth inning of Wednesday's Tony Sipe American Legion all-star baseball game played at Irv Wilson Field found South base runner Matt Horgeshimer (Fertile) being tagged out by North catcher Joey Pribula (Thief River Falls) when Horgeshimer tried to score from second base on a two-out infield single. The North beat the South 8-6 in a nine-inning match-up.

USS program goes year-round

by Sports Editor Mike Lundgren

Competitive swimming program has been part of Thief River Falls' summer sports scene in the past, with participants joining the high school teams when practice began in the fall for girls and winter for boys.

But the Prowlers are now sharing the Franklin Middle School pool with the Tigersharks, Thief River Falls' year-round United States Swimming program. Swimmers no longer have to site and await the start of the high school programs for girls in the fall and boys in the winter.

Expansion of the Thief River Falls USS program is an opportunity to keep swimmers involved in the sport, explained Mary Helen Houlihan, the Tigersharks' coach and one of the principals behind the idea of providing a year-round program. Those swimming at the high school level use USS as a preparation tool, and the younger swimmers are able to continue working in a familiar environment.

"During the high school seasons we share the pool, but we don't share practice times," explained Houlihan, who was involved in a year-round swimming program in Kansas City before moving to Thief River Falls a year ago.

Houlihan's children were used to swimming year-round, an option that wasn't available when they arrived here.

With the completion of the 1998 spring/summer program, Houlihan asked when the fall/winter season began. Response, she recalled, was laugher. No coach, no program.

Houlihan wanted to see if that could be changed. It started with a fall sign-up to gauge interest. Thirty registered – a larger-than-anticipated turnout for program officials. Most of the participants were fifth grade or younger. That figure jumped to 48 this spring and currently numbers about 65 swimmers ages 6-17.

"There are a lot of kids in the pool," noted Houlihan, who is being assisted by Chris Pribula and Wendy Lindquist.

Long course program utilized by USS during the spring and summer features competition measured in meters, mostly in outdoor pools. It ends with state meet competition when Thief River Falls and other northwestern Minnesota programs swim in the North Dakota state championships, scheduled to be held July 31-Aug. 1 this year at the UND Hyslop Sports Center in Grand Forks.

In the fall and winter, USS uses an indoor short course program that measures distances in yards. Thief River Falls swimmers who qualified for the 1999 state meet in April included Zach Olson, Sam Kezar, Aaron Field, Rory Hoven, and Danica Schroeder.

There is a short break between the USS short and long course seasons.

Summer practice sessions are held from 7 to 9 a.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m. There are meets scheduled throughout the region most weekends.

"Unlike high school, it's not a requirement to be at all practices or to participate in all the meets," explained Houlihan. "It's up to the kids. We encourage them to come, of course. Once they get in the pool, they're usually hooked. They want to come."

The program is sponsored by the Thief River Falls Swim Club, a booster program designed to support the sport at all age levels in the community.

Practices are geared toward the various ages and ability levels. There is a developmental lane for the newcomers, lanes for a second tier of swimmers who might cover 3,000 to 4,000 yards during a two-hour sessions, and lanes for the advanced participants who swim 3,500 to 5,000 yards.

It's a challenge, acknowledged Houlihan, to work with such a diverse group. Some are recreational swimmers; others are extremely competitive. "We want our kids to have fun," she said. "We want them to learn to compete and to feel good about themselves."

Individual success is a goal, but the team concept is stressed even more, according to Houlihan. Those who turn in top times are to be recognized, but improvement by the overall squad receives equal billing. The kids have made some unbelievable progress," she said. "We had 30 DQ's (disqualifications for false starts, improper strokes, etc.) in our first meet this summer. We had none in our last meet."

Thief River Falls' summer schedule has included trips to Roseau, Crookston and Grand Forks. The large Fargo Island Park Invitational was planned this weekend. A regional meet that will attract over 100 swimmers is scheduled July 24 in Thief River Falls.

Area state parks will be offering a shorter season for campers

Twenty Minnesota state parks will not be able to offer camping after Labor Day this year and before Memorial Day next year, according to the Department of Natural Resources Parks and Recreation Division. These parks, like the balance of the other state parks in the system, will, however, be open all year and will continue to offer day services to their customers.

"For Minnesota state parks, the budget increase received in May from the Legislature was good news," said to Bill Morrissey, DNR Parks and Recreation Division director. "Unfortunately, the addition to the budget couldn't buy a big enough band-aid for our park system that's been struggling for the past five years to keep parks operating at acceptable levels. Each year we continue to serve more and more visitors. Along with increased numbers of visitors, comes the increased cost of handling the impact those visitors have on park facilities and resources."

"Inflation, a major increase in health insurance costs, and other unfunded liabilities cut the heart out of the increase we received from the Legislature," Morrissey said. "Despite holding staff vacancies open and other budget cuts, we have come up short."

The 20 parks that will have no camping after Labor Day of 1999 and before Memorial Day of 2000 include Hayes Lake, Old Mill and Zippel Bay in northwestern Minnesota, along with Beaver Creek Valley, Big Stone Lake, Carley, Charles A. Lindbergh, George Crosby Manitou, Glacial Lakes, Great River Bluffs, Judge C.R. Magney, Kilen Woods, Lake Louise, Lake Maria, Monson Lake, Moose Lake, Rice Lake, Schoolcraft, Split Rock Creek, and Upper Sioux Agency.

Morrissey said that day visitors make up the bulk of Minnesota state parks annual customers. He noted that campers account for about 10-15 percent of the customer base.

"We operate 70 state parks and recreation areas, eight waysides, and one state trail on a $25 million annual operating budget," Morrissey said. "Just considering full-time personnel, we have fewer than three full-time staff per park – one of the leanest park systems anywhere."

Morrissey noted that the DNR will continue to explore funding options or fee structures that might enable the park system to restore services in the affected parks next year.

All parks will remain open year-round, as in the past, and the majority of park customers will see no interruption of services. Although some customers who hoped to camp after Labor Day at one of the 20 affected parks will have to change their plans, state parks should be able to accommodate these campers at the other parks that will continue to offer camping year-round. Attempts are underway to contact campers who have already made post Labor Day reservations at any of the 20 parks.

Campers who have reservation questions may call the DNR Information Center at 1-888-MINNDNR. Customers may call the state park reservation service, The Connection, at 1-800-246-2267. TTY number for The Connection are is 1-800-334-7413.

Northland offers 3-plus-1 degree with Bemidji SU

In conjunction with Bemidji State University, Northland Community and Technical College will offer a bachelor of science degree in business administration.

Students pursuing this degree will complete the first three years at Northland and the fourth year at BSU. A total of 85 semester credits must be completed at Northland before transferring to Bemidji State.

Once the necessary credits have been completed at Northland, the student would complete 43 semester credits of upper division business classes at BSU to earn the degree, according to Gajen Romanathan, Northland business department director.

"This is a great opportunity for northwestern Minnesota students who want a degree in business," Ramanathan said. "They will be able to take advantage of the smaller classes at Northland for three years instead of the usual two years offered by most two-year colleges."

Persons interested in this offering or who have questions regarding the three-plus-one program are encouraged to contact the business department at NCTC at 681-0749 or 1-800-959-6282.

Humane Society donation

each week. These ads have been found to be the best way of letting the public know about animals available through the society. Other businesses that carry pet food and supplies have donated various items to the organization.

Board member Dawn Williamson has recently applied for a number of grants from organizations and foundations who donate supplies and funds to humane societies. To date, a number of product donations have been received.

The Pennington County Humane Society is also a beneficiary of a percentage of the sales of Thief River Linen's Patrick of Pennington line of home decorating accessories.

Some of the funds raised by the society are used for the shots and medical treatment that any pet requires as well as spaying or neutering. Those who adopt the pets are asked to reimburse the society for these costs "if they are able," Heckman says.

As the humane society has operated, relationships have developed, and Heckman and her board are pleased with the cooperative spirit that exists between the volunteer organization and local law enforcement officers. Heckman also notes that area veterinarians have been very attentive to the society's needs.

The humane society's ultimate goal is to build a shelter for homeless animals and eventually hopes to construct a building on a couple of acres close to Thief River Falls. The structure will house animals in a safe and disease-free atmosphere with isolation areas for new animals and a separate area for puppies. The ideal building would also provide space for offices. A building fund has been established.

The humane society has come a long way in its short time of existence through the tireless efforts of its members and the support of the community, and the acquisition of the recent donation will bring the organization closer to its goals.

In the meantime, there is much that others can do to help the society in its efforts. The organization desperately needs more manpower to keep its core of hard working members from burning out. More foster homes are needed to house homeless animals until they can be adopted, and, of course, financial donations and supplies are always welcome.

The society will have a booth at next week's Pennington County Fair, offering information about the organization, soliciting memberships and raising funds through the raffle of a home theater, pillow and cash prize.

During the time Vicki Heckman spends in the booth at the fair, she may be tight-lipped about the anonymous donor, but she will be more than happy to relate information about the Pennington County Humane Society, its work and goals.

She will also share heartwarming tales about the rescue and adoption of pets and the happiness they have brought to their new owners — the stories that make the efforts of humane society members like herself worthwhile.

Additional option offered for CRP acreage

For 1999 only, farmers with idled acres will be able to perform clean tillage to control weeds throughout the growing season without seeding a cover crop, provided the last tillage operation in the fall is done in a northeast to southwest direction. This will be perpendicular to the prevailing northwest wind and will promote snow cover and mitigate wind erosion.

It is suggested that farmers use either a chisel plow or field cultivator without harrow attachments to complete the final field work. Any tillage with less aggressive ridging action may not be adequate for erosion control and may subject the farmer to further payment reductions, according to Glenn Schafer, county executive director of the FSA office.

"It is important that farmers apply appropriate erosion control methods to their idled acres. This may require the seeding of a cover crop in certain erosion prone fields or areas," Schafer said. "Cover crops are still required on CRP acres that have not been timely seeded."

The option for cultivation on idle acres is only available for 1999.

In late June the Pennington county FSA committee submitted a request to the state FSA committee to have the cover crop requirement waived for 1999.

Ag. Disaster request is denied

"Pennington County has approximately 262,000 acres available for agricultural production, excluding CRP acres. Further excluding approximately 50,000 alfalfa, hay and pasture acres, the county typically plants just over 200,000 acres to annual crops. However, it is estimated that in 1999 only 60,000 acres are planted to an annual crop. The predominant cause of not planting was adverse weather conditions, resulting in widespread crop insurance prevented planting claims. It is estimated that 50 farms were not able to secure financing to operate in 1999. Approximately 50 landlords were not able to find renters in 1999.

"Agriculture is the base of the economy in Pennington County. Consequently, all businesses are beginning to experience the adverse effects of the poor agricultural economy. In general, the county's economy is weakening. To more clearly define the situation, the economy can be divided into five basic sectors: agriculture (service and retail), service (non-ag.), retail, production/manufacturing industry, and government (including health and education).

"The agricultural industry is considered to be very weak, as the county will only generate a fraction of the business in 1999 as compared to a normal production year. Although the impact has not yet been fully felt, businesses are anticipating significant profit losses. Elevators expect grain volume to be very low and are planning lay-offs; implement dealers are experiencing reduced sales and service from lack of equipment use and need; and other input suppliers have already experienced the extremely low sales. Normal employment provided by farmers is also down, as labor is not required for this year's crop production.

"The service sector appears to be stable, but no growth is expected. Reduced sales are anticipated by some businesses due to farm families being on tighter budgets. Population loss is a possibility, which would have a weakening affect on the service industry.

"The retail sector is less stable as compared to the service sector, and the signs of weakening are more apparent. Major retailers, both within the community and in nearby regional centers, easily dominate the smaller retail stores in Pennington county, reducing local commerce.

"The production/manufacturing industry is probably the most stable of all sectors. It provides the most concentrated employment opportunities and does not rely directly on local agriculture for its business. However, companies like Arctic Cut and Digi-Key, as major employers, need a stable community and an able workforce to continue sound operations. Population loss and an eroding infrastructure undermine a company's ability to profit. It is a fear that these major industries will eventually be forced to relocate to stronger economic locations if the farm economy does not improve soon.

"Government officials are also concerned for the continued viability of the municipal and county functions and services. As farmers are lost and agricultural profitability diminished, so is the government's ability to provide basic public services, including human and social services. Economic health of agriculture is the foundation from which local government can facilitate community growth. The erosion of that foundation is apparent, and consequently a serious issue."

Additional Questions:

What is the financial position of the farmers who will continue?
"All producers are experiencing a weakening financial position. Equity has been lost to the point that nearly all farmers in the county have debt in which their assets are heavily encumbered. Refinancing previous years' annual operating debts to term debt is common. Therefore, it will take 3-4 good years for farmers to recover from their current situation. In addition, capital replacement is currently not an option for farmers. Consequently, farmers are burdened with deferred farm improvement costs, which compounds their dilemma and diminishes long-term viability. Farmers have sustained long-term financial damage as a result of the low commodity prices and repeated years of crop disease and adverse weather conditions."

What would most benefit agriculture and the local economy?
"Higher commodity prices are required immediately and need to be sustained long-term. Perhaps an additional disaster payment will be required within the next six months. Locally, more favorable weather conditions are required to re-establish the agricultural productivity in the region. Crop insurance reform is needed so those farmers who have experienced repeated disaster years can purchase adequate production cost coverage. Higher commodity loan rates would be a simple and effective way to stabilize commodity prices; at least to allow lenders to feel more confident in cash flow planning and extending credit."

Available Seat Miles (ASMs) increased 33.7 percent to 216.4 million from 161.8 million in the prior year.

each week. These ads have been found to be the best way of letting the public know about animals available through the society. Other businesses that carry pet food and supplies have donated various items to the organization.

Board member Dawn Williamson has recently applied for a number of grants from organizations and foundations who donate supplies and funds to humane societies. To date, a number of product donations have been received.

The Pennington County Humane Society is also a beneficiary of a percentage of the sales of Thief River Linen's Patrick of Pennington line of home decorating necessories.

Some of the funds raised by the society are used for the shots and medical treatment that any pet requires as well as spaying or neutering. Those who adopt the pets are asked to reimburse the society for these costs "if they are able," Heckman says.

As the humane society has operated, relationships have developed, and Heckman and her board are pleased with the cooperative spirit that exists between the volunteer organization and local law enforcement officers. Heckman also notes that area veterinarians have been very attentive to the society's needs.

The humane society's ultimate goal is to build a shelter for homeless animals and eventually hopes to construct a building on a couple of acres close to Thief River Falls. The structure will house animals in a safe and disease-free atmosphere with isolation areas for new animals and a separate area for puppies. The ideal building would also provide space for offices. A building fund has been established.

The humane society has come a long way in its short time of existence through the tireless efforts of its members and the support of the community, and the acquisition of the recent donation will bring the organization closer to its goals.

In the meantime, there is much that others can do to help the society in its efforts. The organization desperately needs more manpower to keep its core of hard working members from burning out. More foster homes are needed to house homeless animals until they can be adopted, and, of course, financial donations and supplies are always welcome.

The society will have a booth at next week's Pennington County Fair, offering information about the organization, soliciting memberships and raising funds through the raffle of a home theater, pillow and cash prize.

During the time Vicki Heckman spends in the booth at the fair, she may be tight-lipped about the anonymous donor, but she will be more than happy to relate information about the Pennington County Humane Society, its work and goals.

She will also share heartwarming tales about the rescue and adoption of pets and the happiness they have brought to their new owners — the stories that make the efforts of humane society members like herself worthwhile.

Additional option offered for CRP acreage

For 1999 only, farmers with idled acres will be able to perform clean tillage to control weeds throughout the growing season without seeding a cover crop, provided the last tillage operation in the fall is done in a northeast to southwest direction. This will be perpendicular to the prevailing northwest wind and will promote snow cover and mitigate wind erosion.

It is suggested that farmers use either a chisel plow or field cultivator without harrow attachments to complete the final field work. Any tillage with less aggressive ridging action may not be adequate for erosion control and may subject the farmer to further payment reductions, according to Glenn Schafer, county executive director of the FSA office.

"It is important that farmers apply appropriate erosion control methods to their idled acres. This may require the seeding of a cover crop in certain erosion prone fields or areas," Schafer said. "Cover crops are still required on CRP acres that have not been timely seeded."

The option for cultivation on idle acres is only available for 1999.

In late June the Pennington county FSA committee submitted a request to the state FSA committee to have the cover crop requirement waived for 1999.

"Pennington County has approximately 262,000 acres available for agricultural production, excluding CRP acres. Further excluding approximately 50,000 alfalfa, hay and pasture acres, the county typically plants just over 200,000 acres to annual crops. However, it is estimated that in 1999 only 60,000 acres are planted to an annual crop. The predominant cause of not planting was adverse weather conditions, resulting in widespread crop insurance prevented planting claims. It is estimated that 50 farms were not able to secure financing to operate in 1999. Approximately 50 landlords were not able to find renters in 1999.

"Agriculture is the base of the economy in Pennington County. Consequently, all businesses are beginning to experience the adverse affects of the poor agricultural economy. In general, the county's economy is weakening. To more clearly define the situation, the economy can be divided into five basic sectors: agriculture (service and retail), service (non-ag.), retail, production/manufacturing industry, and government (including health and education).

"The agricultural industry is considered to be very weak, as the county will only generate a fraction of the business in 1999 as compared to a normal production year. Although the impact has not yet been fully felt, businesses are anticipating significant profit losses. Elevators expect grain volume to be very low and are planning layoffs; implement dealers are experiencing reduced sales and service from lack of equipment use and need; and other input suppliers have already experienced the extremely low sales. Normal employment provided by farmers is also down, as labor is not required for this year's crop production.

"The service sector appears to be stable, but no growth is expected. Reduced sales are anticipated by some businesses due to farm families being on tighter budgets. Population loss is a possibility, which would have a weakening affect on the service industry.

"The retail sector is less stable as compared to the service sector, and the signs of weakening are more apparent. Major retailers, both within the community and in nearby regional centers, easily dominate the smaller retail stores in Pennington county, reducing local commerce.

"The production/manufacturing industry is probably the most stable of all sectors. It provides the most concentrated employment opportunities and does not rely directly on local agriculture for its business. However, companies like Arctic Cat and Digi-Key, as major employers, need a stable community and an able workforce to continue sound operations. Population loss and an eroding infrastructure undermine a company's ability to profit. It is a fear that these major industries will eventually be forced to relocate to stronger economic locations if the farm economy does not improve soon.

"Government officials are also concerned for the continued viability of the municipal and county functions and services. As farmers are lost and agricultural profitability diminished, so is the government's ability to provide basic public services, including human and social services. Economic health of agriculture is the foundation from which local government can facilitate community growth. The erosion of that foundation is apparent, and consequently a serious issue."

Additional Questions:

What is the financial position of the farmers who will continue?

"All producers are experiencing a weakening financial position. Equity has been lost to the point that nearly all farmers in the county have debt in which their assets are heavily encumbered. Refinancing previous years' annual operating debts to term debt is common. Therefore, it will take 3-4 good years for farmers to recover from their current situation. In addition, capital replacement is currently not an option for farmers. Consequently, farmers are burdened with deferred farm improvement costs, which compounds their dilemma and diminishes long-term viability. Farmers have sustained long-term financial damage as a result of the low commodity prices and repeated years of crop disease and adverse weather conditions."

What would most benefit agriculture and the local economy?

"Higher commodity prices are required immediately and need to be sustained long-term. Perhaps an additional disaster payment will be required within the next six months. Locally, more favorable weather conditions are required to re-establish the agricultural productivity in the region. Crop insurance reform is needed so those farmers who have experienced repeated disaster years can purchase adequate production cost coverage. Higher commodity loan rates would be a simple and effective way to stabilize commodity prices, at least to allow lenders to feel more confident in cash flow planning and extending credit."

Mesaba Airlines notes increase in traffic in June

Mesaba Airlines, which operates as a Northwest Airlink affiliate, has announced that it generated 133.3 million revenue passenger miles (RPMs) in June, an increase of 37.8 percent over the June 1998 results.

Available Seat Miles (ASMs) increased 33.7 percent to 216.4 million from 161.8 million in the prior year.

Systemwide Passenger Load Factor (PLF) rose 1.8 points, year over year to 61.6 percent. The airline carried 497,300 passengers, a 31.9 percent increase over the same period last year.

Stumpf coordinating ag relief petition drive

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf (DFL - Thief River Falls) has announced that he will be circulating a petition over the next several weeks to demand agricultural and disaster assistance for struggling farmers.

The petition will insist that Congress pass legislation to help farmers in Northwest Minnesota that have been hit by bad weather this year, and by crop disease and poor commodity prices over the past several years.

"Farm families have been asking politely for a decent crop insurance system and other necessary help for long enough," Stumpf said. "It's time for farmers to demand action from the federal government."

Although the Minnesota Legislature this year provided $70 million in direct farm aid payments and another $50 million for permanent agricultural property tax cuts, Stumpf doesn't believe that this is enough.

"We at the State of Minnesota have done our part. It's time for the federal government to act," Stumpf said. "This is a national problem, but we in Northwest Minnesota are at the forefront. Only Congress can provide the assistance we need."

Stumpf commented that he has been at several public meetings, hearings and events in communities throughout Northwest Minnesota this spring and summer, and that farmers are beginning to lose hope.

"The farmers I've talked to are saying the same thing as the local bankers, accountants, seed dealers, implement dealers, store owners and everyone else: we can't take much more of this," said Stumpf. "We have to start being more aggressive if we want to get anything accomplished."

Stumpf plans to have the petitions available at county fairs, town festivals and other public events throughout the summer.

Creameries picnic Sunday at Old Mill State Park

Prairie Memories Creameries Picnic Sunday, July 25, at Old Mill State Park west of Newfolden will include several special activities, according to Mary Broten, park manager.

Fabulous Frogs and Toads will be a children's activity at 11 a.m. at the beach. Resource specialist Chris Weir-Koetter will discuss Resource Management in Northwest Minnesota State Parks at 1 p.m. in the picnic shelter. The historic Larson mill will be open for tours at 3 p.m. and free ice cream donated by the Marshall county chapter of the American Dairy Association will be served at the mill site at 3 p.m.

Manager Broten provided the following history of the creameries picnic:

—Marshall county's first annual cooperative creameries picnic was held on Sunday, June 24. Site selected for the gathering was in Section 4 of Foldahl township at the place known as the Old Mill site on the banks of the Middle River. This picnic took place nine years before the location was established as the Middle River State Park in 1937. The Park was renamed the Old Mill State Park in 1951.

The first picnic was attended by an estimated 4,000 people, one of the largest crowds ever seen at a picnic in this region at that time. On July 12, 1933, Thorval Tunheim, former associate editor of the Warren Sheaf, reported an estimated 6,000 people in attendance at the sixth annual picnic.

In 1946 on July 12 attendance records were broken with an estimated crowd of 7,000 for the 19th annual Marshall County Creameries Picnic. The picnic was sponsored by creameries at Stephen, Argyle, Warren, Alvarado, Viking, Newfolden, Strandquist, Holt, Middle River and Gatzke. The Gygla creamery joined creameries in Pennington and Beltrami counties for their annual

Disaster drill simulates train and truck crash

Residents and visitors to Thief River Falls will see local emergency crews participating in an emergency drill on Wednesday, August 4.

Organizers of the emergency drill have held several planning sessions to work out the details of the complicated event. The drill will assess the response of emergency crews to a hypothetical 200-gallon release of diesel fuel and small gaseous release of anhydrous ammonia. The spills will be the result of a staged collision between a CP rail locomotive and a truck hauling anhydrous amonia at the intersection of the railroad tracks and Third Street (Highway 59) in downtown Thief River Falls. Emergency response teams will not only have to deal with a possible injury, but the containment of hazardous materials, which includes preventing hazardous materials from escaping down the river and entering the city's water treatment plant.

All of the activity will begin at about 8 a.m. on Wednesday, August 4, and continue to about noon. Residents and visitors will see quite a bit of activity at that location. The intersection will remain open to traffic. Signs will be posted at a couple of locations in Thief River Falls alerting motorists of the exercise.

In an effort to reduce confusion, sirens will not be used. If a real emergency takes place at any time during the exercise, emergency units will be dispatched, and the exercise may be terminated.

Because this exercise has some unique qualities, some unique equipment will be used. Residents

Warning issued by the referee had little effect during this clash of midget wrestlers Thursday night at the Pennington County Fair. Professional wrestling made its fair debut with a vocal crowd in attendance. The midget wrestlers were the hit of the show. Remaining grandstand events include the Thunder on Hooves bull ride second session tonight and the demolition derby Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

Robby Dahlen thrilled the hometown crowd with this jump during a motocross event at the 1999 Pennington County Fair. Dahlen, Thief River Falls, was competing in the 125cc B Class in the Motocross. Dahlen went on to win the class.

Attendance good at first days of 98th county fair

Attendance has been good at the early portion of the 98th annual Pennington County Fair as main events have generally been sandwiched between rain showers.

Open class and 4-H exhibit entries were received on Thursday and judging held on Friday. Exhibits are to remain in place until 5 p.m. Sunday.

Rogers Bros. Funland carnival is on the midway and has been active with many young people using the Mega Pass ride package which entitles them to unlimited rides on either a daily or full-fair basis.

Thunder on Hooves bull ride, a Professional Bull Riders Association (PBR) sanctioned event with $25,000 in added prize money, held its first session Friday night and will have a new group of riders tonight (Saturday, July 24). Kids' sheep riding—the popular mutton bustin' event—is part of each bull ride and free fireworks will also follow the bull ride tonight.

Final grandstand attraction will be the demolition derby Sunday at 4:30 p.m. Drawings will be held during the derby for winners in the fair board raffle conducted to help pay for costs of entertainment at the free bandshell. Tickets are being sold at $10 each and the top prize is an Arctic Cat 4-wheel-drive ATV.

The grandstand was filled Wednesday evening for the motocross motorcycle races and a responsive crowd cheered and jeered at the professional wrestling show Thursday evening.

Horse shows will be conducted today and Sunday and the horse barn is filled with entries again this year. Livestock entries are down slightly but still good in comparison with most area county fairs.

There is no admission to enter the fairgrounds and view the exhibits. Auto parking on the grounds costs $1 per car per day. Free bandshell entertainment continues through Sunday evening.

TRF Zoning amendment request put on hold again

Tuesday night, the Thief River Falls City Council tabled a request for a zoning amendment by Joel Kezar until all of the council members are present.

Considerable discussion was devoted to a zoning amendment request by Kezar to operate Kezar Music in the former Evangelical Free Church at 315 Duluth Avenue North. The matter has been before the council for a couple of months.

Council representative Dale Wennberg was ready to approve the request despite a recommendation from the Planning commission to deny the request. He expressed some frustration at having to come up with rationale why he wanted to approve the request. He said "here we have a business that wants to stay in Thief River Falls." Finally, he stated that the building was available for use, use would prevent its dilapidation, the proposed use was not contrary to the city's comprehensive plan, it didn't represent an intensification of use, and a number of other reasons.

A motion to call for a reading of the request was approved narrowly by a vote of four to three, with one council representative absent.

The motion to approve the amendment was tabled however, after council representatives reviewed information that indicated that if Kezar sold the property it could be used for a number of other uses, many of which may be objectionable to residents in the neighborhood. In addition it was learned that the council needed to approve the amendment recommendation with a two-thirds vote. All members of the council must vote. This would mean that six votes were needed for it to pass, and the motion to read the amendment had passed by a four to three vote.

Wennberg rescinded his motion to approve the request and asked that it be tabled so that all members of the council could be available for the vote. (Frank Hemerlinck was absent.)

In the meantime, council representatives encouraged Kezar to obtain a purchase agreement conditioned upon successful approval of the zoning amendment request.

Another matter that involved considerable discussion was a request to adjust the salary of the liquor store manager's position. The council had the liquor store managers job description reviewed and submitted it to the firm of Fox Lawson to evaluate the job description utilizing the Decision Band Method (DBM) and submit a recommendation to the council. Fox Lawson apparently did not agree that an adjustment should be made. Their objection was apparently based on their belief that the manager did not make policy and other major decisions.

Council representatives disagreed, wondering who if not the manager, made policy decisions and other decisions, regarding such matters as advertising campaigns.

The council approved a base salary adjustment of $300 per month stating that they were not in agreement with the Fox Lawson DBM recommendation. In addition, the council asked that the Administrative Services committee once again review the manager's job description.

Access study of auditorium. A recommendation from the public works committee to authorize Wiseth, Smith and Nolting, to update the auditorium access study at a cost of $3,700 was approved by the council.

The purpose of the study would be to provide an update of options that would make the auditorium handicapped accessible.

Ken Schmalz, council representative, said that it has been a long time since the study has been updated and the money would be well spent.

Wennberg quipped that the study was three years too late, referring to moving city offices to the renovated Soo Depot.

4-H club entries increase 56 for Pennington fair

Number of exhibits registered for entry by 4-H club members at the 98th annual Pennington County Fair increased by 56 to 458 this year in comparison with a year ago, according to Kim Swanson, secretary in the Pennington county extension office.

There will be 157 exhibitors this year—an increase of 11 over the 148 entered in 1998. There were 402 exhibits a year ago.

Number of animal entries is down from 116 last year to 109 this year. Animal entries include beef, dairy, dog, goat, horse, poultry, rabbits, sheep and swine.

Two years ago, in 1997, there were 143 exhibitors with 405 exhibits including 106 animal entries in the county fair 4-H department.

Train derails at Oklee elevator

Oklee - Structural damage to one of its fertilizer buildings was the result of a train derailment recently at the Oklee Farmers Co-op Elevator.

Soft ground caused by rain and cars loaded with approximately 200,000 pounds of gravel provided the right combination for the mishap.

No one was injured, and the fertilizer building was full of fertilizer which stabilized the building enough so that it didn't cave in. The Oklee Herald

4-H club entries increase 56 for Pennington fair

Number of exhibits registered for entry by 4-H club members at the 98th annual Pennington County Fair increased by 56 to 458 this year in comparison with a year ago, according to Kim Swanson, secretary in the Pennington county extension office.

There will be 157 exhibitors this year—an increase of 11 over the 148 entered in 1998. There were 402 exhibits a year ago.

Number of animal entries is down from 116 last year to 109 this year. Animal entries include beef, dairy, dog, goat, horse, poultry, rabbits, sheep and swine.

Two years ago, in 1997, there were 143 exhibitors with 405 exhibits including 106 animal entries in the county fair 4-H department.

Grygla school board changes handbook

Grygla - Attendance regulations, the school's closed noon hour policy, dress code and weapons policy were among the subjects of discussion at a recent Grygla-Gatzke school board meeting.

A clause was added to the attendance regulations stating that students who are absent for medical or dental appointments must bring a signed note from the doctor's office.

The closed noon hour policy was discussed, and some wording in the handbook was changed with regard to the dress code.

The board also discussed the weapons policy with regard to older students keeping hunting rifles in their vehicles during the hunting season. It was decided that the vehicles of those students must be locked, parked off school property and that school administration must have knowledge of the weapons. The Grygla Eagle

Sherry LaCoursiere

Today's quick main dish recipes are from the Lincoln High School Choir Cookbook. I've included the names of the students who submitted them too.

This sounds like something we would all enjoy – a little bit like pizza, but easy to make:

PIZZA NOODLE HOT DISH
1 package spaghetti
1 jar pizza sauce (Pizza Quick is suggested)
2 cups water
1 package shredded mozzarella cheese
1 pound hamburger
1 package sliced pepperoni
1 package shredded mild cheddar cheese

Cook spaghetti as directed on package. Place in ungreased 9x13 inch pan.

Brown hamburger and drain. Add pizza sauce and water and mix. Add to spaghetti and mix. Top with pepperoni and both cheeses.

Cover with foil and bake 30-45 minutes at 350 degrees.

-Danielle Goulet

This is another simply special dish that everyone will love – and so easy to make:

LAYERED TACO DISH
1 1/2 pounds hamburger
1 onion
1 large can (Hormel) chili with beans
1 package taco seasoning mix
1 cup water (or more)
Cheddar or Colby cheese
Lettuce
Bag of Doritos
Tomatoes and black olives, if desired

Brown hamburger and onion. Drain.

Add chili and taco seasoning mix and water. Simmer 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, grate cheese and clean and chop 1 head of lettuce. Partially crush Doritos. Place in separate containers and refrigerate.

To serve, layer Doritos, meat mixture, lettuce and cheese. Tomatoes and black olives may also be added.

-Jim Lehrer

This hot dish is an old favorite – but everyone likes it:

TATER TOT HOT DISH
1 pound hamburger
Chopped onion
Salt and pepper
1 can cream of celery soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can string beans
1 can whole kernel corn
Tater tots

Brown hamburger with salt, pepper and onions. Drain.

Place in bottom of 9x13 inch pan. Drain beans and corn, reserving corn juice. Cover meat layer with corn and beans.

Mix soups with corn juice. Cover with tater tots and bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

-Toni LeMoine

Here's a dish where you can use your fresh garden produce to make something extra special:

CASSEROLE QUICKIE
1 pound hamburger, browned and drained
1 layer sliced raw carrots
1 layer sliced raw onions
1 layer sliced raw potatoes
1/4 cup Minute Rice, uncooked
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper

Place alternate layers of potatoes, carrots, onion, rice and hamburger in a 2 quart casserole.

Mix soups together with milk and pour over layers. Bake 60-75 minutes at 325 degrees.

-Lisa Swanson

And one more rather spicy dish that will pick up those sad summer appetites – and it's quick to fix on top of the stove – I'd serve it with salad and hot corn bread or muffins:

CHILI RICE DINNER
3/4 pound hamburger
1/3 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 (10 ounce) package frozen whole kernel corn
1 cup diced green pepper
1 (15 ounce) can tomato sauce
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Brown hamburger and onion and drain. Add remaining ingredients except cheese, cover and bring to a boil. Simmer 8 minutes.

Sprinkle with Cheddar cheese. (Recipe serves 4.)

Foreign students awaiting homes for study in U.S.

Students from Albania, Japan, Yugoslavia, China, Khazakston, Germany, Ecuador, Spain, Hong Kong and other countries are waiting for host families to accept them into their homes for a five-month semester or the entire school year.

Donna Nelson of Middle River, a local coordinator for Council for Educational Travel, USA, says the organization needs to reach good families in area communities to fulfill its mission of "reaching out to encourage a lifelong journey of global peace and understanding."

The students are between 15 and 18 years of age and are screened for maturity, academic and English language abilities. They have medical insurance and bring their own spending money.

Host families provide room and board and a warm American family atmosphere. Students need not have a private room—they may share a room with a same-sex sibling. Host families may deduct a $50 per month charitable tax donation for the time the student lives in their home.

American teenagers are also able to become exchange students abroad. For more information about the program, call Donna Nelson at 218-459-3329 or the Minnesota/Wisconsin office of CETUSA toll-free at 1-888-238-8728.

Bull rider Scott Mayfield fulfills childhood dream

As a small child, Scott Mayfield dreamed of becoming a professional bull rider. Pursuit of the dream continued Friday evening at the Pennington County Fair in Thief River Falls when he competed against some top professional riders and a string of rank bulls in the PBR Thunder on Hooves bull ride.

Mayfield is currently in the process of acquiring his Professional Bull Riders (PBR) Touring Pro card and is sponsored by Cal Farley's Boys Ranch and Affiliates. He came to the Boys Ranch 36 miles northwest of Amarillo, TX, when he was nine years old and stayed for 10 years.

While at the ranch he was involved in rodeo and other sports, sang in the school and chapel choirs and assumed leadership roles on campus. He now attends West Texas A&M University in Canyon, TX, where he maintains a 3.3 GPA in an equine industry and business major and rides bulls for his college rodeo team.

"I want people to look at me as a Christian bull rider," he said. "I want to show people that you can do all kinds of things in life, you can have a fun and exciting life and be a Christian. I want little kids to know that being a Christian is awesome and God gives everyone special talents."

Today, nearly 300 boys and girls live at Boys Ranch, Cal Farley's Family Program in Borger, TX and Girlstown, U.S.A. near Whiteface, TX. Children from pre-school through high school participate in a variety of academic, vocational, spiritual and extra-curricular activities.

"It's awesome to be on my own," Mayfield said. "I take everything I learned from Boys Ranch and use it every day. You make what you want out of life. You can take all of the things Boys Ranch gives you and make it work."

And he was hoping to make it work in the bull ride Friday night.

What to the older, more experienced competitors was little more than a nuisance, must have seemed like mountains for the younger competitors in the Motocross event held during the 1999 Pennington County Fair on Wednesday. Number three, front, is Brad Schmelenberg of Fertile. Number 6 is Kyle Moone of Thief River Falls. Number 1, who also finished in first place, is Ethan Bjerke of Fargo.

Mike Nesbit of Cambridge flashes by the crowd during a Motocross event held during the 1999 Pennington County Fair. Nesbit was competing in the 250cc A Class. He finished in third place.

The crowd at the Motocross event held during the 1999 Pennington County Fair reacted with concern when this young Motocross competitor crashed on landing after a jump. This competitor was able to walk away from the crash without any apparent injury.

Seal coating starts on Highways 75 and 11 next week

Portions of Highway 75 between Warren and Stephen and Highway 11 between Greenbush and Badger will undergo a bituminous chip seal coating beginning the week of July 26, according to the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

J. T. Anderson, project engineer in Thief River Falls, said "the chip seal process is a short-term but slow-moving operation with loose rock and dust. Flagging operations will be in use and motorists will be required to alternate use of traffic lanes."

Weather permitting, he said, the projects should be completed by the end of the week. He also reminded motorists to slow down and obey all signing instructions when they "see orange." Fines double for drivers caught speeding in a construction zone.

Canadian Pacific reduces rates for transporting grain

Canadian Pacific Railway is reducing its U.S. wheat and durum rates moving to the east via the Twin Cities or Twin Ports by $36 to $463 per car, according to Don Smith, account manager for grain.

Effective July 30, the changes apply to cars moving from origin on Canadian Pacific Railway in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana to all traffic moving for unloading in the Twin Cities and Twin Ports or beyond. In some areas, service is provided by leased line partners Northern Plains Railroad and Dakota, Missouri Valley and Western Railroad.

Unlike seasonal truck competitive rates which expired July 15, the new rate structure will be in place year-around. The changes re-establish rates that existed throughout the 1980s.

The greatest impact on rates is in the eastern half of North Dakota and western Minnesota where the railway competes aggressively with trucks. Smith said that despite the current grain conditions, the Railway has invested heavily in the 1990s to improve plant and bring new equipment on line, particularly in country grain areas.

The company is taking delivery of an additional 1,034 new hi-cube covered hopper cars. Canadian Pacific Railway and its leased line partners serve 150 country elevators in Minnesota, the Dakotas and northeastern Montana.

Lincoln concert choir succeeds in auditions

Lincoln high school concert choir has been successful this year with the audition tapes it made in May to compete for performances in the 1999-2000 school year, according to Darcy Reese, director.

Mrs. Reese was notified recently that the Minnesota Music Educators Association (MMEA) had selected the Lincoln choir to perform at the association's state convention February 17-19 in Minneapolis. Fifty-five choirs auditioned for the same performance. Details will be received from the MMEA in September.

An audition tape was also sent to Peter Tiboris, director of Mid-America Productions in New York City, in competition for the opportunity to be a prelude choir at Carnegie Hall in New York City. The choir selected would present a 25-minute concert of its own prior to a mass choir performance.

"It was a good week for good news," Mrs. Reese said, noting that she had been informed the choir had made it through the first round of the audition.

"The next step is for the choir and I to select the tour dates and hope that a prelude performance will be scheduled for that particular date," Mrs. Reese said.

"If there is a prelude concert on the dates that the Lincoln choir is there, it will compete with any other choir that has cleared the first round of auditions and has also selected that date to perform," she added. "I'm very pleased the choir has made it this far and hope that the tour dates selected will coincide with a prelude performance."

The 1999-2000 choir at Lincoln consists of 82 students. They will be preparing an extensive repertoire for the school year. Mrs. Reese congratulated the 1998-99 choir for its accomplishments and said the 1999-2000 choir members can look forward to an exciting year.

15th Woodcarvers Festival Aug. 7-8 at Lake Bronson

Approximately 40 woodcarvers are expected to be showing and demonstrating their handiwork at the 15th annual International Woodcarvers Festival Saturday and Sunday, August 7 and 8, at Lake Bronson State Park. Show hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Neil Gregory of Deer Creek, Best of Show winner in 1998, will participate in the show again this year. Guest carver and instructor is Larry Longtine of Lake Park, who will teach a class in fish carving to area and regional carvers just prior to the show.

While visiting the show, the public is encouraged to vote for the carving of their choice in the People's Choice award competition held both days. Ribbon place judging will take place on Saturday, August 7, from 5 to 7 p.m. An awards ceremony will take place Sunday at 4 p.m.

A craft show sponsored by the Lake Bronson Lions club will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. The club will also sponsor a carnival from 12 noon to 4 p.m. on Saturday and 12 noon to 3 p.m. Sunday.

The Kittson County Memorial Museum will be open and an Artists Unlimited show will be held from 1 to 6 p.m. each day at the Museum Depot.

Newfolden Class of 1939 holds its 60-year reunion

Nine members of the 1939 graduating class at Newfolden high school gathered June 10 at the Hobo Haus in Newfolden for a 60-year reunion. It was the third reunion for the class which previously noted 45 and 50-year celebrations.

Blue streamers and candles decorated the tables in the meeting room of the Hobo Haus for the reunion dinner at noon. Dr. Sherman Lee served as master of ceremonies for the program held following the dinner.

Dr. Lee's wife, Arleen, accompanied the group and herself in singing a number of songs popular in the pre-World War II era. Dr. Lee noted that all nine boys in the Class of 1939 had served our country in World War II, eight in military service and one working in a defense plant.

Class members shared a number of memories from the time they were in high school and one read an original poem. Several told of renting rooms in town and staying there during the week since there was no rural bus service except the bus that ran to Viking.

Each classmate received a copy of a booklet prepared by Sherman and Arleen Lee which contained information received from class members and two teachers, E. W. Solyst and Mary (Keogh) Tandberg.

Leona Neegard awarded several prizes: To Olive Ann LeMier of Sumner, WA, for travelling the greatest distance to attend; to Myrtle Sailors for having the most grandchildren; and to Harlan Melo for being the man with the most hair.

Sherman Lee received a souvenir pencil from the Amundson-Lee store for spearheading the reunion. Lee gave the traveling prize to Bernyce Tangquist for having the best memory.

During the program a moment of silence was observed for the five class members who are deceased. They are Harold Pilon, George Moen, Gordon Lannoye, Gerald Peterson and Maxyne Boe.

Unable to attend due to illness or conflicts were Violet (Amundson) Rokke, Myran and Mavis (Sorenson) Anderson, Tonnabell (Wyman) Larson, Hazel (Ekman) Ristau, Shirley (Horien) DiGirolamo, Velma (Seielstad) Christianson and Arlene (Austin) Carrier.

Class members attending were Olive Ann (Halvorson) LeMeir and husband Sheldon of Sumner, WA; James Anderson and wife Ollie of Winona, Dr. Sherman Lee and wife Arleen of Menomonie, WI; Bernyce (Tangquist) Grandstrand and husband Alvin of Viking, Roy Jorgenson and Clarice (Hansen) Olson of Thief River Falls, Myrtle (Hanson) Sailors of Devils Lake, ND; Harlan Melo and friend of Newfolden and Leona (Olson) Neegard of Warren.

Class members decided to meet again in the years to come on the second Thursday in June at 12 noon at the Hobo Haus and to invite other graduates of Newfolden high school from that era to join them. Date for the reunion in 2000 will be June 13.

No Bad Effect From Concealed Handgun Law

In last week's Northern Watch we indicated that further information from a study and talk by John R. Lott Jr. would be published in today's editorials. Lott teaches criminal deterrence and law and economics at the University of Chicago and has extensively researched gun ownership and crime. He has published over 70 articles in academic journals and writes frequently for the Wall Street Journal, the New York Times and USA Today.

"Multiple-victim public shootings get a lot of attention and drive a lot of the debate on guns, although they don't involve many total murders," Lott says.

"The worst ones come readily to mind: Six people were killed during Colin Ferguson's rampage on the Long Island Railroad in 1993. Twenty-two people were killed in Luby's Cafeteria in Collin, Texas, in 1991. Five people died at Cleveland Elementary School in Stockton, CA in January of 1989, and 21 persons were killed at the San Ysidro, CA, McDonald's in July of 1984.

"I've talked to people who were present at these shootings," Lott says. "They felt utterly helpless while gunmen were methodically shooting people.

"I talked to a woman who lost both of her parents in the Luby's shooting. She saw her father charge the gunman with a butter knife when his back was turned. He got within about 10 feet before the gunman killed him. Her mother ran to her dying father, and the gunman killed her mother.

"Until that week, this woman—an expert marksman—had been illegally carrying a concealed handgun. She sometimes worked late at night and she was concerned about her safety, but she had decided it was wrong to be violating Texas law and so she stopped carrying the gun. The day of the shooting, she had her pistol with her; In order not to break the law, she walked back to her car and locked the gun in the glove box. While the shooting was going on, she could see her car through the broken plate glass windows at the front of the restaurant. The police arrived 25 minutes after the first shot was fired."

In 1996 Texas adopted a new concealed-carry gun law. In the first two years the state issued 163,000 permits. During that time, five permit holders were arrested for deadly conduct or discharge of a firearm and two more were arrested for deadly conduct or display of a firearm. Ultimately, all of the permit holders were deemed to have acted in self-defense and all seven cases were dropped.

Lott listed two cases of school shootings where intervention by gun owners probably stopped further loss of life. In Pearl, MS, where two students were killed, the assistant principal had a pistol in his car, which was parked well off school property in order to obey a law that prohibits a gun within 1,000 feet of a school. When the shooting started, he ran to his car, got the pistol, ran back, ordered the gunman to the ground and held him there for about four minutes before the police arrived.

In Edinboro, PA, where a teacher was killed, a citizen held the gunman for over 11 minutes before police arrived.

"The most dramatic work I've ever done on crime shows that the only thing that seems to affect the rate at which these shootings occur is the passage of right-to-carry laws—not the death penalty, arrest rates, execution rates, waiting periods, different types of gun control laws," Lott says.

"In the 14 states that changed their laws between 1977 and 1995, the probability that somebody would be killed or injured in a so-called multiple-victim public shooting was rising consistently until the change. And then, when the right-to-carry laws were passed, you see a huge drop in the rate at which these incidents occur: a 90 percent drop in the rate at which shootings occurred, a 92 percent drop in the rate at which people were killed.

"There is only one possible explanation for this," Lott says. "The people who are getting permits to carry a gun—about five percent of the adult population—are randomly out there. If I'm a criminal wanting to attack somebody who is walking home late at night, there is a one in 20 chance that the person I attack might have a gun.

"Let's say there are 100 people in a restaurant; even though only five percent of the adult population have permits, the probability that someone in that restaurant is going to have a permit—and a gun—is very high. This seems to have a huge deterrent effect."

Lott said he had shared his report data with academics at 36 universities but none has found a bad effect from concealed-handgun laws. No one argues that there is a pernicious effect.

Despite his findings and the apparent positive affect that an armed populace may well have on violent crime, Lott is less than optimistic about the future of firearms in the United States.

"I think it is highly probable that in a couple of years guns will not be sold legally in the United States," he says. "I think 50 to a hundred cities will be bringing suit against gun manufacturers, and it is going to be very difficult if not impossible to combine them into one type of class action suit. The plaintiffs are purposely making it impossible to do that.

"A small gun company may be facing, conservatively, legal costs of a couple million dollars per suit. Ruger, which is the largest manufacturer of rifles and the second largest manufacturer of pistols and revolvers in the United States, made $25 million in profits last year from all of its sporting lines, including guns and golf clubs and everything else that they produce. Something like $18 million probably came from guns.

"If you are facing $120 million or more in legal costs, you have to make a decision about whether or not you will be staying in business. Beyond the top 10 gun manufacturers, you are talking about companies that produce only a few thousand guns a year," Lott adds. "Even if only a couple cities bring suits, it is going to be very difficult for them to withstand the legal costs."

Lott says he doesn't believe the cities think they have strong legal arguments. "I think they are hoping," he said, "to overwhelm the gun companies with legal costs so they will just give up and declare bankruptcy."

There is certainly a flaw in our legal system when justice is denied because defense is too costly.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I would like to use this medium to challenge younger retired persons or anyone else with time to give. The request comes from the Heritage Community Center. The center is here to serve the entire community, although the main push comes for service to the senior population. The center has been used extensively by the entire community.

Volunteers are the force that built and have manned all of the center's activities. As those of us who joined and worked to build the center age, we need to call on you all to help by volunteering. Help is needed in many programs such as the congregate meals program. Please visit the center and let director Shannon Olson explain the many needs and also see what the center has to offer you.

My wife Judy and I joined the effort to get the center built in 1980. Since then it has been a very important part of our lives, as it has for many friends. We have enjoyed working on fund raising, the meals program, choir, Bingo and other activities.

Since 1991 we have been in charge of the weekly Tuesday Bingo games as managers. These events are held from 1 to 2:30 p.m. with 20 games played. We have lunch after game 10 and have entertained an average of 80-plus players each week. This operation is conducted entirely by volunteers, including Judy and me.

The Bingo is an important fund raiser for the center. It has provided $3,000 each year for the center's operation. Since the policy of the center is to be a good citizen, a like amount of $3,000 or more goes as donations to local needs.

Now for the personal challenge—to give an afternoon of your time. We have the necessary people: the checker, cashier and caller for these Tuesday events, but we can use more people to sell Bingo papers prior to each of the 20 games. Our aim is to have a large enough pool of these workers so no one person needs to give more than one Tuesday a month, unless the individual wishes to work more often.

Please volunteer! The center has two ladies who line up the three volunteers for each Tuesday. To volunteer call either Pat Reed at 681-4008 or Tress Noel at 681-4190. Without your help, this entertaining day and good charitable fund raiser may be lost-a loss to the entire community.

Sincerely,
Harry Oen, gaming manager

Wake Me When It's Over

There are many standard Midwestern conventions that seem to exaggerate the gap between my East Coast history and my present day existence. Don't get me wrong; I don't feel like an outcast. In fact, it's a rare day that my own personal sense of paranoia isn't overwhelmed by some robustly friendly act of northern Minnesota kindness, reassuring me that I have, indeed, landed in the finest environs the world has to offer.

Yet small, nagging questions persist and my ignorance on these issues makes me feel like an occasional standout.

For example, is it some sort of cultural imperative that butter be spread on a bologna sandwich? Is the noon meal dinner and the evening one supper, or vice-versa? And where the heck does lunch fit in? I've begged for a lutefisk explanation and continue to be in the dark.

At what latitude does the Polaris vs. Arctic Cat argument outweigh the importance of the Ford vs. Chevy clash? And as the knot of dread builds in my reluctant gut, as it always seems to about this time of year, I really need to know—is fear a rational adult response to the impending "fair" season?

During the next four weeks, my family will attend between one and three fairs. Given the opportunity, my kids will demand an appearance at all three. Given their Dad's ability to survive and learn his lessons quickly, one might suffice. The traditional yearly compromise of two, however, seems to be the most probable scenario. Here are the concerns.

Is it simply a meteorological coincidence, or a subtle reminder that the minus 40 degrees Fahrenheit of January isn't all that bad, that the absolute hottest stretch of summer always finds me in an overheated pole barn in the company of more livestock than Noah ever laid eyes on?

While the overwhelming odor might be something I can write off to my snobbishly sensitive nose, my inherent distrust of large barnyard animals cannot make light of the fact that instinctively nasty, 2,000 pound bulls are being pushed to the brink of insanity by oppressive heat, aggressive flies, and taunting, prodding children too young to understand the danger mere inches away.

I try to look calm as I parade by these bovine time-bombs, reassuring myself all the while that their temporary stalls are not actually made of balsa wood and the tethers that hold the beasts in place are, despite appearances, more than discarded remnants of last year's hockey laces. I avoid eye contact at all costs—animals can sense fear.

I make it a point to locate the cow with the hole in her side just before entering the food section of the fair. I don't have any real interest in watching the "four-stomach digestive process" from inside out, but the general nausea that accompanies such a viewing will help limit any food intake as I prepare for my eventual move to the midway.

Unfortunately, good intentions are usually overcome by a familiar face at each concession stand. Social obligation demands a long line of consumable purchase, starting with bratwurst and ranging all the way to lefse.

It's usually about now that there comes an impatient tug on the wrist as my children drag me toward the twirling lights. I can hear the screams from here and try to distract my kids with a carney coin toss game. The last of my cash disappears all too quickly and the diversion ends. We have to go ride.

I can understand why each of these rides has a "minimum height" line located near the gate. Safety is a legitimate concern. Why, then, isn't there a maximum? Shouldn't there be some mark around 5' 6" with a statement to the effect "Anyone taller than this will not be allowed on because you're going to get sick or injured and everyone here who knows you will make fun of you for years to come?"

Heck, at least put up a fake one so I've got an easy out and can save face with my children! "Well, kids, I'd really love to go on the Spinning Wheel of Certain Embarrassing Death with you, but you can read the sign and rules are rules. Have fun; I'll just watch dejectedly from the side."

But no. It can't be that easy. A grinning ticket taker suggests my level of machismo isn't what it's cracked up to be and before you know it I've gone on one ride, maybe a second, and then I'm weaving through the crowd, mumbling incoherently, trying to shake the tinny, deafening roar of over-amplified carnival music from my ears. About now comes the revelation that my eternity in Hell will be accompanied by tawdry tunes played on a calliope. The crowd jeers and yowls about the various colors of my face. My wife patiently guides me to the car, gets me home and sends me off to bed.

Hangover-like symptoms accompany the next morning. Poor vision, bad balance and bruises where there shouldn't be. I have difficulty remembering anything from the night before and when I ask my wife for the facts she explains it away as "just another Men's Night at the golf course that got a little out of control." I appreciate her clarification, although I can't honestly remember any chips or putts.

"Oh," she adds as an afterthought while I continue to grasp for some straw of reality, "don't forget; you promised the kids you'd take them to the fair next week."

I give a dazed and obedient nod as a strange, yet familiar twist of anxiety occurs in my gut. As I reflexively look down to note its arrival, I'm forced to wonder how I got that plastic-lined hole in my side that's so big I can actually watch my digestive tract at work. Is that a bratwurst I see in there?

Tuptim (played by Joanna Swentek) and Lun Tha (portrayed by David Christensen) sing of their love for one another in this segment of the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic musical The King & I. Fishing programs set for five area locations

Thief River Falls will host a Minnesota Department of Natural Resources children's nature and fishing program Tuesday, Aug. 10.

Kids who want to have fun learning about fishing and the outdoors are encouraged to attend one of the programs that will be offered at five northwest Minnesota locations Aug. 9-13.

In addition to Thief River Falls, the program, labeled A River Runs Through It, will be held in Roseau, Warroad, Baudette and the Lake Bronson State Park. Each event will feature practice casting, fishing from shore, pond study, boat and water safety, forestry and wildlife, and other practical outdoor learning activities.

"Our goals is for the kids to have fun while learning about our environment," said Linda Bylander, DNR education specialist. "In addition to fishing, there will be a series of mini-stations where children can do activities with conservation officers and forestry, wildlife and fisheries experts."

The free program is aimed at children ages 8 to 14. Fishing rods and tackle will be provided. Kids should bring their own lunch, except at Roseau, where lunch will be provided. Parents must sign a consent form for their children to participate.

The area programs include:

■ Monday, Aug. 9 - Lake Bronson State Park, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Contact Gladwin Lynne, 754-2200.

Post 117 handles Warroad 27-4

■ TRF will play Detroit Lakes in district opener

Thief River Falls closed out its 1999 regular season American Legion baseball schedule with a bang Wednesday to a 27-hit, 27-4 five-inning win at Warroad.

Brett Johnson led the Post 117 hit parade with a 5-for-5 game at the plate that included a home run and nine runs batted in. Teammate Jarod Reierson was 4-for-4 with 6 RBI. Every member of the Thief River Falls team had at least one hit.

It was a season-best offensive showing for a team that has been a strong run-producer for most of the summer.

"We crunched the ball," reported Thief River Falls coach Mike Wienen. "I haven't seen a performance like that for a long time. All of our hits were legitimate."

Thief River Falls finished the regular season 15-17. Ninth District Division I tournament play, originally scheduled to start Wednesday, will now open Thursday at Roseau, with Post 117 drawing Detroit Lakes in a 4 p.m. first round game.

The eight-team, double-elimination tournament starts with pairings based on North-South regular season standings. Roseau is the No. 1 seed in the North, followed by East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, and Crookston. Moorhead is the top seed in the South, followed by Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, and Perham.

In addition to the Thief River Falls vs. Detroit Lakes match-up, other first round games will include Roseau vs. Perham, East Grand Forks vs. Fergus Falls, and Crookston vs. Moorhead.

The tournament will continue through Sunday, Aug. 1. The winner moves on to state tournament play.

Wienen figures it will be a wide-open field, and says his team fits into the title picture. "We're very capable of winning the tournament," he said. "We've been averaging about 10 runs per game, our pitching staff has been doing a good job, and we've been playing well defensively. A lot of teams don't want to play us."

First game in the double-elimination format is the key, acknowledged Wienen. A victory puts you just one game away from the finals. A loss creates a long journey through the loser's bracket.

Thief River Falls lost a 12-2 game at Detroit Lakes back on June 22, with the second half of the scheduled doubleheader erased by rain. It was the only time Post 117 lost by the 10-run rule all year. Thief River Falls bounced back to sweep a July 1 rematch with the Lakers at Irv Wilson Field by winning 7-6 (in eight innings) and 10-8.

Fergus Falls is the defending Ninth District Division I tournament champion.

Roseau beats TRF 12-3, 4-3 in Legion baseball match-up

Josh Olson hit a grand slam home run in the first game and picked up a save in a second game relief pitching performance Tuesday as Roseau swept a 12-3, 4-3 American Legion baseball doubleheader from visiting Thief River Falls.

Roseau faced an early 3-0 deficit in the opener before Olson's home run highlighted a seven-run second inning. He finished the game with six RBI.

A two-run single by Josh Jensen fueled a Thief River Falls fourth inning comeback that chopped a 4-0 Roseau second game lead to 4-3 before Olson took over on the mound.

"In the first game, they just out-hit us," explained Thief River Falls coach Mike Wienen. "We got the early lead, but they scored 12 unanswered runs on us. In the second game, we fell behind early, but battled back. It was a good effort."

Andrew Solem turned in a strong pitching performance in Game 2, noted Wienen, and his club played an error-free doubleheader. But offensively, Post 117 fell well short of the double-figure run production the team has manufactured on a regular basis this summer.

Take a Senior Fishing program initiated by Warroad DNR officer

When the conversation turns to family fishing opportunities in Minnesota, there are a host of programs. There's Take a Mom Fishing in May and Take a Kid Fishing in June. But when it comes to opportunities for senior citizens to go fishing, the conversation quickly ends.

But thanks to a state conservation officer, a local fishing guide, and the kindness of a community, Take a Senior Citizen Fishing has become a reality in northern Minnesota.

"I got the idea for Take a Senior Citizen Fishing last spring while visiting the Warroad Community Care Center," said Jeff Birchem, a conservation officer for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. "It was a great day to go fishing, but no way to do it for the residents of the care center."

Birchem shared his experience with Harvey Comeliusen, owner of the Hospital Bay Bed and Breakfast in Warroad as well as a local guide and charter boat operator. Comeliusen thought Take a Senior Citizen Fishing sounded like a very worthwhile project.

"Fishing is part of the heritage of many Warroad area residents," Comeliusen said. "That's when Jeff and I decided to approach civic groups and the business community with our idea."

Soon the local Lions and Eagles clubs, Streiff's Sporting Goods, the American Legion and the Warroad Care Center were joined by community members in an effort to raise the funds necessary to support the project. The fund-raiser was a huge success.

"Many senior citizens are on a fixed income," Comeliusen said. "Money donated by the community covered expenses for items such as bait, tackle and transportation."

The inaugural voyage took place June 17, with seniors Irene Evans, Joe Kolberg, Frank Grugal, Dorothy Janzen and Myrtle Peterson taking advantage of a pristine day for fishing on nearby Lake of the Woods. Nurse Lori Homma was on board as was guide Rick McBride. Organizers hope to give seniors citizens in the Warroad area an opportunity to "wet a line" throughout the summer and winter. Senior citizens from nearby communities are also welcome.

Dorothy Janzen, 81, caught the most fish - two small walleyes. Janzen started fishing while a young girl growing up in Iowa and southern Minnesota, using angle worms as bait and a tree limb as a pole. She enjoyed her return to the sport.

"It was a great day that brought back a lot of wonderful memories," Janzen said.

"Fishing is a relaxing activity that enables you, regardless of age, to enjoy beautiful scenery and maybe catch some supper while you're at it," Birchem said. "We encourage more communities to take advantage of this opportunity to provide a day in the great outdoors for their senior citizens."

For more information about Take a Senior Citizen Fishing, contact Birchem at 218-783-2521, or Karin Loven, Warroad Care Center social services director, at 218-386-1235.

Arts council to accept applications for grants

Arts council of the Northwest Regional Development Commission is accepting applications for a variety of grants in literary, performing and visual arts and for grants of up to $750 for adult individual artists and $500 for student artists.

This year the council is starting a new Artist in the Schools program, according to Mara Lunde, arts council director at the regional commission offices in Warren. Deadlines for the program are quarterly and the first two deadlines are August 1 and November 1, 1999.

Under this program, public school districts may apply for up to $2,500 for the sponsorship of projects such as conducting an artist-in-residence program, hosting a visiting artist and conducting workshops for students and/or teachers. School districts must provide a 25 percent cash match; in-kind match is not eligible.

August 1 and November 1 are also deadlines for organizations to apply for Sponsorship and Production Assistance grants. Matching funds up to a maximum of $2,500 per grant may be applied for by each organization. Each organization may receive up to $4,000 in grant funds annually.

Production Assistance grants are available for the creation, performance or exhibition of arts, Lunde said. Sponsorship grants provide funds to host guest artists or touring groups.

A NWRDC/McKnight Small Capital Grants round has also been announced. Arts organizations classified under Section 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code may apply for artistic equipment or other small capital expenditures. This program is supported with funding from the McKnight Foundation. Deadline for applications under this program is August 1. There is no required fund match for this category of grants.

Arts organizations also may apply to send their members to training opportunities, hire consultants or sponsor training related workshops such as lighting or photographing artwork with the NWRDC/McKnight Training and Development grant. Grants of up to $750 are available and application deadline is August 1. Again, there is no required fund match for this category.

Individual Artist Grants

Individual artists may apply for grants for specific projects which contribute directly to their creative and professional growth and development. This program is supported with funding from the McKnight Foundation and grants are for up to $750 for adults and $500 for students. Application deadlines are August 16 and November 15.

Artists must be Minnesota residents who have resided in the seven-county area of northwestern Minnesota for at least one year prior to the deadline dates. The seven counties include Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Norman.

Artists may apply for assistance with casts associated with the production and presentation of work, professional training and mentorship, supplies related to specific projects and other services. Applications are encouraged from individuals working in literary, performing and visual art.

Application guidelines, forms and materials are available from Mara Lunde at the NWRDC office, 115 South Main, Warren, MN 56762, phone 218-745-6733.

and visitors to the city will be able to see some of the equipment being used during "National Night Out", a law enforcement and community evening picnic at Floyd B. Olson Park, on Tuesday, August 3.

One of the unique aspects of this exercise that residents will not see, but should appreciate, is a new switch at the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center, which allows the dispatchers to close the city's water intake valve during an emergency.

The title, Agassiz Leaders, was adopted by the Red River Valley Winter Shows board of directors in 1994, to replace the King Agassiz Program, which had been a tradition in northwestern Minnesota since 1961.

The 1998 Ambassadors, Mike and Tura Ratzlaff, will officially pass the Agassiz Leadership torch to the Asp family following the 4-H Dress Review, Sunday, July 25, at 1 p.m. in the curling Club building In Thief River Falls. There is no admission. The public is welcome and is encouraged to attend.

Marshall county creameries picnics were held from 1928 to 1954. John Brandt, president of Land O'Lakes Creameries, was a featured speaker for many years.

Some of the attractions on picnic days included bands from area towns, softball games, horseshoe tournaments, relay races, balloon blowing, balloon popping, milking, pie-eating, needle threading, butter churning and nail driving contests, airplane rides, vocal and instrumental selections, orations and guest speakers representing the creameries and agriculture. Area Senators and State Representatives were also guest speakers.

In 1991 the park held a special event in honor of the historic creameries picnics of the past during the Minnesota State Parks Centennial Celebrations. Starting In 1994 an annual picnic has been held in July.

Insurance pictures for mega pass concerns officials

Thief River Falls Police and Pennington County Sheriff's department are expressing concern regarding the practice of taking pictures of children for the purpose of insuring Mega Ride Passes.

A statement from the police and sheriff's department, issued July 22, states the following: "It has come to the attention of local law enforcement officials that insurance is being offered for the Mega Ride Pass. This process involves having a numbered picture taken of a Mega Pass wristband owner, and in many cases the owner would be a child. The individual's name would then be placed on a roster to go with the picture.

"Because of public safety concerns law enforcement does not agree with this practice, and strongly advises parents to consider all possible consequences.

"Local officials have been informed that the discs from the cameras and rosters will be turned over for disposal at the end of the Pennington County Fair.

"Once again, we urge parents to consider all possible consequences before purchasing this insurance."

Greenwood bridge project still being considered by TRF

A recommendation to remove Greenwood Bears bridge from the State Trans-portation Improvement plan for proposed construction in Year 2000 was effectively tabled when a motion to refer the matter to the Administrative Services committee was approved.

Don Barnes, council representative, said that in light of the present huge expenditure of funds, the matter should have been taken to the Administrative Services committee earlier.

Barnes' main meaningful was stated that funds to rebuild the bridge would come from federal aid and by using Municipal State Aid (MSA) funds and tax affect borrowing against future MSA funds for the next 20 years. Basically, the cost to the city would be about $1 million.

Barnes said that such a project could result in other expenditures. Barnes was not only referring to additional projects, but costs connected with resuming the federal aid, and losing state aid dollars.

Barnes stated that MSA funds would also have the affect of increasing the city's future needs, and the city would have funds to work with in the future.

Mayor Lindberg, police wants director Gerald Bear as only council member to vote with Barnes on the motion. Lindberg, Councilmen Conrad Lines and Lindsay Ware Carried Paul Pende opposed as in grand method.

Lindberg stated that Greenwood Heritage Mount in Cass Lake, Minn. was built by the Greenwood family and that the city is indebted to the Bride of Sugar Point, Ella Flower

Another "Mom and Pop" business is starting to appear in the downtown area. Thief River Falls farmer Nancy Iverson is opening a small, years of supplementary income business.

Greenwood bridge project still being considered by TRF

A recommendation to remove Greenwood Street bridge from the State Transportation Improvement plan for proposed construction in Year 2000 was effectively tabled when a motion to refer the matter to the Administrative Services Committee was approved.

Don Barron, council representative, said that in light of the potential huge expenditure of funds, the matter should have been taken to the Administrative Services committee earlier.

At earlier meetings it was stated that funds to build the bridge would come from federal aid and by using Municipal State Aid (MSA) funds and (in effect) borrowing against future MSA funds for the next 20 years. Basically, the cost to the city for the bridge would be zero.

Barron said that such a project could result in other expenditures. Barron was not only referring to additional projects, but costs connected with returning the federal aid, and losing state aid dollars.

Borrowing against MSA funds would also have the effect of increasing the city's future needs, giving the city more funds to work with in the future.

Ron Lindberg, public works director said additional expenditures could include such things as traffic signals at Highway 32. Lindberg also expressed concern about having to refuse $294,000 in federal aid, as well as the possibility of having to return MSA funds to the state that have already been used to improve Greenwood Street if the project was removed from consideration. Lindberg couldn't say how much the city might have to return because it is based on life of the road remaining.

Mayor Mark Borsheim said he thought it should be removed from the State Transportation Improvement plan because the traffic count from a recent study did not warrant a bridge. Borsheim said the study showed that 4,000 motorists (3,200 from First Street, and 800 from Third Street) would use the bridge on a daily basis if there was another crossing over the railroad tracks, and maybe 3,100 without a crossing. That isn't enough to warrant a bridge, he said.

The cost of a crossing over or under the railroad tracks was not included in the project proposal, as well, and apparently there haven't been any discussions with CP Rail about a crossing on Greenwood. Funds for this project could also be drawn from MSA funds, however.

Frank Hamerlinck, council representative, said he was concerned that the general public doesn't seem to be aware of the proposal and they should be given an opportunity to comment.

Jim Burkholder, a long-time opponent of the Greenwood bridge project who has been attending city council meetings for years because of the project, said everyone knows where he stands on the project. He asked the council to consider the neighbors who live there and the impact of 4,000 additional cars going by their homes. He noted that the neighbors have been there for years without a bridge, and yet while it remains in the plans, the council continues to allow construction along the street that requires the occupants to back up into the street — an unsafe practice with 4,000 vehicles using the road on the daily basis if the bridge were built. Burkholder stated that the plan may have been good 25 years ago, but it isn't anymore.

Milt Burstad, council representative, said the council has heard from the 30 or so residents who live along the street who are against the project, but the council

Bear lives independently at Heritage Manor in Cass Lake, is a member of a five-generation family and the last survivor of the Battle of Sugar Point. The Pioneer

Farmer opens specialty butcher/smokehouse shop

Grafton - The farm crisis leaves many farmers trying to find ways of supplementing their income.

A business started by Walsh county farmer Dave Moe over two years ago has taken off beyond his wildest dreams.

Moe found his niche with a specialty butcher shop/smokehouse business called Country Smokehouse south of Grafton on Hwy. 81.

While Dave figured that he and his crew could process 50 deer in the business' first year, they ended up processing over 500 deer. The numbers were over the 800 mark last fall, and those numbers don't include the moose, elk and antelope they also processed.

Smokehouse customers can choose from 20 different specialty types of sausage as well as steaks, specialty bacon, ham, smoked cheese, chicken, pork chops, smoked Salmon, summer sausage, beef jerky, pepper sticks and barbecue sauce. The Walsh County Record

Roseau school board to award diplomas to WW II vets

Roseau - Called to serve their country during World War II, the educations of many students was cut short and many did not receive their high school diplomas. Until now, that is.

The Roseau Board of Education adopted a resolution recently that will allow WW II veterans who apply for their diplomas to receive them.

The program is sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Children, Families and Learning and is already in place in many Minnesota schools.

Deeming that veterans have gained enough knowledge in their lives to receive a diploma, all the agencies require is the completion of a one-page application attached to the applicant's discharge papers. The application is submitted to the county veterans affairs office, and once the school received information from either the Department of Veterans Affairs or the veterans affairs officer, a diploma is issued. Roseau Times-Region

TRF success may put bullrider in the finals

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

"That just may be good enough to get me into the finals," were the first words of Royd Doyal after winning the Thunder on Hooves bull ride at the Pennington County Fair in Thief River Falls.

Doyal, a 27-year-old charter PBR member from Pittsburg, Texas, came into town about 7 p.m. Saturday, just in time to ride in Thunder on Hooves and clinging to 29th place in the Professional Bull Riders Association (PBR) finals qualifier standings. He had a total of $23,859 won this season—$16,546 in Bud Light Cup winnings and $7,313.40 in Touring Pro Division standings.

By his own admission, though, he was "about broke" and the standings showed him just a little over $10,000 ahead of 50th place holder Paten Thygerson. In a couple of hours, things changed a whole lot for the better.

Doyal put together an 88-point ride on his first bull of the evening and the high score stood up for first place money of $3,009.60 in the "long go"—the first ride attempt by all of the entrants in the two nights of bull ride action. It also qualified him for the "short go"—the second ride of the night for the top eight riders in the long go. Three riders tied for second with 86 points each—Wade Barry of Cotes, SD, Jason Hunsaker of Faulkton, SD, and Jesse Bowman of Stony Junction, Alberta, Canada.

On his second bull Doyal stayed aboard for a 90-point ride, and the two-ride total of 178 points gave him a three-point edge over Jesse Bowman in the average. Winning the average gave Doyal a check for $9,931.68 and total winnings of $12,941.28 for 16 seconds of work.

The $25,000 added money at Thunder on Hooves is a major attractor for bull riders in the hunt to qualify for the national finals. The big pay day for Doyal showed what the bull ride here can do for an individual in the point standings.

It was about time for Royd to get a break that didn't involve a bone in some part of his body. A year ago in January he broke his arm and it

Attendance at Spirit Fest doubles in its second year

Detroit Lakes - "Ticket sales doubled," said a Spirit Fest organizer when comparing this year's attendance with that of last year.

Nearly 42,000 people visited the three-day festival at Son Pass Ranch July 16-18, enjoying Christian, alternative and children's music.

Organizers were very encouraged, noting that on the average it takes four years to break even on the expenses of putting on a show. Detroit Lakes Tribune

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere

I'm still in the 1995 – 1996 Lincoln Choir Cookbook – It has some good recipes and I've included the contributors. This week's recipes utilize some of that garden produce you have or expect to have this year.

Just in case you've got plenty of zucchini growing in your garden, you might like to have this recipe in your files:

ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE
6 medium zucchini
1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese
1 small onion, minced
1 teaspoon salt
2 beaten eggs
3 cups soft bread crumbs
3 tablespoons minced parsley
Dash of pepper
2 tablespoons butter

Wash zucchini and trim ends. Do not pare. Cook in boiling, salted water for 5 minutes and then cut into small cubes.

Combine with bread crumbs, cheese, onion, parsley, salt, pepper and eggs. Place in buttered casserole and dot with butter. Sprinkle with more cheese.

Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees.
-Matt Bitzegaio

Try this one when you're hungry for something tangy and sweet:

GREEN TOMATO PIE
3 medium sized tart apples
2 cups sliced green tomatoes
1/2 cup white sugar
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon allspice
2 scant tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Pastry for 2 crusts
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon melted butter or cream

Preheat oven to 450 degrees.

Peel and core apples and cut into 1/2 inch slices. Slice tomatoes into 1/2 inch slices.

In large bowl, combine white sugar, brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice and flour. Gently stir in apples, tomatoes and lemon juice.

Pour into pie shell and dot with butter. Cover with top crust, sealing edges and cutting slits into crust top.

Bake 15 minutes at 450 degrees until crust is browning, then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 50-60 minutes more or until juices are bubbling and apples test done when fork is poked into them.
-Katie Lendobeja

Your new little potatoes would taste great fixed this way:

PARMESAN POTATOES
6 large potatoes, peeled (or use 10-12 small new potatoes, scraped – depending on size)
1/4 cup flour
1/3 cup Parmesan cheese
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup butter
Chopped parsley

Cut peeled potatoes into quarters (or little potatoes in half).

Combine flour, cheese, salt and pepper in bag. Moisten potatoes with water and shake, a few at a time, in bag, coating well with mixture.

Melt butter in 9x13 inch pan. Place potatoes in melted butter and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour, turning once. When golden brown, sprinkle with parsley.
-Adam Fulton

Your lovely fresh broccoli can be used in this hearty dish:

BROCCOLI CASSEROLE
1 cup onion, chopped
1 cup celery, chopped
Butter
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 small jar Cheese Whiz
1 small can evaporated milk (3/4 cup)
1 cup Minute Rice
1 fresh or 1 package frozen broccoli

Saute onion and celery in butter until translucent.

Mix all ingredients, adding in rice and broccoli last.

Place in greased casserole and bake 30-45 minutes at 350 degrees.
-Jessica Pream

Fix those fresh carrots this way and everyone will want seconds:

GOURMET CARROTS
4 cups carrots
4 ounces Cheese Whiz
1 can sliced mushrooms, drained
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can water chestnuts, sliced
1 can French fried onion rings

Cook carrots in 1/2 cup water – do not drain.

Add Cheese Whiz, mushrooms, soup and water chestnuts and mix. Place in greased casserole. Top with onion rings and bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

Jurassic Park Comes to Rydell Refuge Sunday, August 1st

Velociraptors invading northwest Minnesota! Well, not quite, but a museum replica of a skull of velociraptor, the dinosaur that stalked people and hunted in packs in Jurassic Park will be featured along with lots of other skulls, furs, teeth, horns, antlers and fossils at a program presented by Ted Hoberg at 2 p.m. Sunday, August 1st at the Rydell National Wildlife Refuge.

Hoberg, seventh grade life sciences teacher from Grand Forks who has presented the popular and entertaining reptiles and amphibians program at the Refuge in recent years will be the featured presenter.

In a fun and informative way Ted will engage the audience in discovery of how mammals have evolved over the centuries and how their particular adaptations have helped them survive in their environments. Just a few of Ted's collection to be featured include fossilized rhino remains found in this area, a tooth from a saber tooth cat that prowled this area 10,000 years ago, and many skulls including a marsupial tasmanian tiger skull (believed to be extinct since 1930), a bat skull and the skull of the world's smallest animal. Come and find out what it is. A wide variety of furs and study skins will also be on display. Ted also will display a collection of spear and arrowheads as he notes man's influence on species survival over the years.

Touching and handling of most of the skulls, furs and other artifacts by the audience is encouraged by Ted as this is an informal, hands-on program. So bring your curiosity and questions to this fun and informative program which is free and open to the public. It is being cosponsored by the Maple Lake Improvement District, the Union Lake Sarah Improvement District, and Friends of the Rydell Refuge Association.

To get to the Rydell Refuge go 3 miles east of Mentor or 3 miles west of Erskine on U.S. Highway 2 and turn south on Polk County 210. Follow 210 about 2.5 miles south to the large entrance sign and main gate of the Refuge. If arriving from the south, turn north off of Polk County 41 onto Polk County 210 and go about 3.5 miles north and turn left at the Refuge entrance sign. If you have any questions contact the Rydell Refuge at (218) 687-2229 or Wayne Goeken at (218) 574-2622.

THE LYON'S SHARE

Tim Lyon

The Sultan of Smallies

His roots were so clearly from Iowa that you could see the rich topsoil wedged in the grooves on the underside of his Converse All-Stars. You could hear the sincerity in his voice and smell the naivete on his breath. He came "up north" with no pretensions or ulterior motives, carrying little more than a battered Plano tackle box and a couple of aging Fenwick Supreme rods paired comfortably with some hand-me-down baitcasting reels. He just wanted to experience the tall tales about the big lakes of the Upper Midwest that had graced his family's holiday table for generations.

He didn't possess a wealth of fishing knowledge. Indeed, he was far too young to possess a wealth of anything, but his keen eye and sharp mind, he knew, would stand him in good stead in any fishing situation.

His name was an easily forgettable Bill or John or Tom and that's what he was called for the first few months of his guiding career. Most remember him differently, however, when they think back to the heat and humidity of that miserable summer, because it was then that he acquired the more familiar moniker. It was then that he became Bass Ruth.

Yeah, he was a quick study. The walleye and northern patterns came clear quickly. Sauger and perch habits seemed to fall into obvious place. Some due diligence and a little good fortune even put some predictable success into the occasional muskie effort.

But it was his mastery of smallmouth that seemed to demand a generic explanation. From the shallow muddy bays of early spring to the deep, current soaked reefs of late fall, the achievements were impressive. Had it not been for the tenderness of his age and the greenness of his experience, the word "legendary" might have been applied. Excellence without longevity, however, is written off to luck.

His midsummer proficiency with the smallmouth suggested to some in this God-fearing community that a deal might have been struck with Satan himself. Guest after guest after guest would return from a day's fishing singing the praises of his bassing abilities. He would, they claimed, not only take them to fertile areas, but actually suggest the specifics of each individual cast. A little to the right, a tad closer to shore, between that weed and that rock—and all with tangible result. The line of fishing clients grew almost as quickly as did the line of skeptics. No on, they argued, was that good. Proof was needed.

Two local naysayers demanded that proof a week later as they contracted for a day of fishing. Bass fishing. A small crowd saw the three off from the public landing, half of them cheering their new fishing hero, the other half rooting for his failure. It was a steamy, hot Saturday, with little in the way of a forgiving breeze. The evening thunderstorm was an inevitability as the humidity wrenched itself toward the three digit mark. The same crowd, and then some, met the returning boat that afternoon, eagerly awaiting the definitive report. Could this kid pinpoint bass?

The two clients appeared overwhelmed, as if they'd just witnessed some alien invasion or spotted the dorsal of some Loch Ness clone. They couldn't get the story out fast enough. "At first, he'd tell us where to cast," they blithered, "and then, when we didn't follow his directions accurately, he started pointing, without saying a word. Like that Babe Ruth story where he points to the right field fence and then hits a home run there. He'd just point, and if we missed the spot he'd make us cast again until we hit the mark and then sure enough, hang, fish on, like he'd put the bass there himself!"

The name was an obvious hit, Bass Ruth, and for the better part of that summer his fame flourished. The kid had unlocked the secret to mid-season smallmouth and the world wanted to know. Magazine and newspaper accounts grew to a statewide stature. Radio and TV sought out the newfound bass-master. There seemed to be no end of those who wanted a piece of the blossoming Iowa youngster.

But, like all celebrity moments, the glory faded. Perhaps the notoriety went to his head and muddle his fishing talents; perhaps it should have gone to his head and didn't, squelched by that inherent Midwestern sense of modesty. Some say that over the next winter, Bass Ruth simply wore out his magic finger by silently pointing at one too many tap beer dispensers. Others say the power died the following July when steady handed gestures toward a boulder or ledge produced little more than a stray weed or random branch.

Requests for his services paralleled the dwindling numbers of bass. Bass Ruth settled into the ranks of the average, catching some fish and getting enough meager tips to keep him in beer until the end of the month paycheck arrived.

He never went back to Iowa, choosing instead the anonymous security of the big lake. He still takes a lot of bass trips for hire. Perhaps you've fished with him. A chance flurry of smallmouth on a hot summer afternoon will stir the cloudy memory of the glory days of yesteryear.

He'll stand and meticulously scope a shoreline for hidden detail, detail that belies the true nature of the bass. He might even raise his arm slightly and stretch a crooked finger toward some general, unseen destination.

But he never really points at anything specific. Rather his motions are more of a general indication toward that one special summer when he was known as Bass Ruth.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Red flags really went up in my mind when I read The Times' front page story about the Medical Center board accepting new membership applications (Thief River Falls Times, Wed., July 28).

Flag # 1 concerned the check from Dakota Clinic for $1,000 covering 100 new members, obviously persons selected by Dakota Clinic. There can only be one conclusion: this is an attempt to control the future decisions of the hospital board. One hundred members, all with the same interest decided beforehand, will definitely be a controlling factor in an otherwise public group.

Flag #2 raises the questions: Why is this necessary? How does Dakota Clinic benefit? What happens to public control of our medical center?

I believe as a member of the public that we need an explanation by the officials who control the Dakota Clinic. The timing indicates an immediate attempt to influence the upcoming election to the board of directors of Northwest Medical Center.

Since Dr. Jim Langland seems to be appointed spokesman for Dakota Clinic, I believe that he must be called on to present the clinic's full intentions in specific detail.

It doesn't matter that the new memberships are now made legal with personal checks, the damage is done. There is no way the public can accept the true interests of the clinic without complete, understandable explanations of their reasoning.

Sincerely,
Ormond Johnson
Thief River Falls

To The Editor:

Attention, Pennington county taxpayers. If your county commissioners had the opportunity to save you money and get more return for your tax dollar, read on: this may be of interest to you.

On Jan. 1, 1999, the Pennington county highway employees voted to join the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 49 as our exclusive bargaining representatives. We decided it was time to create a communication link between us and the county board.

We have not had representation in the past and if an employee went to the board, that person would be penalized both verbally and in writing. We have been negotiating a contract with the board for nearly two years and they refuse to settle a contract with us. We have decided to drop 15 items from our proposal and will settle based on two items, wages and insurance.

A modest wage increase and we will still be way behind regional counties, cities and the state highway departments in wage and health insurance. This plan provided by Local 49 will save county taxpayers over $10,600 compared to our existing health plan and we would receive better coverage. The health insurance plan savings would more than offset our wage increase.

The county board will not even consider it, they are quoted as saying "the money doesn't matter." Well, it does matter; we pay taxes here, too. We haven't had a wage increase for two years and every other county employee has. Call your commissioners and ask them why they don't want to save you money.

Ask them about the private attorney they use to negotiate union contracts for the county, spend tens of thousands of dollars and save what? Yes, it shows money doesn't matter to this county board. We would like to settle this contract as soon as possible without a walkout. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mel Melland, IUOE Local 49, for all highway department employees

To The Editor:

It is heart sickening to see the conditions taking place in our America, the land of the free and the home of the brave. Why talk about helping the very sick to end their lives. Why not show them the way to someone who can comfort them and give them strength in time of their great need?

Why so many suicides, especially among the young who have their whole lives left to live? Why so many divorces? Isn't it the truth that selfishness by one of the other or both parties is at fault? Who suffers the most? Of course it is the precious children who are not at all the fault of it.

It seems like none of the above have anyone to come to in their hour of despair. There is someone who really cares, who really wants to help the down-and-outer. His name is Jesus.

How His heart must hurt to see what is happening and who really cares. I know some care and others criticize because they don't know how to help. Many of us human beings can ask why these things happen and seem concerned, but are we really concerned?

The real answer is Christ who healed the sick and helped the helpless, those in need, while He walked on earth. He can give the same comfort and strength to those who come to Him now. Don't deny the only real help which is free for the asking.

Yours Sincerely,
Lillie Asp

False Fears Reduce Attention On Problems

Highly publicized threats to Americans and American society pose a greater danger by diverting attention from real problems than they help in creating awareness of problems, according to Barry Glassner, Ph.D., author of a new book entitled The Culture of Fear: Why Americans Are Afraid of the Wrong Things.

"We waste tens of billions of dollars and person-hours every year on largely mythical dangers," writes Glassner, a sociologist at the University of Southern California.

Specifically what is the author talking about when he refers to exaggerated national fears? For instance:

- There has never been a confirmed death or injury from a stranger poisoning Halloween candy since the scare first surfaced in 1958.
- Despite the trendy "going postal" phrase, postal workers are two and one-half times less likely to be killed on their jobs than the average worker.
- If you were to add up all the mentions in the press of the millions of Americans with heart disease, cancer, migraines or other illnesses, you'd find that the total number of Americans who are sick with a serious disease is 543 million—a shocking number in a nation of 266 million inhabitants.

The problem with aggrandizing questionable concerns, Glassner says, is that legitimate concerns tend to get trivialized.

Isn't it odd, he asks, how little we've heard about the menace of drunk driving since "road rage" was coined—especially since drunk drivers cause about 85 times as many deaths as road rage.

Those who write articles about how cybercreeps are a menace to children omit the fact that it is poor children—few of whom can afford America Online connections—who are disproportionately abused, and it is in children' own homes and those of close relatives that sexual abuse commonly occurs.

In the mid-1990s, when the press was obsessed with airline accidents that resulted in a few dozen deaths in the best years to a few hundred in the worst, dangerous work conditions each year resulted in the deaths of more than 50,000 Americans and the injury of almost seven million more, Glassner said.

"The public has become skeptical and critical of the news media in recent years—and part of the reason has to do with ignoring truly important concerns and compounding others beyond all reason," Glassner writes.

In 1992, the out-of-wedlock pregnancy of television character Murphy Brown stirred an all-out attack on unwed mothers, particularly those in their teens. Politicians said teen mothers were destroying the country and if the problem wasn't controlled there would be a national disaster.

"That just seemed impossible to me in principle," Glassner said. "There aren't enough of them and they're mostly poor, so even if you added up all the possible consequences this could never amount to one of the nation's biggest problems."

Research by Glassner showed that fewer than 22,000 teen moms throughout the United States lived without adult supervision. And between 1992 and 1996, teen motherhood declined by nearly 12 percent.

After spending five years poring over more than 10,000 newspaper, radio and television accounts of social issues, Glassner discovered a distinct pattern.

"Scratch the surface of any pseudo-fear and you'll find a wide variety of groups that stand to benefit from promoting the scares—including businesses, advocacy organizations, religious sects and political parties," he said. "No amount of debunking can wipe out a fear as long as someone can still find a way to profit from it."

The majority of missing children are runaways fleeing from physically or emotionally abusive parents and most of the remaining missing children are "throwaways" rejected by their parents or children abducted by estranged parents. Yet national studies show three out of four parents continue to fear that a stranger will kidnap their child.

While the nation's murder rate declined 20 percent from 1990 to 1998, the number of murder stories on network news increased 600 percent, Glassner calculated. And that is more than just a guess. As a sociologist, Glassner is well regarded for his expertise in methodology— devising measurements needed to make reliable scientific claims.

"A group that raises money for research into a particular disease is not likely to negate or soften concerns about that disease," he says. "A company that sells alarms is not about to call attention to the fact that crime is down."

All this isn't to say that concerns about crime, abduction, airplane crashes, abuse, teen pregnancy and other societal ills are baseless. They are problems that deserve a degree of attention. The point is that there are other problems which affect many more people that are not being addressed while the focus is on smaller problems that are being exaggerated.

Wind Clearcuts 125,000 Acres Of BWCAW Trees

A couple of weeks ago we expressed the opinion that trees toppled by the windstorm which swept through the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness (BWCAW) should be harvested to whatever extent possible, rather than allowed to go to waste as untouchable in a "natural" setting.

Initial reports from the BWCAW indicate 250,000 acres with more than 70 percent of the trees down; 25 million trees toppled, representing five million cords of wood with an estimated value of $200 million to $300 million. These estimates do not include damage outside the wilderness preserve.

It might be expected that some of this area is relatively inaccessible, but perimeter areas in many cases could likely be reached for retrieval and use of downed timber. Leaving these areas untouched is not only wasteful but an invitation to future problems.

"It is not yet clear how the U.S. Forest Service will deal with the imminent threat to adjacent lands posed by the BWCAW blowdown," states an article in the July/August issue of Timber Bulletin, published by the Minnesota Timber Producers Association. "The downed trees provide a substantial risk for wildfire and insects. When the fires and insects come, they are not likely to confine themselves to the human imposed borders of the BWCAW."

This truth is supplanted by other facts pointed out in the article regarding trees in the forested area of Minnesota.

"It is well known that the forests of Minnesota have been subject to regular and substantial disturbance throughout history. These disturbances include windthrow, fire, insects and diseases. In modern times, fires have been suppressed, insects and diseases fought and windthrow has been cleaned up after the fact.

"....outside of wilderness and restricted areas, timber harvesting has been used as a means of renewing the forest through controlled disturbance....Young, vigorous and maturing forests that grow after timber harvesting are under represented in Minnesota's forested landscape. These forests are more resistant to catastrophic events like the July 4th weekend windstorms than are overmature forests.

"....What is clear is that neither forests nor trees can be 'saved.' They will be harvested. They will be clearcut. In this event, one-fourth of the BWCAW was clearcut by mother nature in a matter of hours.

"These wilderness forests will remain forests, just as forests that are harvested to provide products for society remain forests. Each of these harvested forests will be different than they were before. But they will both continue to provide the fruits of jobs, products, recreation and wildlife that they did before.

"Maybe the BWCAW clearcut will provide a greater understanding of forest dynamics to the opponents of timber harvesting."

Arctic Cat declares quarterly dividend

Board of directors of Arctic Cat Inc. in Thief River Falls has declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of six cents per share of common and class B common stock. The dividend is payable Sept. 1, 1999, to shareholders of record on August 18.

One of The King & I props crew members, Peter Hoks, stands beside the elephant Peter made for the All American Festival parade King & I float and which will be used in the "Procession of the White Elephant" sequence. Because the real Thai royal palace is painted in blues, reds and gold, the elephant and the palette on which it will ride are adorned in those same colors. Also shown is one of the dancers, Sarah Kopecky, holding a painted parasol. Painting parasols is an old Thai tradition still carried on today. Props coordinator for the show is Stephania Oagan. Stephanie is in charge of a variety of unique props for The King & I which will be presented August 3-7 at 7 p.m. at August 8 at 2 p.m. at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. Tickets are currently on sale at Budget.

Construction in Park Rapids area is now underway

Construction work on Highway 71 between Park Rapids and Itasca State Park is now underway and will be in progress until mid-September, according to the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

"The highway remains open during construction but drivers will need to be patient and follow signing instructions through the project," states Roger Bachmann, project supervisor for Mn/DOT.

"Flagging operations and the use of pilot cars are in place and drivers should be extremely alert when passing through the area."

Mn/DOT asks motorists to be extremely cautious when approaching any construction zone and to please remember that when they see orange they should slow down and remember that "we're in the work zone together."

■ Monday, Aug. 2 - (championship) if needed, 6:30 p.m.

It was a clean sweep for the South Division Thursday in the opening round of the 1999 Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament at Roseau.

Moorhead beat Crookston 6-4, Fergus Falls defeated East Grand Forks 8-3, Detroit Lakes out-scored Thief River Falls 16-12, and Perham knocked off Roseau 9-1, dropping all four North Division teams into the loser's bracket of the double-elimination event at Gilbertson Field.

The football-like final in the Thief River Falls vs. Detroit Lakes match-up fit in with a season-long pattern for Post 117. The Mike Wienen-coached squad came up with double-digit run production for the 11th time in the last 17 games and for the 16th time this summer. But it was also the 15th time the 15-18 team has given up 10 or more runs in a game.

Both sides scored three times in their first at-bat, and Thief River Falls went ahead 6-3 in the third before Detroit Lakes scored a dozen fourth inning runs – an outburst fueled by six Thief River Falls errors.

"We played great baseball for six innings," said Wienen. "We had the one bad inning. We missed ground balls and dropped fly balls. We didn't make the plays we normally make."

U of M monitoring more aphids, rust in small grains

However, scab remains research focal point

University of Minnesota crop scientists are keeping a close eye on higher levels of aphids and rust in small grains this year. However, fusarium head blight, commonly called scab, continues to be the major small grains production concern and research focal point.

About 200 producers turned out for a research update on scab and other production topics, at the Northwest Research and Outreach Center's (formerly called the Northwest Experiment Station) small grains field day held recently near Crookston. Much of the research is supported in part by the Minnesota Wheat Checkoff, administered by the Minnesota Wheat Research and Promotion Council.

Southerly winds are responsible for the larger number of aphids in small grains this year, says U of M extension entomologist Ian MacRae. Aphids don't overwinter; they migrate to the region from the south in late spring. Infestations can be sporadic. "There's no telling where you are going to get them. One field may be colonized, while the field next door may be clean."

MacRae says aphid activity causes gradual damage in small grains, stealing nutrients from plants that later results in stunted plants and less yield.

Some later planted fields may still be vulnerable to aphids, but scout and treat fields only if warranted. Aphid treatment is optimal when wheat is in the flag leaf stage. "By heading, it's too late," says MacRae. Parasitic insects, rain, and a fungal disease that kills aphids will help reduce aphid populations as the growing season progresses. There are several species of aphids, including greenbug, English grain aphid, and bird cherry-oat aphids, which transmit barley yellow dwarf virus in small grains. This disease is causing some stunting and yellowing of wheat and barley this year.

However, stem and leaf rust has been the most predominant disease in small grains thus far this growing season. Stem rust samples received this year at the U.S. Agriculture Department's Cereal Disease Lab in St. Paul, are twice as great as in recent years. And leaf rust is more severe and concentrated in the Upper Midwest this year than it has been in the last 20 years, according to the CDL.

The increase in rust can be attributed to more inoculum of the disease produced on winter wheat further south that has spread north. Temperature and moisture have also been ideal for rust infections in the Northern Plains this year. Further, there is a tradeoff with some varieties such as 2375 and AC Barrie that farmers have turned to in recent years for better performance against scab: these varieties are more susceptible to leaf rust. More information on rust may be found on the CDL's website: www.cdl.umn.edu.

U of M plant pathologist Roger Jones says fungicides can help protect wheat and barley from rust infections. Tilt and Folicur are two products that offer systemic disease suppression. Studies indicate that while Tilt offers slightly better control against leaf diseases, Folicur offers slightly better suppression of scab. Timing is important: applications after plants are fully headed are likely too late to provide adequate control of rust or scab. The treatment window has passed for most wheat and barley fields this season. There may be a few later planted fields, however, where treatment might still be considered.

Most hard red spring wheat varieties grown in Minnesota are resistant to prevalent races of leaf and stem rust. Still, crop scientists are monitoring this year's rust problem closely, as varieties formerly considered resistant can become susceptible if shifts in virulence or new races of rust occur.

While there are management options and crop breeding material available to treat and research rust in small grains, there are fewer management options for scab, points out Bob Busch, who will retire as wheat breeder for the U of M and USDA next year. That's why scab continues to be a major focus of research at the U of M. Busch and new U of M wheat breeder Jim Anderson say the level of scab resistance has increased in wheat breeding material being developed at the U of M.

McVey is a new spring wheat variety that has advanced from the accelerated scab breeding effort. It slows the spread of scab in the seed head, so fewer kernels are destroyed. It is one of the first new varieties that doesn't sacrifice yield for better scab tolerance. The Minnesota Crop Improvement Association distributed McVey seed this year to certified seed growers for increase.

Longtime barley breeder Don Rasmusson and new breeder Kevin Smith are also making advancements in the U of M barley breeding program. MNBrite is a six-row barley variety released by the Minnesota Ag Experiment Station last year that offers partial resistance, with scabby kernels and DON (deoxynivalenol, a byproduct of scab that can make barley unsuitable for malting) about one half the level of Robust in an infection. "We're encouraged by MNBrite because it's progress. But it's still not where we want to be, and that's to have DON levels consistently below two parts per million," says Smith. Smith says small grains molecular work at the U of M, headed by Gary Muehlbauer, is making significant advancements that will aid the state's scab research effort. Busch points out that under heavy scab pressure, even new scab tolerant varieties will not be totally immune. That's why scab research at the U of M encompasses several areas, including cultural, rotational, and chemical means of control. More information on scab research at the U of M may be found online at <http://www.rapidresponse.umn.edu/smallgrains/grains-topic.html>.

Mastitis continues a big problem in dairy herds

by George D. Marx
U of M Dairy Scientist
Northwest Experiment Station
Crookston

Mastitis continues to be the number one disease in dairy cows, yet in recent years research study on this disease which invades the cow's mammary gland has diminished. In dairy alone, mastitis losses are $2 billion per year to the industry.

Scab disease in small grains has cost the crops industry a similar amount, but millions of dollars are being spent to find resistance, cure or treatment. Such is not the case with mastitis, the thinking apparently being that it's an old disease and a cure may never be found since there are many types of mastitis to study.

The best way for the producer to deal with mastitis is to pay attention to detail and use preventative measures. This includes cleanliness and sanitation, good milking practices, a properly operating milking system, good housing and environment and good dry cow management.

Also involved is the monitoring of herd somatic cell counts, incidence of new clinical cases and selective culling of chronic cows. A mention of all these factors may alert an individual to something he or she might do to help solve a continuing problem or keep it in check and under control. Many of the new infections occur in first lactation animals, at calving or early lactation.

Environmental mastitis such as Strep and E. coli are best controlled by keeping cows clean and dry between milkings and minimize the exposure of teats and udder to dirty and wet conditions. Stalls should be maintained in a clean and dry condition by removing manure from stalls at least twice daily. Do not let cows have access to ponds, drainage ditches or swampy areas. Calving areas should be clean and dry.

Prevention can also involve dry cow therapy, immunization during the dry period and early lactation, and keeping accurate treatment records. Good milking procedures are essential. Pre-dipping and post-dipping teats will help along with clean and dry teats at milking time. Avoid excessive use of water and milk with rubber/nitrile gloves. This will also help preserve the operator's hands from erosion caused by chemicals or allergy and helps in stopping spread of infections.

Many milker operators have cracked and chapped hands and wearing gloves will help. All of our milker operators are required to wear gloves when milking cows at the Northwest Experiment Station in Crookston.

Some contagious infections such as staph or mycoplasma are spread to non-infected cows during milking. Good stimulation is essential by forestripping, massaging the teats and teat ends, then attaching the milker unit within 20 to 30 seconds of stimulation or when the teats are flush.

Be sure the milker unit is properly adjusted during milking and remove the unit immediately when the cow is finished—either manually or by automatic take-offs. Do not overmilk or even think of overmilking. Never machine strip cows.

Many other little things contribute to prevention of mastitic cows. Milk mastitis prone cows last, and back flush units between mastitis cows if possible. Mastitis treated cows should be segregated and milked last and the milk discarded. Antibiotic contamination or an overflow into the bulk tank must be absolutely avoided as it can cost you a two-day supply of milk and maybe your business if repeated incidents occur.

Keep the milking equipment maintained with proper vacuum level and use good quality liners. Some producers utilize a trained serviceman or veterinarian who can test for pump capacity, system leakage, effective vacuum reserve and operating vacuum, teat end vacuum, regulator load, pulsator performance and graphing of the milk to rest ratios and regulator and pulsator response when operational.

Lastly, keep the flies and other insects under control, somatic cells down and feed sufficient vitamin A and E with selenium, if needed, to maintain a good immune system in the cow.

EPA grants Section 18 approval to fungicide

Section 18 approval of the fungicide Folicur (tebuconazole) used to control scab in wheat and barley has been granted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), according to an article in Small Grains Update, published by the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers (MAWG).

James Jones, director of the registration division in EPA's office of pesticide programs, said that up to 500,000 acres of wheat and 150,000 acres of barley in Minnesota may be treated with the product for scab suppression. The label is in effect from April 9 to August 25, 1999.

One application will be allowed by air or ground at a maximum rate of four fluid ounces of product per acre. Folicur may be applied up to 50 percent heading but application may not be made within 30 days of harvest.

This will be the third year that the EPA has granted Folicur a Section 18 label, which is temporary emergency exemption registration for a specific production problem or pest and weather-related epidemic.

Research at the University of Minnesota and North Dakota State University indicates that Folicur applied at anthesis or grain flowering helps to suppress scab in wheat and barley, boosting yield and improving quality of harvested grain.

"We were pressing for full federal label approval, but the product became caught in a registration backlog of the EPA's review process," explained David Torgerson, executive director of the MAWG. "Still, we're glad the EPA approved a temporary Section 18 label for use of Folicur this summer. For adequate production input planning, growers need to know the availability of the product as a treatment option, so this is a timely announcement."

Obtaining a Section 18 label is a lengthy process requiring a needs assessment and documentation by plant scientists. Cooperation from state ag departments and university officials is vital, and greatly appreciated, Torgerson added.

hasn't heard from the other 3,970 people, he said, who might use the bridge on a daily basis.

The council gave its approval to proceed with plans for improvements to an emergency underpass. CP Railroad notified the city that it could proceed with improvements to an emergency vehicle underpass, which is located in Elk's Park.

The city has received a good audit report. Tom Kays and Ray Safranski of Kays, Benton and Safranski, LLP, appeared before the council to deliver the annual financial report for the city. Kays said the city had a relatively good year and further described it as "steady." The city, he added, is in good financial shape and he reported a clean opinion for the government.

Following numerous meetings and appearances before the city council, a request to re-zone property formerly known as the Evangelical Free Church of Thief River Falls at 315 Duluth Avenue North, was approved. The issue before the council involved rezoning the property from R-2, a residential designation, to C-4, a commercial property designation. Joel Kezar requested the change to allow operation of Kezar Music at the location.

The Planning Commission had recommended that the council not grant the request. The council has considered the matter at several city council meetings and has referred the matter to a number of committees for review. One of the concerns expressed, was that allowing this property to be rezoned could allow a wide variety of businesses to operate at the location if Kezar decided to sell the building.

Kezar eventually obtained an option to purchase on condition the council approved the zoning amendment and variances to allow operation of Kezar Music. That seemed to help some council members in making the decision to approve the amendment request.

Nevertheless, it was a close vote. City ordinance requires a two-thirds majority in such matters, which meant six of the eight council representatives had to vote in favor of the rezoning, which was exactly the result of a vote on this matter.

In other business, the council: extended the calendar year time limit beyond the six-month limitation in the city's category 1 policy for an off-sale clerk; approved a recommendation to appoint part-time patrol officer, Corey Pausch, to fill the full-time patrol officer position vacated by Jim Hulteen; approved a request for beer in the park for city staff on Wednesday, August 4, from 5 to 9, and for the Rotary club on Monday, August 16 from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Oakland Park; approved a salary progression raise for Gerald B. Hanson, part-time patrol officer; approved a salary progression raise for Teresa Mattison, patrol officer; approved a salary progression raise for Steve Hams, water treatment plant operator; declared the 1985 GMC with 1974 Jet Cleaner as surplus property from the wastewater department; approved a request to advertise to fill the vacant public works maintenance - government buildings position; approved a state agreement for airport operations and maintenance funding; and awarded the airport ramp bid to Davidson Construction.

A flea market will also be held during the day with a limited amount of space available. For flea market information call 781-2820 or 781-2656. Concession stands will be available throughout the day and those taking part in the day's events are encouraged to bring their own lawn chairs.

National Night Out celebrated in TRF Tuesday

National Night Out, a national celebration involving an estimated 3.7 million people in over 9,500 communities throughout the United States, will also include residents of Thief River Falls, Tuesday, August 3.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said National Night Out is designed to heighten drug and crime awareness, generate support for participation in local crime programs, strengthen neighborhoods and support police and community partnerships. It will also send a message to criminals, he said, that neighborhoods are fighting back.

Activities in Thief River Falls will take place at Floyd B. Olson Park in downtown Thief River Falls, and begins with a free supper from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. That supper will be served by the city council and Mayor. Activities will include kid's events, a crime prevention booth, an emergency response vehicle display, and a demonstration by the Thief River Falls Canine unit.

There will also be door prizes, frisbees, and entertainment provided by Vern Rogalla, Miss TRF, Katie Christensen, and the musical group, "Head of State."

At about 8:30 p.m. the program will wrap up with a walk against crime. Everyone is invited to participate.

Several area students on UND Dean's list

The Dean's list includes students whose grade point averages are in the top 15 percent of the enrollment in each of the University's degree-granting colleges and schools. A student must have completed no fewer than 12 semester hours of academic work for the semester, of which eight or more hours must be graded work rather than "satisfactory/unsatisfactory."

Area students named to the Dean's list include: Grygla — Anthony Holthusen; Newfolden — Tricia Pederson; Red Lake Falls — Maria Orivno, Gary Schindler; Roseau — Todd Hagen, Trevor Hammer, Kathryn Herseth, and Heidi Nikunen; Stephen — Angela Jensen, Vernon Kuznia, Nathan Smith; Strandquist — Chad Hanson; Thief River Falls — Jill Dekkers, Rebecca Mattson, Taro Nesland, Jennifer Olin; Warroad — Christian Hallett, Tammy King, Adam Paulson.

Border fishing dispute attacked under NAFTA

Formal dispute settlement proceedings under the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) have begun by the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR) "to address discriminatory regulations imposed by Ontario on Minnesota anglers," according to the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development (DTED).

The action coincides with the deadline for action on a petition filed with USTR in March by a group of Minnesota border resorts and tourism businesses.

In addition to formal request for consultations issued Thursday, July 29, DTED Commissioner Jerry Carlson met last week with senior U.S., Canadian and Ontario officials to discuss the ongoing dispute. He termed the talks as frank and useful.

"Minnesota's tourism industry in the border lakes area has been severely damaged by Ontario's regulations," Commissioner Carlson said. "We hope that future consultations will lead to a resolution of this longstanding problem."

Also attending last Thursday's meeting in Ottawa was Roy Payer, the Department of Natural Resources chief of fisheries. "We are always willing to discuss any genuine conservation issues with Ontario that ensure the preservation of our fisheries," Payer said. "But we also think that Ontario should not require that Minnesotans spend money on their tourism industry as a condition for keeping their fish."

Ontario first imposed the regulations on Rainy Lake fishing in 1994. Non-residents who wanted to keep certain fish they caught on the Canadian side of the border lakes were required to spend money on Ontario lodging and services. Last year, those limits were extended to Rainy River and Lake of the Woods —and business at Minnesota resorts quickly plunged by 50 percent in the Northwest Angle region of Lake of the Woods.

With the action taken Thursday, the United States requests Canada to enter into formal consultations in which the two sides will have 30 days to reach a negotiated settlement before the U.S. proceeds to the next steps in international arbitration.

The group filing the petition is represented by Jim Southwick (612-3[illegible]0-7821) of the Minneapolis-based law firm of Dorsey and Whitney.

severely shortened his riding season. On the bright side, however, his daughter Cierra was just three months old when he broke his arm and the lay-off gave him time to spend with her and his wife Tracie. Time at home is a luxury for riders on the PBR circuit.

Doyal had ridden a couple of weeks previously in the Headwaters of the Mississippi Rodeo and Bull Ride in Park Rapids but failed to win any money. For Thunder on Hooves, he flew from a rodeo in Salt Lake City to the Twin Cities and caught a ride with several other riders coming this way from Minneapolis. He figured it would save him "a hundred bucks" in air fare.

"I went into a convenience store to pick up some pop and snacks," he said, "and when I came out they were all sleeping. That gave me a four-hour stretch at the wheel."

The drive must have done him some good as he nailed both rides Saturday before picking up his check and hitting the road for North Carolina. He didn't expect to get back home for about six weeks.

And he also expected to hit a few more rodeos in that time, hoping to qualify for the National Finals Rodeo (NFR) in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA). In fact, he made the high scoring ride of his career with a 94 on "Red Wolf" at the NFR in 1996 and picked up about $35,000 in prize money that year.

Doyal said he hopes things work out so he can come back to try and defend his title at Thunder on Hooves next year. He has just about 13,000 reasons to give it another try.

Crookston mayor modifies teen curfew

Every element of the emergency drill held in Thief River Falls Wednesday was executed almost as if it was a real emergency. Above, firemen spray a semi-trailer and railway car hauling anhydrous ammonia to prevent fire and disperse an anhydrous ammonia cloud. During this element of the exercise, firemen also had to rescue an injured truck driver, take him through a decontamination unit and to a location where he could be transferred into the care of ambulance personnel who would then transfer the victim to the hospital.

Medical center planning $6.2 million renovation

Northwest Medical Center board is contemplating a major facility renovation project which would provide the look of a new hospital and consolidate some services for a more convenient and efficient operation, according to information made available to medical center staff this week. Estimated cost of the project has been placed at $6.2 million.

"Northwest has performed routine building repairs and maintenance in recent years, but there has been no major facility expansion, renovating nor updating expenditures since the attached medical office building was built in 1977," notes Richard Spyhalski, Chief Executive Officer.

The local medical center facility consists of three components—the hospital itself, the medical office building and the C&NC unit. The hospital was built in 1932 with major additions in 1954 and 1964. In 1970 the C&NC unit was added and in 1977 the medical office building was constructed to house clinic operations.

At the present time the ground floor of the C&NC unit is being used by Altru Clinic and the ground floor of the medical office building is used by the medical center for laboratory, emergency room, imaging, admitting, medical records and physician lounge. The first and second floors of the medical office building have been vacant since Dakota Clinic Ltd. moved to its new clinic facilities on Highway 59 Southeast.

According to information provided to hospital staff, the major portion of the proposed renovation will involve the medical office building—approximately $5 million of the building renovation and expansion costs. This would include addition of approximately 10,400 square feet of space and major renovation to all three floors.

The hospital would continue use of the ground floor but the space would be extensively renovated and a canopy would be added at the entrance.

First floor of the medical office building would utilize part of the expansion and be fully renovated to convert currently vacant clinic space into a new outpatient clinic to be leased to Altru Health System. The space would be expected to provide 12 offices, 33 examining rooms and appropriate reception and waiting areas.

Second floor of the medical office building would be converted to provide a new 38-bed patient care area. Several services would be moved from present second floor locations, including intensive care and obstetrics. The new area would include 14 single occupancy rooms and eight double occupancy rooms, as well as four single rooms for intensive care and four single rooms for obstetric units.

"All these rooms would be built with their own private toilet and bathing facilities and include other patient amenities and services that are attendant to the most modern hospital design," Spyhalski said.

The CEO added that no changes are contemplated in the C&NC unit or other ground floor areas of the medical center at this time. He said physical therapy could be relocated to vacated Altru Clinic space on the C&NC ground floor in the future, but such a move is not part of the proposed renovation project.

Renovation and expansion costs are estimated at $5,500,000. An additional $500,000 is projected for equipment, furniture and fixtures—an amount in addition to $600,000 for routine equipment, furniture and fixture additions during the year the renovation and expansion is completed.

No architectural plans nor drawings have been completed at this time nor has the proposal reached a stage where construction starting or completion time has been projected.

Emergency disaster drill tests agencies

A team effort led to the successful management of an emergency disaster drill in Thief River Falls Wednesday. The exercise was so well executed that it concluded more than an hour earlier than anticipated.

Wednesday's event tested the city's and Canadian Pacific Railway's emergency preparedness. The scenario devised over months of planning, involved a semi tractor trailer colliding with a southbound CP locomotive. Saddle tanks on the semi were ruptured and about 200 gallons of diesel fuel then entered the city's storm sewer at the corner of Atlantic Avenue and Third Street. The driver of the tractor-trailer was injured, and the collision with the train also led to an anhydrous ammonia tank car slightly discharging a vapor cloud of anhydrous ammonia.

When such accidents take place a number of actions take place almost instantaneously. The railroad contacted their network management center to report the incident. The center then notifies the local station superintendent, the local fire department, the Minnesota State Duty Officer, county 911, and the railroad emergency teams, which would also include private contractors retained to respond to emergency situations.

When the local law enforcement dispatch center receives such a call, they shut down the water intake valve, which sounds alarms at the water treatment facility. They are then informed of the cause of the shut down and they begin emergency steps. Law enforcement is dispatched along with ambulance and fire department personnel.

Incident command for this incident remained with the Thief River Falls Police department. The police chief, Ken Froschheiser, is the emergency management director for the City of Thief River Falls. The police chief, in consultation with other officials determines whether there is a threat to nearby residents. If there is a threat, a plan is in place for emergency evacuation procedures. In this situation, the media would be notified and asked to broadcast public service announcements warning residents of the problem and actions to take. If necessary, the law enforcement center also has the capabilities of cable television interrupt.

Because the city has a new hazardous material response container as a result of an agreement with CP Railway, the city's fire department has access to hazardous material containment booms and other materials used in cleanup.

All of the emergency response teams who would respond if this situation were real, participated in the emergency drill Wednesday. In addition to all of the emergency response teams, which came from St. Paul, Bemidji, Fargo-Moorhead, and Thief River Falls, about a dozen people were asked observe the activities. In all, there were close to 100 participants.

The exercise was not just a exercise executed on paper. Participants were asked to go through all of the motions of a real emergency. As an example, the driver of the semi and semi, obtained from Prowler Express, were at the scene. The driver pretended to be injured and had to be evacuated from the scene by firemen wearing self-contained breathing units, and taken to the hospital by the ambulance. Their actions were monitored by observers at all times. All other participants, police and sheriff department officials, railway workers, hospital employees, and the media were all asked to participate in the exercise as if it was a real emergency.

Even the Mayor of Thief River Falls was required to participate in the exercise. Mayor Mark Borheim is the public information officer in the event of an emergency (City Administrator Roger DeLap is the second public information officer.) Borheim handled media interviews and public service announcements and would do so in the event of a real emergency, according to city emergency

Hanson accomplishes much on farm, in the community

Editor's Note: Norma Hanson of rural Goodridge was selected 1999 Country Woman of the Year by Farm and Ranch Guide and honored on Country Woman Day at the North Dakota State Fair in Minot on Friday, July 30. She had been nominated for the award by Rhoda Gust of Strathcona, a finalist in the 1998 Country Woman of the Year contest and by Janice Larson of Gatzke.

As winner of the award, Norma received a limited edition print of a Terry Redlin painting, $300 from Farm & Ranch Guide, $150 from Cass-Clay Creameries, $25 from the Beef Council, an afghan and an overnight stay at the Ramada Plaza in Fargo, ND.

In 1995, Norma was selected as one of 22 women in the United States to have her written summary of her working day and items symbolizing her work sealed in a time capsule in Washington, DC, on the 75th anniversary of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor. The capsule will be opened on the 100th anniversary of the Women's Bureau in the year 2020.

An excerpt from Norma's summary for inclusion in the time capsule stated:

"A typical day on our farm starts at 4:30 a.m. with a cup of coffee. We head for the barn at 5:00, where we are greeted by a herd of registered Ayrshire cows. We are back in the house at 7:30. We catch a lot of world and local TV news. One must get the weather report as well....it can change the day's plans in a hurry. Pay bills and finish up with bookkeeping. My husband comes in and asks me to help hook up a piece of machinery and later on to help load up the wheat to take to the local elevator. It's now 11 a.m. and time to start dinner. The day's work comes to an end by 8:30 p.m. but in

Garden tour today spotlights six local planting sites

The yard of Dave and Betty Peterson of rural Thief River Falls will be among the sites to visit on today's tour of area gardens sponsored by area master gardeners and the Moccasin garden club. The Petersons' yard features a variety of plants and a kaleidoscope of color. Other sites on the tour include Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village, Challenger elementary school and the rural homes of Douglass and Kay Steiger, Norris and Arlene Thune and Ted and Darlene Koropatnicki.

Northern Watch Reporter

You don't have to have a green thumb yourself to appreciate the beauty of a garden nor do you have to be an adult. Just ask Katrina, Ethan and Makayla Peterson.

The threesome are the children of David and Betty Peterson, and their home will be one of those featured today (Saturday, August 7) on the tour of gardens sponsored by local master gardeners and the Moccasin garden club.

From Thief River Falls, the Peterson family lives three miles east on Highway 1, one mile north and a half mile east. Their home was built in 1991 on land purchased from David's grandfather, Clarence Peterson. David grew up just across the road and farms with his brother, Rick, and dad, Arnold Peterson. He also teaches math and computers at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls.

While gardening has evolved into the nation's number one pastime only in recent years, it's a lifetime tradition for the Peterson family. David's grandmother, Emma, was an avid flower gardener, and Betty, who grew up in the Oklee area, learned to preserve produce from her mother.

The tradition continues as David and Betty's children participate in all aspects of gardening from weeding to watering. Katrina is eight, Ethan is five — "almost six," — and Makayla is two. All are avid conversationalists whose excitement about the many plants and trees in their yard is contagious.

While Makayla will probably stay pretty close to mom, it is sure that Katrina and Ethan will help their parents answer the questions of those who visit their home during today's tour. Two master gardeners will also be on hand at each of the tour sites.

Pine trees, nurtured from 6-inch seedlings from across the road, surround the Peterson building site, and the carefully placed trees in the large yard include a number of fruit

Crookston mayor modifies teen curfew

Crookston - In response to an apparent escalation in youth violence, or at least the potential for violence related to supposed gang activity in town, Crookston's Mayor Don Osborne has ordered a change in the city's curfew until further notice.

Effective Monday, August 2, the curfew for young people under the age of 18 will be 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. Sunday through Thursday, 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. Friday and Saturday. In each case, the curfew has been moved up one hour earlier on the clock.

Osborne met with officers of the Crookston Police Department and said everyone concerned felt that a change in the curfew was a reasonable response to "what's going on in the community." The order was signed on Friday, July 30 and will remain in effect until further notice. Crookston Daily Times

4-H Council to sponsor Cow Pie Bingo at fair

Baudette - Once again the 4-H Council will sponsor its official Cow Pie Bingo at the Lake of the Woods County Fair on Sunday, August 8.

Three "bingo cards" will be marked out on the fairgrounds. They will be measured out and each square foot will be randomly numbered. Players can purchase tickets for $1 with each ticket representing one of the numbered squares on the "bingo cards." At 1 p.m. a cow will be released in the area of play, and where she decides to drop a "pie" will determine the winner of the $50 cash prize. The Northern Light

Tri-County youth play basketball in Hawaii

In addition to playing basketball, the students enjoyed three days of sight seeing. North Star News

Dostals hold reunion on Century Farm

Badger - Approximately 250 descendents of Frank and Frances Dostal gathered recently to celebrated the 100th anniversary of their homesteading. In 1899 the Dostals and their four children homesteaded in Skagen township near Badger, having emigrated from Czechoslovakia in 1894.

Today the original farm, now known as Willow Creek Farm, is owned by the Steve and Frank Dostal families. Frank and Corrinne Dostal currently live on the farm and their children are the fifth generation to live on the home place. The Tribune

Medical center planning $6.2 million renovation

Northwest Medical Center board is contemplating a major facility renovation project which would provide the look of a new hospital and consolidate some services for a more convenient and efficient operation according to information made available to medical center staff this week. Estimated cost of the project has been placed at $6.2 million.

"Northwest has performed routine building repairs and maintenance in recent years, but there has been no major facility expansion, renovating nor updating expenditures since the attached medical office building was built in 1977," notes Richard Spyhalski, Chief Executive Officer.

The local medical center facility consists of three components—the hospital itself, the medical office building and the C&NC unit. The hospital was built in 1932 with major additions in 1954 and 1964. In 1970 the C&NC unit was added and in 1977 the medical office building was constructed to house clinic operations.

At the present time the ground floor of the C&NC unit is being used by Altru Clinic and the ground floor of the medical office building is used by the medical center for laboratory, emergency room, imaging, admitting, medical records and physician lounge. The first and second floors of the medical office building have been vacant since Dakota Clinic Ltd. moved to its new clinic facilities on Highway 59 Southeast.

According to information provided to hospital staff, the major portion of the proposed renovation will involve the medical office building—approximately $5 million of the building renovation and expansion costs. This would include addition of approximately 10,100 square feet of space and major renovation to all three floors.

The hospital would continue use of the ground floor but the space would be extensively renovated and a canopy would be added at the entrance.

First floor of the medical office building would utilize part of the expansion and be fully renovated to convert currently vacant clinic space into a new outpatient clinic to be leased to Altru Health System. The space would be expected to provide 12 offices, 33 examining rooms and appropriate reception and waiting areas.

Second floor of the medical office building would be converted to provide a new 38-bed patient care area. Several services would be moved from present second floor locations, including intensive care and obstetrics. The new area would include 14 single occupancy rooms and eight double occupancy rooms, as well as four single rooms for intensive care and four single rooms for obstetric units.

"All these rooms would be built with their own private toilet and bathing facilities and include other patient amenities and services that are attendant to the most modern hospital design," Spyhalski said.

The CEO added that no changes are contemplated in the C&NC unit or other ground floor areas of the medical center at this time. He said physical therapy could be relocated to vacated Altru Clinic space on the C&NC ground floor in the future, but such a move is not part of the proposed renovation project.

Renovation and expansion costs are estimated at $5,500,000. An additional $500,000 is projected for equipment, furniture and fixtures—an amount in addition to $600,000 for routine equipment, furniture and fixture additions during the year the renovation and expansion is completed.

No architectural plans nor drawings have been completed at this time nor has the proposal reached a stage where construction starting or completion time has been projected.

Hanson accomplishes much on farm, in the community

Editor's Note: Norma Hanson of rural Goodridge was selected 1999 Country Woman of the Year by Farm and Ranch Guide and honored on Country Woman Day at the North Dakota State Fair in Minot on Friday, July 30. She had been nominated for the award by Rhoda Gust of Strathcona, a finalist in the 1998 Country Woman of the Year contest and by Janice Larson of Gatzke.

As winner of the award, Norma received a limited edition print of a Terry Redlin painting, $300 from Farm & Ranch Guide, $150 from Cass-Clay Creameries, $25 from the Beef Council, an afghan and an overnight stay at the Ramada Plaza in Fargo, ND.

In 1995, Norma was selected as one of 22 women in the United States to have her written summary of her working day and items symbolizing her work sealed in a time capsule in Washington, DC, on the 75th anniversary of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor. The capsule will be opened on the 100th anniversary of the Women's Bureau in the year 2020.

An excerpt from Norma's summary for inclusion in the time capsule stated:

"A typical day on our farm starts at 4:30 a.m. with a cup of coffee. We head for the barn at 5:00, where we are greeted by a herd of registered Ayrshire cows. We are back in the house at 7:30. We catch a lot of world and local TV news. One must get the weather report as well... it can change the day's plans in a hurry. Pay bills and finish up with bookkeeping. My husband comes in and asks me to help hook up a piece of machinery and later on to help load up the wheat to take to the local elevator. It's now 11 a.m. and time to start dinner. The day's work comes to an end by 8:30 p.m. but in

Garden tour today spotlights six local planting sites

The yard of Dave and Betty Peterson of rural Thief River Falls will be among the sites to visit on today's tour of area gardens sponsored by area master gardeners and the Moccasin garden club. The Petersons' yard features a variety of plants and a kaleidoscope of color. Other sites on the tour include Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village, Challenger elementary school and the rural homes of Douglass and Kay Steiger, Norris and Arlene Thune and Tod and Darlene Koropatnicki.

You don't have to have a green thumb yourself to appreciate the beauty of a garden nor do you have to be an adult. Just ask Katrina, Ethan and Makayla Peterson.

The threesome are the children of David and Betty Peterson and their home will be one of those featured today (Saturday, August 7) on the tour of gardens sponsored by local master gardeners and the Moccasin garden club.

From Thief River Falls, the Peterson family lives three miles east on Highway 1, one mile north and a half mile east. Their home was built in 1991 on land purchased from David's grandfather, Clarence Peterson. David grew up just across the road and farms with his brother, Rick, and dad, Arnold Peterson. He also teaches math and computers at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls.

While gardening has evolved into the nation's number one pastime only in recent years, it's a life-time tradition for the Peterson family. David's grandmother, Emma, was an avid flower gardener, and Betty, who grew up in the Oklee area, learned to preserve produce from her mother.

The tradition continues as David and Betty's children participate in all aspects of gardening from weeding to watering. Katrina is eight, Ethan is five — "almost six," — and Makayla is two. All are avid conversationalists whose excitement about the many plants and trees in their yard is contagious.

While Makayla will probably stay pretty close to mom, it is sure that Katrina and Ethan will help their parents answer the questions of those who visit their home during today's tour. Two master gardeners will also be on hand at each of the tour sites.

Pine trees, nurtured from 6-inch seedlings from across the road, surround the Peterson building site, and the carefully placed trees in the large yard include a number of fruit

Council ponders ways of controlling adult entertainment

Bemidji - Except for language in the liquor ordinance excluding nude dancing in establishments serving alcohol, Bemidji currently does not have an ordinance on adult entertainment. That has a number of city council members worried, because they believe that as Bemidji grows, the market for businesses such as adult book stores will grow as well.

Realizing that there is only so much it can do without violating the First Amendment, the council has asked the city attorney to draft an ordinance rezoning an area in the city such as the Industrial Park, designating where an adult-oriented business can be located. The Pioneer

S.T.A.R. teams to train for teaching attitudes of respect

Begun in 1995 as Respect Teams training, a program sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota Foundation has evolved into S.T.A.R. Teams training which teaches cooperative life skills as the foundation of respect.

S.T.A.R. stands for Students Teaching Attitudes of Respect. The training is available to sixth and seventh grade students in the 12 northwestern Minnesota counties of Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

Three training sessions, each two days in length, are scheduled to begin in late September. Training in team building for advisors and teen mentors is also provided.

For information contact Rebecca Weir or Jennifer Lufkin at the Northwest Minnesota Foundation office, 1-800-659-7859 or 1-218-759-2057.

NW Minnesota Foundation gives $327,874 in grants

Northwest Minnesota Foundation recently awarded grants totaling more than $327,874 to projects in 10 northwestern Minnesota counties.

Grant awards are geared toward projects that meet the foundation's specific interests, including research and development of new products, new technologies or joint ventures that lead to more effective and efficient services for the general public or disadvantaged.

Among area recipients was the Red Lake Falls school district which received $19,885 in a youth entrepreneurship grant.

The funds will be used to purchase technology equipment for a student-run business producing multi-media presentations for local businesses, radio and TV advertisements, posters, sales materials, brochures, direct-mail pieces, stationery and business cards and to assist in the design and posting of commercial web sites. Recordings of local concerts, plays and art shows will also be produced and made available for sale to the public.

Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon Sanctuary southeast of Warren was awarded a $15,000 component fund grant for habitat development and education programming for the sanctuary.

Bagley KIDS II Fund received $78,904.81 to finance the heating, sound and seating installation in a fine arts auditorium project.

Bagley Education Fund received $10,000 to purchase hardware and software for the high school computer lab.

Danica Johnson and Jill Erickson, 1998 graduates of Roseau high school, received $600 in Nick Peterson Memorial Scholarships.

Northwest Regional Development Commission headquartered in Warren received $10,000 to continue coordination of the Farm Wrap program.

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere

This is dessert weather. It's too early for apples and pumpkin, but a good time for other fruits. You might like to try some of these this week when the weather is a little cooler and right for using the oven. Again I give credit to the 1995-96 Lincoln Choir Cookbook.

Oh my, but this sounds great for a hot day dessert – and it's so easily made on a cookie sheet and it will serve a bunch – unless they get greedy:

ÉCLAIR DESSERT
1 cup water
1 stick butter
1 cup flour
4 eggs
1 large package instant vanilla pudding
Milk for pudding mix
8 ounce package cream cheese, room temperature
8 ounce container frozen whipped topping, thawed
1/2 can Hershey ice cream topping

Bring water and butter to a boil. Add flour, stirring well. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Spread on greased cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes. Cool.

To make topping, mix pudding and milk according to package directions. Add cream cheese and spread on crust. Layer the whipped topping over this and then top with ice cream topping.

If you don't want to use ice cream topping, make your own chocolate layer as follows:
6 ounces chocolate chips
1/2 cup corn syrup
1/4 cup cream or milk
1 tablespoon butter
1/4 teaspoon vanilla

Melt chips and syrup together. Add cream, butter and vanilla. Cool thoroughly and then drizzle over whipped topping layer.

-Tina Halsa

Here's a lovely dessert made with fresh peaches:

FRESH PEACH COBBLER
3 cups peeled, sliced peaches
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon quick cooking tapioca
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
4 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup cold butter
1/4 cup whipping cream or milk

Stir together peaches, lemon juice and sugar until blended. Add tapioca and almond. Spread in shallow 1 quart baking dish.

In mixing bowl, combine flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in cream to make a dough and press into a ball shape.

Roll out dough large enough to fit over the peaches. Pierce top with fork to make vents. Brush milk over crust to make shine and sprinkle with sugar, if desired. Bake 35-45 minutes at 375 degrees.

-Vicki Bitzegaio

Another peach dessert that would be great with ice cream:

FRESH PEACH PIE
4 cups peaches
Baked pie shell
3/4 cup sugar
2 tablespoons corn starch
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup water

Mix sugar, corn starch, salt and water and boil until clear and slightly thick. Cool.

Slice peaches into baked crust. Pour sugar mixture over peaches and refrigerate pie. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

-Jennifer Swanson

Here is another great hot weather dessert:

SHERBET DESSERT
1 pint cream, whipped
1 pint lime sherbet
1 pint lemon sherbet
1 pint orange sherbet
3 cups crushed vanilla wafers

Line bottom of 9x13 inch pan with whipping cream, reserving some for top. Sprinkle about half of vanilla wafers over cream.

Spoon each kind of sherbet over crumbs and place close together. Top with remaining whipped cream and sprinkle remaining vanilla wafer crumbs over top. Store in freezer and remove a few minutes before serving.

-Leslie Swanson

And here's a lovely dessert made with fresh pears:

PEAR PIE
3 cups sliced pears
2 tablespoons flour
1-2 tablespoons butter
Dash of salt
3/4 cup sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
Dash nutmeg
Topping:
1 cup flour
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup butter
1/2 to 1 cup pecan pieces
Unbaked pastry shell

Mix pears, flour, butter, salt, sugar, lemon juice and peel and nutmeg. Place in pastry shell.

Prepare topping and spread over filling. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

-Vicki Bitzegaio

Col. Samuel Helland promoted to General

General Samuel Helland

Samuel T. Helland, a native of Thief River Falls and the son of Robert L. Helland, now a resident of Williams, has been promoted from Colonel to General in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Helland began his military career by enlisting in the army in 1968. He served three years with Special Forces, leaving after a tour of duty in Vietnam with the 5th Special Force Group (ABN). In 1973 he graduated from Marine Officer Candidate School and was designated a naval aviator in 1974. He is qualified as a CH-53 pilot.

His career assignments include tours of duty with Marine Amphibious Units, Aviation Combat Elements and Joint Task Forces. During these tours of duty he participated in exercises and contingency operations from the Arctic Circle through the Mediterranean and Caribbean Seas to the Persian Gulf where he saw combat during Operation Desert Shield/Desert Storm.

After graduating from the Marine Command and Staff College in 1987, Helland reported to headquarters Marine Corps to serve as a staff officer for the Department of Aviation, Aviation Programs and Weapons Division (APW). In 1990 he left HQMC and was assigned as the logistics officer for Marines Aircraft Group 26, only to be sent to the Persian Gulf as operations officer for Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 461, MAG 40.

After returning from Southwest Asia, Col. Helland assumed command of HMH-461 in June of 1991. In June of 1993 he left to attend the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. After graduation, he reported to the Joint Staff and served as a member of J-7, Operational Plans and Interoperability, Conventional War Plans Division.

From 1994 to 1996 he served as Joint Staff Officer, assigned to J-7, and was responsible for facilitating the review and CJCS approval of UNCENTCOM's war plans.

Col. Helland's personal decorations include the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, Defense Meritorious Service Medal, Meritorious Service Medal with gold star, Air Medal, Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal with gold star, Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal, Combat Action Ribbon with one star and various service and unit awards.

Charlton Heston Speaks His Heart At Harvard

Actor Charlton Heston, elected president of the National Rifle Association about a year ago, spoke in February to students at Harvard University Law School. Part of his message provides some fodder for critical thinkers:

"What does all this mean? It means that telling us what to think has evolved into telling us what to say, so telling us what to do can't be far behind.

"Let's be honest. Who here thinks your professors can say what they really believe? That scares me to death. It should scare you too, that the superstition of political correctness rules the halls of reason.

"You are the best and the brightest. You, here in the castle of learning on the Charles River, you are the cream. But I submit that you, and your counterparts across the land, are the most socially conformed and politically silenced generation since Concord Bridge. And as long as you validate that...and abide it...you are—by your grandfathers' standards—cowards.

"Here's another example. Right now at more than one major university, Second Amendment scholars and researchers are being told to shut up about their findings or they'll lose their jobs. Why? Because their research findings would undermine big-city mayors' pending lawsuits that seek to extort hundreds of millions of dollars from firearm manufacturers.

"Who will defend the core value of academia, if you supposed soldiers of free thought and expression lay down your arms and plead, 'Don't shoot me.'

If you talk about race, it does not make you a racist. If you see distinctions between the genders, it does not make you sexist. If you think critically about a denomination, it does not make you anti-religion. If you accept but don't celebrate homosexuality, it does not make you a homophobe.

"Don't let America's universities continue to serve as incubators for this rampant epidemic of new McCarthyism.

"But what can you do? How can anyone prevail against such pervasive social subjugation? The answer's been there all along. I learned it 36 years ago, on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C., standing with Dr. Martin Luther King and two hundred thousand people.

"You simply....disobey. Peaceably, yes. Respectfully, of course. Nonviolently, absolutely. But when told how to think or what to say or how to behave, we don't. We disobey social protocol that stifles and stigmatizes personal freedom.

"I learned the awesome power of disobedience from Dr. King....who learned it from Gandhi, and Thoreau, and Jesus, and every other great man who led those in the right against those with the might.

"In that same spirit, I am asking you to disavow cultural correctness with massive disobedience of rogue authority, social directives and onerous laws that weaken personal freedom...."

Congratulations, Norma, for being named Country Woman of the Year

It's hard to imagine anyone who has labored so long and hard in the shadows for others and for her community who deserves a day in the sun more than Norma Hanson. One of those sunny days came last week at the North Dakota State Fair in Minot when Norma was named 1999 Farm Woman of the Year by Farm and Ranch Guide.

It may not be a Pulitzer Prize nor a Presidential citation but it certainly is a regional recognition of service and achievement that should bring justifiable pride. And the fact that her service was called to attention by others who nominated her attests to her genuine humility regarding her accomplishments. Always one to encourage recognition for others, she has never sought the limelight for herself. And that's as much a fact as the sun coming up in the east every morning on the Hansons' rural Goodridge farm.

We have known Norma for the better part of four decades and 99 percent of our contact has involved her organization and promotion of the Goodridge community or various phases of agriculture. Since she and her husband Lynn moved to the farm from the Twin Cities many years ago, she has embraced the Goodridge community and given it her all. She has an uncanny ability to organize and produce results, and when she agrees to take on another responsibility, she is always able to get the job done.

Rhoda Gust of Strathcona and Janice Larson of Gatzke, both of whom worked with Norma in resuscitation and reorganization of Northwest Dairy Day, were co-nominators of her for the Country Woman of the Year award. They were more excited than she was when announcement of the winner was made, as was Polly Bakken of Angus who attended the Country Woman of the Year program in Minot.

We think Norma is a little embarrassed by the public attention the award has drawn to her; her involvement with the public has usually been on the behalf of others. If that is the case, she shouldn't feel self-conscious. She didn't seek the recognition; she is just receiving some acknowledgement that many others feel is long overdue.

More communities like Goodridge need more active workers like Norma Hanson. Those communities that have one often don't realize how lucky they are.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

It was gratifying to read Ormond Johnson's letter in the recent Northern Watch. It is important that more members of the community take an interest in what happens at Northwest Medical Center (NWMC). As an important community asset, it contributes to the quality of life for all of us. Even with the recent influx of new NWMC Association members there will still be barely 700 individuals qualified to vote in the upcoming election. Broader participation from all segments of the community will insure that both better decisions are made at NWMC and that Thief River Falls continues to grow as a medical center.

The Dakota Clinic has long supported NWMC and has a great interest in the future decisions of NWMC. We believe Thief River Falls should develop into a bigger regional medical center. We want to see more people coming to Thief River Falls from throughout our region to avail themselves of the excellent, convenient and cost effective medical care available here. We want to continue to add physicians, specialists and other services locally so travel out of the region is not necessary. This can best be accomplished if the physicians, clinics and NWMC are all working together.

Unfortunately, several NWMC board actions have made this cooperative working relationship difficult, if not impossible. The current board has excluded physicians from meaningful participation in the decision making process. Last year the board changed its bylaws to eliminate two board positions previously dedicated for active medical staff. Currently NWMC is the only hospital board in the region that has no physician members! It is difficult for the medical staff and the Dakota Clinic to work with NWMC when it has been denied a seat at the table.

Cooperation is also complicated by the board's decision to conduct much of its business in secret meetings. The formal monthly board meeting, which I attend as Chief of Staff, is brief and perfunctory with little or no discussion of most issues. The most recent meeting lasted less than 30 minutes. The board then excuses the Chief of Staff and continues its meeting in secret. Neither the agenda, minutes nor decisions of these secret meetings are available to the medical staff. We believe that the routine use of these secret meetings ferments poor decisions, mistrust, and makes cooperation difficult. How is the public interest served by conducting NWMC business in secret?

The Dakota Clinic hopes there can be more discussion of these issues in the coming month. If the community feels that its interests are best served by NWMC excluding the active medical staff from participation in its decisions and conducting secret meetings then we will have to live with the status quo. We believe that changing the NWMC board will accomplish more for NWMC and Thief River Falls and help build a bigger regional medical center.

Sincerely,
Jim Langland, M.D., FACP
Chief of Staff

A Minnesota National Guard helicopter descends to pick up a one-ton sander which it used to sand areas of ice on the Thief River last March. A study of the dusting has concluded that in regions like the Red River of the North Basin, where average daily air temperatures remain well below freezing until just before ice breakup, dusting and other methods that rely on solar energy to weaken the ice will likely have little or no affect on advancing the deterioration of an ice cover.

Dusting had little or no effect on river ice cover

Ice dusting will have little or no effect on advancing the deterioration of ice cover in the Red River basin, concludes an evaluation of the ice dusting project conducted in Thief River Falls and Crookston last winter.

The evaluation, which was prepared for the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, division of emergency management, by representatives of the U.S. Army Cold Regions Research and Engineering Laboratory in Hanover, NH, continues expressing its appreciation to local agencies for their assistance in the study, and explained that it is currently working with the Wild Rice Watershed District to evaluate the effectiveness of an ice boom alternative.

Ice jam flooding has been a frequent problem on many rivers in Minnesota. According to historical records, the two rivers in Minnesota that most frequently experience ice jams are the Red Lake River and the Thief River. From 1910 to 1997, no fewer than 89 ice jams occurred on these two rivers alone; these jams occurred most frequently in the cities of Crookston and Thief River Falls.

On March 2, 1999, sand was applied on the Thief River, and on March 3, on the test site near Crookston. The sand was applied using a conventional one-ton sand spreader suspended below a National Guard helicopter. Traditional methods using aerial crop dusting was not feasible because the rivers are narrow and winding. At the time, the objective was to apply a 60-foot wide path along the centerline of the river with about 20 percent of the area covered by sand.

A variety of materials have been used for river ice dusting, including sand, fly ash, dyes, and leaves. In general, the darker the material the better. Also, the material should have a density greater than water to keep from being readily washed away, and needs to be environmentally benign. Generally, choosing a material that is indigenous to the area satisfies this last requirement.

Air temperatures, water temperature, solar radiation, snow cover, and precipitation affect the spring-time deterioration of river ice. The quantity and timing of these weather conditions play a large role in the melting rate of the ice cover, and determine whether or not there will be sufficient ice to form a jam when the spring freshet occurs. In an effort to monitor weather conditions, a meteorological station was installed in the USGS gage house at the Jim Hillyar farm (located seven kilometers north of Thief River Falls) on the Thief River to continuously monitor air temperature, water temperature and solar radiation. Snowfall was obtained from the Grand Forks Airport in North Dakota.

To determine whether the sand had any impact on the ice, the scientists measured the bending strength of the ice. They used a cantilever beam test, in which three sides of a rectangular beam are cut free from the parent ice sheet, leaving a tongue of ice with the fourth side or root end of the beam remaining attached to the parent sheet. The free end of the cantilevered beam is loaded until the ice beam breaks at the root. Considering that the dusting would only affect the top surface, the beams were tested by pushing down on the free end. This loading configuration puts the top surface in tension and the bottom in compression. A minimum of three beams were tested for each set of cantilever beam tests.

In addition to the test sites, the scientists also had a control site, which helps determine whether the ice dusting had any impact.

During the application of the sand on the Thief River, the sand frequently froze in the hopper. As a result, frozen clumps of sand plugged the feed to the spinner disc before the entire load could be dispersed on the ice. When this happened, the hopper needed to be set back on the ground and the feeder unclogged before operations could resume, thereby considerably slowing the application of the sand. Also, because some frozen clumps landed intact on the ice, the sand on the Thief River had a mixture of discrete sand particles and sand clumps distributed over the ice surface. Though this was an unintended result, the scientists observed that after a couple of days the clumps penetrated deeper into the snow-ice than individual particles. In many areas on the Thief River, the rotor blade wash also blew the sand into the tracks left in the snow by the snowmobiles, concentrating the sand in those areas rather than evenly distributing the sand over the surface. However, the bulk of the ice was covered with an evenly distributed sand layer. Only two days after the dusting, particle penetration into the snow cover was evident.

Weather data during this period indicated that the air temperature did not rise above freezing for any length of time until March 27. According to the scientists, because the air temperature remained sub-freezing through most of March, it is not surprising to find that all of the sites gained ice between the reconnaissance and the first ice strength measurement.

This year, the ice broke up in Thief River Falls around April 2-3. Therefore, there was not enough time for the solar energy to cause any significant decay in the ice cover before the ice broke up.

Scientists know that until the average daily temperature is above freezing, dusting has virtually no effect on increasing the surface melting of the snow or ice and accelerating the decay of ice cover.

Historically, the average daily air temperature rises above freezing about two weeks before the historical ice-out date. The breakup was early during this study period, and the time the air temperature was above freezing before the ice went out was about half what might be expected in a normal year. For dusting to be successful, typically about one month with air temperature above freezing before ice-out is required. Hence, even in a normal year, two weeks may not be enough time for dusting to have a large effect on the deterioration of the ice cover.

From these results, the scientists concluded that trying to advance the deterioration of an ice cover by enhancing the absorption of solar energy may not be a viable option in the Red River of the North Basin.

The report also explores a number of alternatives. Alternatives for weakening an ice cover other than increased solar energy absorption include: routing of available thermal effluent to reduce ice cover thickness and extend; or mechanical weakening of the ice using trenching or drilling equipment. Instead of weakening the ice cover, controlling it is another technique that could be utilized. Controlling the ice breakup and passage using ice booms or ice control structures can control the volume and timing of ice arriving at river bends or frequent jam points.

Just Like Me

I got in quite a few fights when I was in elementary school. Such is the lot in life for those of us whose lips move faster than our feet. Unfortunately, it seems I had a knack for picking opponents who were bigger and quicker than I. Any prospects of actual victory usually gave way to the simpler thoughts of mere survival.

I developed a tactic early on that worked quite well. Shortly after my usual flurry of verbal insults had been launched and immediately before the first of my opponent's perilous haymakers was thrown, I would drop to the ground, curl up in a ball, and beg and cry piteously for mercy. No one wants to thump a sissy.

The posture did little to elevate my standing in the fifth grade social circles and I didn't get a date until I was 23 and had moved to the West Coast where tales of my cowardice had not yet been heard. However, I'm still alive and in one piece and, therefore, recommend such a defensive philosophy to anyone in need of similar salvation.

The U.S. side of Lake of the Woods has been singled out recently for such an unprovoked series of public poundings in the Twin Cities press, it makes me question my past success with the "sniveling defense." One journalist, in particular, seems to have made us his own personal "whipping boy," venting himself at our expense on what is nearly a bi-weekly basis.

Doesn't he have a dog at home to kick? Didn't Lake of the Woods roll over (with its feet submissively thrust into the air, exposing the vulnerability of an underbelly, and declare a quiet defeat over the "sting" operation of a decade ago?

Never mind the fact that every reporting of that debacle never even remotely touched upon the truth, it was simply the overwhelming tide of bad press that finally suggested we walk away, white flag in hand, with whatever life we may have had left. Why then, has this nightmare been resurrected? What, I wondered, were this writer's motivations?

So I put down the channel changer, hoisted my expansive derriere out of the recliner, waddled my way through the empty beer cans and rotting, illegally taken duck carcasses that litter my living room, and drove down to the local watering hole to do some investigations.

Surely this writer had lived long enough to outgrow any "bully" tendencies he might have employed as a grade-schooler. If not, I was certainly willing to roll over and play cry-baby again if it offered him the appropriate distraction.

Maybe, I reasoned, the impetus for his refreshed displeasure was the recent NAFTA effort at rectifying these border fishing issues in a rational, legal fashion. Maybe he's had some bad run-ins with the law and is seeking some form of token vengeance. If this was the case, I'd volunteer to dress up like Erik Estrada in CHIPS and let him strip me of my badge publicly.

Or, perhaps, his status as a Twin Cities Outdoor Writer was being threatened by the fact that there was just very little in the way of the out-of-doors left in the Twin Cities to write about, so he came north to stir up someone else's pot and the Lake of the Woods community offered itself up as a likely patsy.

I plopped [illegible] down on the first available [illegible] and asked one of my [illegible] if he knew anything about this guy. He belched a time or two, scratched at his armpit, thought for a second and informed me that, yes, that writer had been [illegible] regularly in the past few months [illegible] property to buy on the Canadian side. I nodded my head sagely, though it really took about [illegible] minutes for the logic to take hold, and slid off my perch. I was pleased to have acquired the necessary information so quickly.

Back home, as I settled into my favorite chair, a smile crossed my face. It made me genuinely happy, I realized, to learn that this guy was not being driven by any more vindictive, mean-spirited motives than I use to get through my day-to-day existence. Heck, I'd probably cross some marginally ethical professional boundaries somewhere to get what I want, too.

He, like I, was in love with Lake of the Woods and wanted to keep as much of it to himself as possible. That's a mature, rational thought process, I reasoned, despite how it might come across publicly. Extreme times call for extreme measures.

I thought again of those fifth grade days spent pleading in the dirt for my life and I understood that this writer and I had a lot in common. I picked up the channel changer and wondered if he, too, liked Oprah.

Tami Hemmesch and Denny Minks, block captains in the Thief River Falls neighborhood watch program, were among the many individuals participating in National Night Out Tuesday. Hammesch is a block captain for Sherwood Avenue and streets west to Centennial Drive. Minks is a block captain on Kneale Avenue. Numerous display booths, including the one pictured for the city's utilities department, were set up Tuesday night in Floyd B. Olson Park in downtown Thief River Falls for National Night Out.

Steve Broten of Argyle was presented with the championship trophy by Miss Thief River Falls, Katie Christianson, following his tie-breaker victory over Fred Streiff of Warroad in the 42-target 3-D Thief River Archers Outdoor Tournament held Saturday and Sunday, July 31 and Aug. 1. There were 326 archers on hand for the 48th annual event.

Argyle shooter tops archery tournament

Sunny skies and mild temperatures greeted the 326 shooters who participated in the 48th annual Thief River Archers Outdoor Tournament held Saturday and Sunday, July 31 and Aug. 1.

Miss Thief River Falls, Katie Christianson, was on hand to present awards Sunday to the winners in the various shooting classes and divisions.

Steve Broten of Argyle and Fred Streiff of Warroad ended their round on the 42-target 3-D course with identical 446 scores (out of a possible 458). Broten was given the victory in the men's Freestyle (release) Division by using the established tie-breaking procedure of counting the number of X-ring (dead center) hits. Broten finished with one more X than Streiff.

Broten then carried that momentum to victory in the Ironman Contest by posting the highest point total in all three weekend events. It was his second straight Ironman title at the tournament.

Weekend shooting also doubled as the Thief River Falls leg of the Northwestern Bowhunters Archery League Triple Crown Tournament. The three-part event features shooters from 17 clubs in Minnesota and North Dakota. First portion was shot in June at Warroad and the second round took place in July in Grand Forks.

"The Thief River Archers members and officers would like to thank all of the area businesses for their support of the tournament," offered club spokesman Dana Klos. "Most of the shooters went home with some very impressive prizes that had been donated to the event."

The club reminds all area archers looking for a place to practice that the outdoor range, located south and west of the Thief River Falls Regional Airport, is open for public use free of charge on Wednesday evenings until the Sept. 9 bowhunting season opener. Interested shooters can call Klos at 681-7592 for additional information.

State meet wraps up Tigersharks' season

Members of the Thief River Falls Tigersharks completed their United States Swimming summer season by participating in the North Dakota long course state championships at the Hyslop Pool in Grand Forks over the July 31-Aug. 1 weekend.

The Tigersharks, led by first-year coach Mary Helen Houlihan, capped off their most successful season in years by sending 16 swimmers to the state meet – four times the number of entries they've had in the past several years, according to those involved in the sponsoring Thief River Falls Swim Club.

Top Thief River Falls place finisher was Jon Kays, who was third in the 11-12-year-old portion of the 50-meter breaststroke in 43.01. First, second and third place swimmers received medals. Ribbons went to those finishing fourth-through-16th in each age bracket. The Tigersharks turned in 27 ribbon-winning performances. Most Thief River Falls state meet participants recorded significant time drops.

Houlihan was a finalist for Coach of the Year honors, but lost out on the award on a tie-breaker second vote among the coaches.

The expanded Tigersharks program will begin its fall session in late September.

"Thief River Falls Swim Club Board of Directors would like to thank coach Mary Helen Houlihan and assistant coaches Chris Pribula and Wendy Lindquist for a job well done this summer," said Board spokesman Dave Olin.

Mary Helen Houlihan selected as coach of Prowler swim squad

Mary Helen Houlihan has been named Thief River Falls' girls high school swimming coach, it was announced this week by School District 564 Director of Student Activities Jim Sims.

Houlihan is also coach of the year-round Thief River Falls Swim Club Tigersharks program. She succeeds Shon Thompson, who stepped down as the Prowlers' coach at the end of the 1998 season.

It was also announced that Tony Delany will be the assistant swim coach. He held a similar position at Minnewaska High School in Glenwood last year.

The coaching appointments are pending school board approval, noted Sims.

Hole-in-one is recorded at Thief River Golf Club

Erling Olson recorded the third hole-in-one of the 1999 season at the Thief River Golf Club Wednesday when he aced the 146-yard fourth hole during men's day competition.

Olson joins Eric Barber and Marvel Van Rooy on the Thief River Golf Club hole-in-one board this summer. A year ago there were eight aces on the course. It happened four times in 1997.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL

Regular season play in the Thief River Falls Women's Slow Pitch Softball League was completed Wednesday.

Four league members were scheduled to play in District 7 tournaments this weekend – the Swingers in Class C at Fosston; the Sluggers, Pepsi and Dairy Queen-Sather Law in Class D at Cloquet.

There is no district play for Thief River Falls Class B teams Tony Dorn Inc-Fitness Center and the Ridgerunners, so they will move directly into the state tournament Aug. 14-15 at Moorhead. Those two teams shared first place in the Division I standings when they met in the regular season finale Wednesday – a game won by the Ridgerunners 7-3.

Annual Thief River Falls Women's Slow Pitch Softball League city playoffs were conducted Saturday.

In Division I, the Ridgerunners emerged from the double-elimination league tournament with a 4-0 record, Tony Dorn Inc-Fitness Center 3-1, Sluggers 2-2, Swingers 1-3, and Pepsi 0-4.

Division II league playoff title went to Dairy Queen-Sather Law with a 3-0 finish, followed by Thibert-Philion at 2-1, Kandiyohi 1-2, and Dan's Trucking 0-3.

Housing scarce for Northland fall students

College students planning to attend classes at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls are experiencing a familiar problem of limited housing opportunities.

College officials report that the "Housing List" provided to incoming students is extremely short of rental opportunities.

Area landlords and home owners are asked to notify Northland of any rental units that might be available and aren't already included on the college listing. Students are looking for apartments, houses, mobile homes and sleeping rooms.

Persons who can assist in providing housing for students are asked to call Northland Community and Technical College at 681-0701.

Just Like Me

I got in quite a few fights when I was in elementary school. Such is the lot in life for those of us whose lips move faster than our feet. Unfortunately, it seems I had a knack for picking opponents who were bigger and quicker than I. Any prospects of actual victory usually gave way to the simpler thoughts of mere survival.

I developed a tactic early on that worked quite well. Shortly after my usual flurry of verbal insults had been launched and immediately before the first of my opponent's perilous haymakers was thrown, I would drop to the ground, curl up in a ball, and beg and cry piteously for mercy. No one wants to thump a sissy.

The posture did little to elevate my standing in the fifth grade social circles and I didn't get a date until I was 23 and had moved to the West Coast where tales of my cowardice had not yet been heard. However, I'm still alive and in one piece and, therefore, recommend such a defensive philosophy to anyone in need of similar salvation.

The U.S. side of Lake of the Woods has been singled out recently for such an unprovoked series of public poundings in the Twin Cities press, it makes me question my past success with the "sniveling defense." One journalist, in particular, seems to have made us his own personal "whipping boy," venting himself at our expense on what is nearly a bi-weekly basis.

Doesn't he have a dog at home to kick? Didn't Lake of the Woods roll over with its feet submissively thrust into the air, exposing the vulnerability of an underbelly, and declare a quiet defeat over the "sting" operation of a decade ago?

Never mind the fact that every reporting of that debacle never even remotely touched upon the truth, it was simply the overwhelming tide of bad press that finally suggested we walk away, white flag in hand, with whatever life we may have had left. Why then, has this nightmare been resurrected? What, I wondered, were this writer's motivations?

So I put down the channel changer, hoisted my expansive derriere out of the recliner, waddled my way through the empty beer cans and rotting, illegally taken duck carcasses that litter my living room, and drove down to the local watering hole to do some investigations.

Surely this writer had lived long enough to outgrow any "bully" tendencies he might have employed as a grade-schooler. If not, I was certainly willing to roll over and play cry-baby again if it offered him the appropriate distraction.

Maybe, I reasoned, the impetus for his refreshed displeasure was the recent NAFTA effort at rectifying these border fishing issues in a rational, legal fashion. Maybe he's had some bad run-ins with the law and is seeking some form of token vengeance. If this was the case, I'd volunteer to dress up like Erik Estrada in CHIPS and let him strip me of my badge publicly.

Or, perhaps, his status as a Twin Cities Outdoor Writer was being threatened by the fact that there was just very little in the way of the out-of-doors left in the Twin Cities to write about, so he came north to stir up someone else's pot and the Lake of the Woods community offered itself up as a likely patsy.

I plopped myself down on the first available barstool and asked one of my sloped-brow cronies if he knew anything about this guy. He belched a time or two, scratched at his armpit, thought for a second and informed me that, yes, that writer had been motoring regularly in the past few months about property to buy on the Canadian side. I nodded my head sagely although it really took about seven minutes for the logic to take hold, and slid off my perch. I was pleased to have acquired the necessary information so quickly.

Back home, as I settled into my favorite chair, a smile crossed my face. It made me genuinely happy, I realized, to learn that this guy was not being driven by any more vindictive, mean-spirited motives than I use to get through my day-to-day existence. Heck, I'd probably cross some marginally ethical professional boundaries somewhere to get what I want, too.

He, like I, was in love with Lake of the Woods and wanted to keep as much of it to himself as possible. That's a mature, rational thought process, I reasoned, despite how it might come across publicly. Extreme times call for extreme measures.

I thought again of those fifth grade days spent pleading in the dirt for my life and I understood that this writer and I had a lot in common. I picked up the channel changer and wondered if he, too, liked Oprah.

Steve Broten of Argyle was presented with the championship trophy by Miss Thief River Falls, Katie Christianson, following his tie-breaker victory over Fred Streiff of Warroad in the 42-target 3-D Thief River Archers Outdoor Tournament held Saturday and Sunday, July 31 and Aug. 1. There were 326 archers on hand for the 48th annual event.

Argyle shooter tops archery tournament

Sunny skies and mild temperatures greeted the 326 shooters who participated in the 48th annual Thief River Archers Outdoor Tournament held Saturday and Sunday, July 31 and Aug. 1.

Miss Thief River Falls, Katie Christianson, was on hand to present awards Sunday to the winners in the various shooting classes and divisions.

Steve Broten of Argyle and Fred Streiff of Warroad ended their round on the 42-target 3-D course with identical 446 scores (out of a possible 458). Broten was given the victory in the men's Freestyle (release) Division by using the established tie-breaking procedure of counting the number of X-ring (dead center) hits. Broten finished with one more X than Streiff.

Broten then carried that momentum to victory in the Ironman Contest by posting the highest point total in all three weekend events. It was his second straight Ironman title at the tournament.

Weekend shooting also doubled as the Thief River Falls leg of the Northwestern Bowhunters Archery League Triple Crown Tournament. The three-part event features shooters from 17 clubs in Minnesota and North Dakota. First portion was shot in June at Warroad and the second round took place in July in Grand Forks.

"The Thief River Archers members and officers would like to thank all of the area businesses for their support of the tournament," offered club spokesman Dana Klos. "Most of the shooters went home with some very impressive prizes that had been donated to the event."

The club reminds all area archers looking for a place to practice that the outdoor range, located south and west of the Thief River Falls Regional Airport, is open for public use free of charge on Wednesday evenings until the Sept. 9 bowhunting season opener. Interested shooters can call Klos at 681-7592 for additional information.

State meet wraps up Tigersharks' season

Members of the Thief River Falls Tigersharks completed their United States Swimming summer season by participating in the North Dakota long course state championships at the Hyslop Pool in Grand Forks over the July 31-Aug. 1 weekend.

The Tigersharks, led by first-year coach Mary Helen Houlihan, capped off their most successful season in years by sending 16 swimmers to the state meet – four times the number of entries they've had in the past several years, according to those involved in the sponsoring Thief River Falls Swim Club.

Top Thief River Falls place finisher was Jon Kays, who was third in the 11-12-year-old portion of the 50-meter breaststroke in 43.01. First, second and third place swimmers received medals. Ribbons went to those finishing fourth-through-16th in each age bracket. The Tigersharks turned in 27 ribbon-winning performances. Most Thief River Falls state meet participants recorded significant time drops.

Houlihan was a finalist for Coach of the Year honors, but lost out on the award on a tie-breaker second vote among the coaches.

The expanded Tigersharks program will begin its fall session in late September.

"Thief River Falls Swim Club Board of Directors would like to thank coach Mary Helen Houlihan and assistant coaches Chris Pribula and Wendy Lindquist for a job well done this summer," said Board spokesman Dave Olin.

Mary Helen Houlihan selected as coach of Prowler swim squad

Mary Helen Houlihan has been named Thief River Falls' girls high school swimming coach, it was announced this week by School District 564 Director of Student Activities Jim Sims.

Houlihan is also coach of the year-round Thief River Falls Swim Club Tigersharks program. She succeeds Shon Thompson, who stepped down as the Prowlers' coach at the end of the 1998 season.

It was also announced that Tony Delany will be the assistant swim coach. He held a similar position at Minnewaska High School in Glenwood last year.

The coaching appointments are pending school board approval, noted Sims.

Hole-in-one is recorded at Thief River Golf Club

Erling Olson recorded the third hole-in-one of the 1999 season at the Thief River Golf Club Wednesday when he aced the 146-yard fourth hole during men's day competition.

Olson joins Eric Barber and Marvel Van Rooy on the Thief River Golf Club hole-in-one board this summer. A year ago there were eight aces on the course. It happened four times in 1997.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL

Regular season play in the Thief River Falls Women's Slow Pitch Softball League was completed Wednesday.

Four league members were scheduled to play in District 7 tournaments this weekend – the Swingers in Class C at Fosston; the Sluggers, Pepsi and Dairy Queen-Sather Law in Class D at Cloquet.

There is no district play for Thief River Falls Class B teams Tony Dorn Inc.-Fitness Center and the Ridgerunners, so they will move directly into the state tournament Aug. 14-15 at Moorhead. Those two teams shared first place in the Division I standings when they met in the regular season finale Wednesday – a game won by the Ridgerunners 7-3.

Annual Thief River Falls Women's Slow Pitch Softball League city playoffs were conducted Saturday.

In Division I, the Ridgerunners emerged from the double-elimination league tournament with a 4-0 record, Tony Dorn Inc.-Fitness Center 3-1, Sluggers 2-2, Swingers 1-3, and Pepsi 0-4.

Division II league playoff title went to Dairy Queen-Sather Law with a 3-0 finish, followed by Thibert-Philion at 2-1, Kandiyohi 1-2, and Dan's Trucking 0-3.

Garden tour today spotlights six local planting sites

Numerous flowers surround the house with something in bloom throughout the growing season. Spring brings tulips, daffodils and hyacinth, and chrysanthemums and other late-bloomers provide a colorful autumn display. Currently, bright petunias, geraniums, begonias and more burst with color around the house.

Together the family picked the rocks that edge the flower beds from surrounding fields. While searching for rocks, young Ethan, who loves dinosaurs and can readily define the word "palaeontologist," keeps his eye open for fossils.

Perennials bloom in various beds throughout the yard, and old farm implements such as a walking plow and a horse-drawn cultivator add interest to the areas. Old wash tubs and the like are sometimes used as containers.

In addition to a large perennial garden, the Petersons' back yard includes several produce-bearing areas. A berry patch yields strawberries and raspberries for preserves, and because of the current dry conditions, the berries are clean and ready for instant snacks. Vine crops of squash and pumpkins spread across a wide expanse while other vegetables grow in neat rows in a large vegetable garden.

Although David and Betty had previous experience, gardening remains a learn-as-you-grow process. While his uncle wintered his geraniums by uprooting them and hanging them upside down, David has found a way that he finds more successful, and many of the geraniums that adorn the Petersons' yard are five years old. Betty and David have also experimented with starting different flowers and vegetables from seed. All the while the children are by their sides, learning from rich experiences and simply benefitting from the "togetherness" that gardening provides.

When viewing the Petersons' lush gardens, it's almost hard to believe that growing conditions during the beginning of the season were less than favorable. Wet conditions resulted in the planting of only about 20 percent of David's field crop acreage and 40 to 50 percent of the family's total acreage, and too much rain also took its toll on early flowers and produce seedlings as well.

The Peterson's home is one of six stops on today's garden tour from 1 to 4 p.m. Other sites to visit include the rural homes of Norris and Arlene Thune, Douglass and Kay Steiger and Ted and Darlene Kompatnicki and Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village and Challenger elementary school in Thief River Falls.

The cost of the tour is $5, and proceeds will be donated to the gardening projects at Challenger school. Participants can start the tour at any one of the sites where they will be provided with flyers which include directions to the other stops.

Tour participants will have the added bonus of visiting Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village at no additional charge. Beattie Mickelson is one of the tour organizers and has worked with the plantings at the Village for many years.

While Beattie has worked solo and provided many of the flowers at the Village over the years, she has also been joined by other members of the Moccasin garden club in creating a shade garden with flowers donated by Rainbow Nursery as well as beds in other areas with flowers and plants donated by other individuals and organizations.

Beattie and David Race, a Village employee, took the master gardening course which was offered in Thief River Falls this past spring, and part of the course's requirements is 50 hours of community service. Beattie and David have put in those hours and many more at the Village and have put a special emphasis on adding vintage plants to the site. They have been aided by Lincoln high school National Honor Society members who are also required to perform several hours of community service.

Challenger elementary school has been the project of master gardeners Al Buhl and Tom Schafer.

The weatherman has predicted mild temperatures and only a "chance" of showers for today. In the case of rain, however, the tour will be held during the same hours tomorrow (Sunday, August 8).

The tour will provide us with the opportunity to enjoy summer at its best with hosts and helpers waiting for us at each site.

Katrina, Ethan and Makayla Peterson will be eagerly awaiting our arrival also, and at the Peterson home there is evidence that not only plants and flowers but also children grow and bloom in a garden.

Young Ethan Peterson enjoys picking strawberries from his family's berry patch. Five-year-old Ethan has two sisters, Katrina, 8, and Makayla, 2, and they're the children of David and Betty Peterson whose rural Thief River Falls home is one of six sites on today's tour of gardens.

Hanson accomplishes much on farm, in the community

the summer it is much later."

In the July 16 issue of Farm & Ranch Guide, Valley Editor Andrea Johnson wrote the following article about Norma Hanson as one of six finalists for the County Woman of the Year Award:

by Andrea Johnson
Valley Editor
Farm & Ranch Guide

"My philosophy is that if you are going to succeed in life, you have to know how to work," said Norma Hanson, one of six finalists for Country Woman of the Year. "You have to know how to manage your time, and you have to know how to work with people."

Norma grew up on a north central Minnesota dairy farm near the small town of Backus in Cass county. The oldest of seven children, Norma always enjoyed helping her father with the cattle and field work.

Following graduation from high school, Norma moved to the Twin Cities where she took courses at the Minneapolis School of Business and met her husband-to-be, Lynn Hanson.

After eight years in the Twin Cities, Norma and Lynn moved to Goodridge, MN, near Lynn's original home. "That's where we planted ourselves," Norma said.

Norma's father gave the young couple two Ayrshire cows as a wedding gift. The Hansons developed a diversified farming operation that included a herd of registered Ayrshires, hogs, chickens and small grains. Eventually Lynn and Norma discontinued their hog and chicken operations, but they kept on with dairy, small grains and corn sod hay for feedstuffs.

The couple has one son, Mike, who is now 45. He and his wife, Linda, have two children and live eight miles away. The two families work together although Mike and Linda have their own farming operation.

Lynn and Norma now own 880 acres. They have rented additional land over the years.

The dairy herd is on Dairy Herd Improvement Association testing and the Hansons have raised Ayrshire cattle that have won national and world championships in the show ring.

Managing the farm has always been Norma and Lynn's number one priority. The couple works side-by-side with the dairy, and they make major farming decisions together.

But working on the farm always gave Norma plenty of time to think about other things as well.

"There are times Norma will surprise you with something unusual," said Janice Larson, Gatzke, who co-nominated Norma for the County Woman award. "Like the time she wrote a play for the community to perform. She was also an actress as well as directing it."

Among Norma's other accomplishments are at least 11 leadership roles she has taken on to help agriculture and other worthwhile causes.

She is secretary of the Northwest Dairy Improvement Association. Because of her efforts, the Northwest Dairy Day program—a regional cattle show—was resurrected. In fact, Rhoda Gust, a finalist in last year's Country Woman contest, co-nominated Norma after getting to know her through working on the Dairy Day program.

"It was after working with Norma on the Northwest Dairy Day program that I realized how in-tune with rural America Norma really is," Gust said. "She joins me in being a firm believer in the importance of the family farm. She will make every possible effort to speak out for and promote agriculture and the rural way of life."

Norma was just reelected to a two-year term on the Minnesota Dairy Promotion Council. She serves as treasurer of the Dairy Council of the Upper Midwest, Inc., and is Region One chair and dairy princess contest coordinator. Norma is also Marshall County American Dairy Association vice president.

Norma serves on the Marshall County Water Quality Task Force and the Marshall County Land Use Planning Committee.

She has also served on a variety of local, regional and state committees for the Minnesota Farmers Union as well as the Democratic Party.

Norma served on the Goodridge school board for 15 years. She is a past board member of the Northwest Minnesota Foundation.

She currently serves on the Northwest Minnesota Woman's Foundation. This Foundation will soon provide grants that will fund programs to help empower women to become more involved in leadership roles in their community. Grants will also be available for conducting educational programs to help women become better equipped in decision-making.

Norma is a founder and president of the Goodridge Area Historical Society, founder and past president of the Minnesota Agri-Women and founder of the Good Hope 4-H club where she served as leader for 19 years.

"How she keeps all of the organizations she is involved in straight is a wonder to many people," said Larson. "She likes to be busy, and certainly is, but she will never tell you 'no.' She just works whatever it is you need into her already busy schedule. I appreciate her ability to organize so many big and small events."

Norma will tell you that she believes "the individual determines what kind of life he or she wants to make." That means trying to look at the farm economy with a positive attitude and the belief that someday things will change.

"I'm one of those who will hang in there to keep the family farm," Norma said.

Interesting Highlights

Officials were also interested to learn how fast diesel fuel could reach the river. A suitable substitute was found in using popcorn. The popcorn was released into the storm sewer at Atlantic and Third Street. In less than 10 minutes the popcorn entered the river from the storm sewer, but firemen had correctly anticipated where it would enter the river and had set up a boom around the culvert. The boom captured the popcorn as it would diesel fuel, which floats on top of water. A secondary boom was set up beyond the first boom and when the Hazardous Materials Chemical Assessment Team from Fargo-Moorhead arrived, they placed a boom across the width of the entire river.

The Hazardous Materials Action Team consists of trained emergency response officials located in the Fargo-Moorhead area. They are a division of the Minnesota Department of Public Safety. They arrived with about a dozen team members, driving two trucks which were pulling two trailers. Their equipment included computers, faxes, satellite links, radios, a data base that could provide detailed information about the hazardous material spilled, specially designed hazardous material suits and other equipment, including decontamination equipment, booms, absorbent pads, and a motorized raft.

Roughly two hours after the exercise began it was declared over. During the evaluation following the exercise, evaluators said they were very pleased with the exercise. Many commented on how well so many different government and private agencies worked together.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, who was in command of the incident, was praised for keeping activities organized.

Jean Heinrichs, vice mayor, said citizens of Thief River Falls should be thankful that our safety is insured by so many willing to respond to an emergency.

TRF Night Out attracts over 600 to park

by David Hill
Associate Editor

If only every summer evening could be as nice. . . .

National Night Out in Thief River Falls was considered an outstanding success this year. The weather was just right, there was hardly a mosquito to complain about, and the food and entertainment was free — all good ingredients for any successful event.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said it was a tremendous success. Everyone was real impressed, he said. Chief Froschheiser also noted that it was interesting and pleasing to see the different age groups intermingling.

The point of all of the activity in Floyd B. Olson Park, however, was not lost on those taking part in all the free activities. Booths displayed electrical hook-ups, books, locks, and all kinds of helpful information about crime fighting. People participating in crime fighting in Thief River Falls also shared their experiences and knowledge. Law enforcement, various city officials and city council members were everywhere serving meals and answering questions. Many officials noted that residents took the opportunity to see what was on display and ask questions.

National Night Out, a nation-wide event, was designed to heighten drug and crime awareness, generate support for participation in local crime programs, strengthen neighborhoods and support police and community partnerships.

Officials had no idea of how many people to plan for. The first National Night Out held in Thief River Falls last year, attracted only a handful of people. This year, the city obtained 600 frisbees, which were handed out as a plate support for each plate of food distributed at the event. All of those frisbees were gone along with most of the food before the evening was over. That gave officials an idea of how many people attended the event. (It should be noted, as well, that the cost of the frisbees and all of the food and prizes, were donated by local organizations and individuals.)

In addition to the free food, free entertainment and nearly mosquito-free environment, it was obvious that many people attended the event to see the new police dog, Magnum, in action with his canine handler, Sheriff's Deputy Terry Bayne. When the time came for the canine demonstration, every seat, every bench and table were emptied and everyone crowded as close as they could to the demonstration area. Magnum and his handler pleased everyone throughout the evening by amiably walking among the crowd and making friends with just about every child. Magnum didn't disappoint the crowd during the demonstration either. He performed his tasks flawlessly by finding some hidden marijuana, locating a hidden suspect and chasing down and tackling a car chase suspect.

Many officials noted that with the kind of close community support observed Tuesday night, National Night Out will send a message to criminals everywhere that entire communities and neighborhoods are fighting back.

If every summer evening was as nice, . . . perhaps there would be a lot less crime.

An emergency exercise involving a semi trailer and a CP Railway car hauling anhydrous ammonia was conducted across from the depot on Third Street in downtown Thief River Falls Wednesday. Numerous state and local agencies participated in the exercise.

Observers, pictured on a platform located near the intersection of Third Street and the railroad tracks, observed and critiqued the performance of emergency personnel responding to an emergency drill conducted Wednesday morning in Thief River Falls.

Firefighters, and representatives of special hazardous material response teams work on a boom which was then stretched across the Red Lake River in Thief River Falls Wednesday morning as part of an emergency drill.

Moorhead-Fargo Hazardous Materials Team, funded by the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, set up a decontamination unit and brought out specialized suits to handle a fictitious spill of diesel fuel and anhydrous ammonia. The emergency drill was conducted Wednesday morning in Thief River Falls.

Firebomb damages Naytahwaush school

Naytahwaush - A gasoline firebomb caused an estimated $4,000 to $5,000 in damage to the computer room at the elementary school in Naytahwaush recently.

Fire fighters from Twin Lakes and Mahnomen responded to the fire alarm and quickly put out the fire before it spread outside the room. A fire fighter said that the fire appeared to have started when someone threw a sort of "Molotov cocktail," a beer bottle filled with [illegible] oil, through a window of the school.

The incident is being investigated by the Minnesota State Fire Marshall, the school's insurance agency and the Mahnomen County Sheriff's Department. The Thirteen Towns

Roseau - Varsity Online, a website that follows the success of Minnesota schools [illegible] athletics, recently named Roseau High School its Class A School of the Year for its success in sports, specifically citing the Rams' hockey championship and girls' track championship. Roseau Times-Region

Middle River woman in Sure-Jell Hall of Fame

Middle River - Several months after submitting the entry form that she found in a Sure-Jell box, Fern Curtiss was notified that she was a winner and later received a package containing an apron, a ribbon, a check for $50 and a plaque which reads, "Sure-Jell Fruit Pectin honors Fern Curtiss as a 1998 Sure-Jell Hall of Fame Member - Recognized for Superior Lifetime Achievement in Jam and Jelly Making."

Curtiss has been making jams and jellies for over 50 years, out of necessity in the earlier years and later for enjoyment. New River Record

Resort gives time to inner city kids

Northwest Angle - Jake's Northwest Angle Resort provided the opportunity for an all-expense paid fishing excursion on Lake of the Woods for six inner city youth recently.

The resort was participating in Kinship of Greater Minneapolis, a Christian-based mentoring program that matches children between the ages of 5 and 15 from single parent homes with caring adult mentors. Warroad Pioneer

Badger water tower gets facelift

Badger - Crews began working on the Badger water tower recently by surrounding it with a bag-type structure and sand blasting all of the old paint [illegible].

The new paint job will feature the stem and most of the tank painted a cream color with the ring and letters that spell Badger in forest green. A [illegible] will be painted in authentic colors.

Interior work on the tower is also being done and an alternate source of water is being provided. The Tribune

Counties receive DNR payments in lieu of taxes

Twenty-one counties in northwest and west central Minnesota recently received $1,431,691 from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), division of lands and minerals, under the state's in lieu of taxes program.

The $1.4 million was part of more than $8.3 million distributed statewide this year to Minnesota counties in lieu of real estate taxes for land owned or administered by the DNR.

The counties also received a total of $238,933 in payments distributed earlier this year for public hunting grounds, according to Kathy Strauch, land records specialist with the DNR Bureau of Real Estate Management.

In addition, the four northwestern Minnesota counties of Roseau, Marshall, Beltrami and Lake of the Woods received $968,000 in payments for Consolidated Conservation (Con-Con) lands, Strauch said.

Counties that received Con-Con lands payments included Beltrami, $338,220; Lake of the Woods, $492,767; Marshall, $11,534; and Roseau, $125,480.

Total 1999 DNR payments (for fiscal year 1998) in the 21 counties were $2,638,626. Included in the program are state forest lands, wildlife management areas/public hunting lands, Con-Con lands, state trails, DNR-owned public water access sites, county-managed tax forfeit lands, school trust fund lands and state parks.

Johnson promoted to rank of Associate Professor

Olenice Johnson, Pennington county extension educator, has been promoted to the rank of Associate Professor with the University of Minnesota Extension Service. The promotion was effective July 1.

She has served in her present position for two years. Prior to coming to Thief River Falls she taught at the University of Minnesota, Crookston, for 21 years. Glenice holds a BS degree in Home Economics Education from the University of Minnesota, an MEd degree in Human Development from the University of Maryland and an MA degree in Gerontology from the University of Northern Colorado.

Johnson has developed and worked with a variety of programs in Pennington county since her arrival in June of 1997, including workshops for first-time home buyers (Home Stretch), the mandated course for divorcing parents (Parents Forever), classes on Alzheimer's Disease, long term health care alternatives, money management for families and several activities for Extension Home Study Groups.

She also assists with home economics and international exchange components of the 4-H program. Glenice currently serves as the state-wide Extension Service representative on the Minnesota Department of Health task force and recently developed an Extension Service study group lesson on Y2K Preparedness for the Home to be used throughout the state.

Farm price crisis meet features Sen. Wellstone

U.S. Sen. Paul Wellstone, U.S. Congressman Collin Peterson and State Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, along with Minnesota Farmers Union president Dave Fredrickson, are listed as featured speakers at a farm price crisis meeting called for Monday, August 16, from 4 to 5 p.m. at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

The meeting is one of a number of similar sessions planned by Sen. Wellstone throughout Minnesota August 16-21. Other area meetings include the following:

Monday, August 16

11 a.m., Driscoll farm at East Grand Forks;

1 p.m., Peter and Doris Mortenson farm at Kennedy;

Tuesday, August 17

9 a.m., Monte and Heidi Casavan farm at Red Lake Falls;

11:30 a.m., RBJ's Restaurant in Crookston;

2:30 p.m., Pete Kappes farm at Ada.

Meetings later will be in St. Paul, Rochester, Mankato, New Ulm, Worthington, Slayton, Marshall, Montevideo and Willmar with the tour concluding at Minnesota Rural Unity Day at the Carver county fairgrounds in Waconia.

The meetings are intended for farmers and community members to discuss with Sen. Wellstone, Rep. Peterson and local legislators the continuing farm crisis and what can be done to address it.

Persons interested in attending one or more of the meetings or who desire further information are encouraged to contact Connie Lewis at 1-800-642-6041.

"Over the past year and a half, while the stock market has soared, Minnesota's farmers have continued to endure the worst economic crisis in memory," Sen. Wellstone stated in a recent letter sent to Minnesota news media. "Communities that rely on the farm economy are threatened and commodity prices are in the tank.

"....Farmers want action to help them get a fair price. But too often in Washington, farmers are the invisible constituency. At the White House and in Congress, in the midst of debates over the budget and

School bus route information to be sent in letters

Transportation department of School District 564 notes that school bus route information for the 1999-2000 school year will not be published in the Times or Northern Watch this year. Instead, letters will be sent to each family during the week of August 23.

Ninth intern now serving Goodridge Lutheran parish

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

A peek at the "help wanted" columns in the classified advertising section of our local newspapers reveals businesses of all types seeking skilled, unskilled and professional workers. The availability of jobs and a shortage of workers is one of the signs of a robust economy.

Along with the manufacturing facilities, schools and businesses seeking and sometimes competing for employees is another entity that is experiencing a crisis with regard to available professionals. Rural churches across the country are experiencing a shortage of ministers and priests.

While this problem isn't obvious in the help wanted columns, it can be noted in other areas where we see the names of "interim" pastors listed in church schedules or on occasional article about a rural church that has closed its doors.

Last fall there were four nearby Lutheran parishes which lost their pastors. The ministers of the St. Hilaire, Holt, Gatzke and Grygla parishes either retired or relocated, leaving several churches without clergy.

According to Reverend Bob Dahlen of the Goodridge parish, the shortage of pastors is not a problem with congregations but a personnel

Maria Lopez is the ninth intern to serve the Goodridge Lutheran parish under the supervision of Reverend Bob Dahlen. Maria is participating in the Horizons intern program, a program designed to train seminary students for specialized ministries. Northwest Minnesota falls into the "remote rural" category.

Dredging of the Red Lake reservoir in Thief River Falls began this week. People using the river in Thief River Falls are asked to use caution when near the dredging equipment. Buoys, marking the route of the pipeline, are also evidence of a need to be cautious. This project is expected to take two years to complete. The dredging company is J.F. Brennan of LaCross, WI.

TRF airport to receive grants

Thief River Falls regional airport will receive more than a quarter of a million dollars in grants for airport improvements, according to the Minnesota Department of Transportation, Office of Aeronautics.

The grant will total $269,963 and be used for a commercial apron, taxiway drainage improvement and a paved road. Contractor on the project is Davidson Construction.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) will be providing $250,441 of the grant and the Office of Aeronautics is awarding a grant of $19,522. All funds committed to the project come from aviation user fees and aviation taxes, the Office of Aeronautics said.

Questions about the grant or the project may be directed to Jim Halvorson at the Office of Aeronautics, phone 651-296-8545.

Firebomb damages Naytahwaush school

Naytahwaush - A gasoline firebomb caused an estimated $4,000 to $5,000 in damage to the computer room at the elementary school in Naytahwaush recently.

Fire fighters from Twin Lakes and Mahnomen responded to the fire alarm and quickly put out the fire before it spread outside the room. A fire fighter said that the fire appeared to have started when someone threw a sort of "Molotov cocktail," a beer bottle filled with fuel oil, through a window of the school.

The incident is being investigated by the Minnesota State Fire Marshall, the school's insurance agency and the Mahnomen County Sheriff's Department. The Thirteen Towns

Middle River woman in Sure-Jell Hall of Fame

Middle River - Several months after submitting the entry form that she found in a Sure-Jell box, Fern Curtiss was notified that she was a winner and later received a package containing an apron, a ribbon, a check for $50 and a plaque which reads, "Sure-Jell Fruit Pectin honors Fern Curtiss as a 1998 Sure-Jell Hall of Fame Member - Recognized for Superior Lifetime Achievement in Jam and Jelly Making."

Curtiss has been making jams and jellies for over 50 years, out of necessity in the earlier years and later for enjoyment. New River Record

Resort gives time to inner city kids

Northwest Angle - Jake's Northwest Angle Resort provided the opportunity for an all-expense paid fishing excursion on Lake of the Woods to six inner city youth recently.

The resort was participating in Kinship of Greater Minneapolis, a Christian-based mentoring program that matches children between the ages of 5 and 15 from single parent homes with caring adult mentors. Warroad Pioneer

Badger water tower gets facelift

Badger - Crews began working on the Badger water tower recently by surrounding it with a bag-type structure and sand blasting all of the old paint from it.

The new paint job will feature the stem and most of the tank painted a cream color with the ring and letters that spell Badger in forest green. A mallard will be painted in authentic colors.

Interior work on the tower is also being done and an alternate source of water is being provided. The Tribune

Counties receive DNR payments in lieu of taxes

Twenty-one counties in northwest and west central Minnesota recently received $1,431,691 from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), division of lands and minerals, under the state's in lieu of taxes program.

The $1.4 million was part of more than $8.3 million distributed statewide this year to Minnesota counties in lieu of real estate taxes for land owned or administered by the DNR.

The counties also received a total of $238,933 in payments distributed earlier this year for public hunting grounds, according to Kathy Strauch, land records specialist with the DNR Bureau of Real Estate Management.

In addition, the four northwestern Minnesota counties of Roseau, Marshall, Beltrami and Lake of the Woods received $968,000 in payments for Consolidated Conservation (Con-Con) lands, Strauch said.

Counties that received Con-Con lands payments included Beltrami, $338,220; Lake of the Woods, $492,767; Marshall, $11,534; and Roseau, $125,480.

Total 1999 DNR payments (for fiscal year 1998) in the 21 counties were $2,638,626. Included in the program are state forest lands, wildlife management areas/public hunting lands, Con-Con lands, state trails, DNR-owned public water access sites, county-managed tax forfeit lands, school trust fund lands and state parks.

"Over the past year and a half, while the stock market has soared, Minnesota's farmers have continued to endure the worst economic crisis in memory," Sen. Wellstone stated in a recent letter sent to Minnesota news media. "Communities that rely on the farm economy are threatened and commodity prices are in the tank.

"...Farmers want action to help them get a fair price. But too often in Washington farmers are the invisible constituency. At the White House and in Congress, in the midst of debates over the budget and

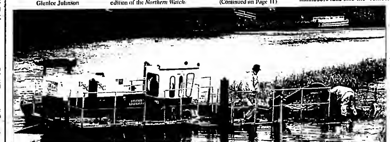
Ninth intern now serving Goodridge Lutheran parish

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

A peek at the "help wanted" columns in the classified advertising section of our local newspapers reveals businesses of all types seeking skilled, unskilled and professional workers. The availability of jobs and a shortage of workers is one of the signs of a robust economy.

Along with the manufacturing facilities, schools and businesses seeking and sometimes competing for employees is another entity that is experiencing a crisis with regard to available professionals. Rural churches across the country are experiencing a shortage of ministers and priests.

While this problem isn't obvious in the help wanted columns, it can be noted in other areas where we see the names of "interim" pastors listed in church schedules or an occasional article about a rural church that has closed its doors.



Last fall there were four nearby Lutheran parishes which lost their pastors. The ministers of the St. Hilaire, Holt, Gatzke and Grygla parishes either retired or relocated, leaving several churches without clergy.

According to Reverend Bob Dahlen of the Goodridge parish, the shortage of pastors is not a problem with congregations but a personnel

Marie Lopez is the ninth intern to serve the Goodridge Lutheran parish under the supervision of Reverend Bob Dahlen. Marie is participating in the Horizons intern program, a program designed to train seminary students for specialized ministries. Northwest Minnesota falls into the "remote rural" category.

Dredging of the Red Lake reservoir in Thief River Falls began this week. People using the river in Thief River Falls are asked to use caution when near the dredging equipment. Buoys, marking the route of the pipeline, are also evidence of a need to be cautious. This project is expected to take two years to complete. The dredging company is J.F. Brennan of LaCross, WI.

TRF airport to receive grants

Thief River Falls regional airport will receive more than a quarter of a million dollars in grants for airport improvements, according to the Minnesota Department of Transportation, Office of Aeronautics.

The grant will total $269,963 and be used for a commercial apron, taxiway drainage improvement and a paved road. Contractor on the project is Davidson Construction.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) will be providing $250,441 of the grant and the Office of Aeronautics is awarding a grant of $19,522. All funds committed to the project come from aviation user fees and aviation taxes, the Office of Aeronautics said.

Questions about the grant or the project may be directed to Jim Halvorson at the Office of Aeronautics, phone 651-296-8545.

Karlstad's hockey rink issue resolved

Karlstad - There will be a hockey skating rink in Karlstad this winter.

Last winter there were two rinks at Moose Park, one for hockey and one for regular skating. However, the hockey rink was soon closed because the fence boards cracked, broke and were unsafe for use.

After city officials contacted the manufacturer of the plastic boards, the company made some restitution with the City of Karlstad finally recovering about one-half of its original investment. For this year's rink, a city crew will install regular wood boards.

A new warming house with an electric heater and two windows will also be built. North Star News

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere

A couple of weeks ago I had a recipe for Chili Rice Dinner. There was no rice in the recipe. It was taken from the Lincoln Choir Cookbook, submitted by Shari Evenson. If anyone knows how much and what kind of rice goes in the recipe, please let me know. I have a lady ready to make it who can't do so until she finds out about the rice.

While trying to find patterns for baby sweaters in my very ancient collection of Workbasket magazine, I came across some interesting recipes. I've chosen a few that utilize that fresh produce available now.

Use some of that zucchini you grew or got from the neighbor in this tasty main dish:

SPAGHETTI WITH ZUCCHINI

1 1/2 pounds mild Italian sausage, cut into pieces
4 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
1/2 cup butter (or maybe less – this recipe was from a 1970's book – before cholesterol)
1/2 cup water
3 chicken bouillon cubes
1 1/2 pounds zucchini, sliced
1 (4 ounce) jar pimentos, drained and chopped
1/4 cup chopped scallions
1 pound spaghetti

In large skillet, brown sausage and mushrooms. Drain fat. Add butter and then water and bouillon cubes, stirring until cubes dissolve.

Add zucchini, pimento and scallions. Cook, uncovered, over medium heat until zucchini is soft and sausage is done, about 30 minutes.

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender yet firm. Drain and serve with sauce.

(Serves 4-6 people.)

Here's a tasty and elegant one-dish meal you can make for the family or special guests:

BEEF EGGPLANT CASSEROLE

1 medium eggplant, peeled and sliced
1 egg, beaten
Milk
Flour
1 pound ground beef
1 onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
Salt and pepper
2 small cans tomato sauce
Slices of mozzarella cheese
Grated cheese
Oregano

Place sliced eggplant in layers in colander, sprinkling each layer with salt. Allow moisture to come out, then pat dry and proceed.

Dip eggplant slices in milk, egg and flour. Brown and set aside.

Brown beef with green pepper, onion, salt and pepper. Add tomato sauce.

In casserole, alternate layers of eggplant, hamburger mixture and mozzarella slices. Repeat until eggplant is used.

Sprinkle with grated cheese and then with oregano.

Bake at 350 degrees until cheese is melted. (Serves 4-5.)

I have an apple tree that is producing edible fruit right now, but if yours is a later variety, you will soon be able to use your sweet treats in this nutritious recipe – otherwise buy some of those delicious apples in the stores:

CARROT AND APPLE SALAD

2 tablespoons peanut butter
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 large apples
4 carrots
1 1/2 cups chopped celery
1 cup raisins

Peel, core and chop apples. Grate carrots.

Mix peanut butter and mayonnaise well and blend with other ingredients. Store in refrigerator overnight.

Make this hearty and quick dish on a cool day – just right with a crusty loaf of bread and the apple salad above:

GARDEN HARVEST CHOWDER

2 cups mashed potatoes
4 slices bacon, cut up and cooked
1 tablespoon bacon fat
2 tablespoons sliced green onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup thinly sliced carrots
1 teaspoon salt
1 can cream-style corn
1/2 cup fresh or frozen peas
2 cups milk
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 large tomato, peeled and thinly sliced
Pepper

Sauté onion, celery and carrot in hot bacon fat for 2 minutes. Add salt, corn, peas, potatoes, milk and cheese. Heat until cheese is melted, stirring occasionally. Place in bowls.

Top each serving with a tomato slice and sprinkle with bacon pieces and pepper. (Recipe serves 6.)

One more main dish meal, or use as a side dish with your favorite grilled meat:

HARVEST POTATO BAKE

2 pounds potatoes (about 6 medium)
1 pound zucchini, sliced
2 medium tomatoes, sliced
1 onion, sliced
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Salt and pepper
4 ounces Cheddar cheese, sliced thin

Peel and slice potatoes.

Alternate layers of potatoes, zucchini, tomatoes and onion in greased baking dish, sprinkling each layer with olive oil, parsley, salt and pepper.

Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour to 1 hour and 15 minutes, until potatoes are tender.

Arrange cheese slices over top and return to oven until cheese melts. (Serves 6-8 people.)

Watermelon-makers were these pre-school children who participated in the last of six summer camps held during the summer at Challenger elementary school under sponsorship of the learning readiness program. Ruth Brunkhorst was the instructor. Children invited to participate in the summer camps were from three and one-half to five years of age. The camp was entitled "Wild About Watermelons" and the project included making papier mache watermelons and watermelon sun visors. Camp participants (from left) included, front row, Dakota Jacobson, Bree Blenkenfeld, Joy Feragen, Hunter Blowers, Kourtney Amiot, Brett Drevlow, Brady Erickson and Clare Mooney; middle row, Davis Mills, Dallas Jacobson, Riley Simenson, Maura Nelson, Brienne Drevlow, Katherine Wrenn and Ben Zellmer; back row, Kimberly Belto, Crystal Amundson, Cory Geske, Willie Nikunen, Kara Iliff, Danielle Simenson and Logan Johnson.

Watermelon sun visors were created by participants in the "Wild About Watermelons" camp for pre-school children recently at Challenger elementary school in Thief River Falls. Among the camp participants was Danielle Simenson, shown working on creating the visor from two paper plates.

Congressman likes pay-down of national debt

Announcement from the White House that the federal government will pay down $87 billion of the national debt this year drew applause from Congressman Collin Peterson. After adjusting for inflation, this would be the largest pay-down on record.

"Along with the other fiscal conservatives in the Blue Dog Coalition, I've been working to make debt reduction the first budgetary priority for Congress," he said. "I am extremely pleased to see the administration get on board with this effort."

Combined with last year's figure, he said, this would make the total of national debt paydown for the two years $142 billion. As a result of the strong economy, the balanced federal budget and the "caps" that are in place to limit spending by Congress and ensure fiscal discipline, the prevailing national debt is $1.7 trillion less than was projected in 1993, the Congressman said.

"This is a good sign, but we have a long way to go before we think about celebrating," Peterson said. "The misleading talk of budget surpluses has Congress considering various proposals—from tax cuts to spending increases—that will derail the deficit reduction train before it gets out of the station. I think we have to make debt reduction our first priority and remain committed to it until the task is completed and the national debt is retired."

LETTERS

To The Editor:

This letter is in response to the August 7, 1999 Northern Watch letter from James Langland, M.D.

It's unfortunate that Dr. Langland chose not to answer the important questions raised by Drmond Johnson in the July 31, 1999 issue of the Northern Watch. Many members of our community share Mr. Johnson's concerns about the real motive behind Dakota Clinic's attempt to purchase more than 100 memberships in the Northwest Medical Center (NWMC) Association.

Although Dr. Langland would prefer that the community not see Dakota Clinic as competing against NWMC, the facts speak for themselves. Dakota Clinic decided to build its own facility on Hwy 59 South after NWMC rejected Dakota Clinic's demand for 100% of NWMC's outpatient revenue. NWMC offered to give Dakota Clinic half of NWMC's outpatient revenue in order to keep the medical community "whole," but this was not enough for Dakota Clinic. They went ahead with a facility that duplicates many of the services already available at Northwest Medical Center, including an $800,000 CAT scanner. As this kind of wasteful duplication does a tremendous disservice to the community, the community is right to take Dakota Clinic's public statements about "working together" with a grain of salt.

So far, the impact on NWMC of Dakota Clinic's decision to compete is an annual reduction in NWMC's revenue of approximately $1.6 million. The impact would have been even greater if the not-for-profit Altru Clinic had not agreed to establish a clinic at Northwest Medical Center. In addition to lessening the damage done to NWMC by Dakota Clinic, the Altru Clinic is providing the community with "healthcare choices" the community has been asking for.

The Dakota Clinic continues to pursue its business objectives at NWMC's and the community's expense, and this is why Dakota Clinic is working so hard to gain influence on the NWMC Board. Dakota Clinic has made no secret of its desire to take licensed hospital beds away from NWMC and move them out to Highway 59 South. We think the community is right to be alarmed by the very prospect of having its hospital beds controlled by the for-profit Dakota Clinic.

Dr. Langland complains that the NWMC Board has "excluded physicians from meaningful participation in the decision process." Please ask yourself these three (3) questions: How involved should physicians who have a direct competitive financial interest be in deciding NWMC's future? Should those physicians participate in the NWMC Board's discussions about how NWMC can survive destructive competition from Dakota Clinic? Is it possible to tell whether a Dakota Clinic physician is providing "medical input" or simply pursuing Dakota Clinic's business agenda?

As a not-for-profit 501 (c) (3) corporation, NWMC is not subject to the some open meeting laws that apply to city and county government and school districts. Dr. Langland, as Chief of Staff, attends all monthly meetings of the NWMC Board to provide "medical input." For the some reason that Arctic Cat doesn't invite Polaris to participate in Arctic Cat strategy meetings, the NWMC Board does exclude Dr. Langland, as a Dakota Clinic shareholder, from Executive Sessions the Board holds to discuss matters which cannot be meaningfully discussed in the presence of competitors. Although Dr. Langland insists on calling these "secret meetings," Judge Dennis Murphy has ruled that it is entirely appropriate for Northwest Medical Center to conduct such meetings.

Finally, Dr. Langland neglected to mention in his letter that physicians have in the past chosen to exclude themselves from "meaningful participation" in NWMC's affairs. In the past few years, three physicians who served on the NWMC Board resigned before completing their terms on the Board. Curiously, one of those who resigned, Robert Dicken, M.D., who now does 100% of his TRF surgical cases at the Dakota Clinic Surgery Center, suddenly wants to serve again.

NWMC is on the same page with Dr. Langland when it comes to making Thief River Falls a regional center for health services. We are pleased that Dakota Clinic is finally acknowledging that patients have a low tolerance for being referred outside the region for a clinic's financial benefit rather than for the good of the patient. NWMC believes the expansion of services through the Altru Clinic in Thief River Falls will help the community meet its health care needs as close to home as possible while also strengthening our community hospital and ensuring NWMC's future.

The NWMC Board has been pleased by all the indications we've received that the community, rather than being fooled by Dakota Clinic's superficial talk of cooperation, sees what's really motivating Dakota Clinic to gain influence on the NWMC Board.

We hope that members of the NWMC Association will vote on September 13, 1999 in support of the Board's nominated directors, Lyle Hanson and Karen Kirkeby. It is important that NWMC remains in the hands of people whose influence will not be used to pursue Dakota Clinic's business objectives.

Cut The Rhetoric, Just Send The Checks

While the Democrats and Republicans in the Minnesota Legislature are straining their shoulder muscles trying to pat themselves on the back for giving back part of a tax surplus, the grunts in the Department of Revenue are apparently having a tough time doing the math and cutting the checks. Apparently the department is set up so that it is easier to receive than to give.

A recent release from the Minnesota House Republican Caucus says that "checks will soon arrive in the mail due to the strong leadership of the Republicans since the very beginning of the 1999 session." Uh huh. "You should receive your rebate by the end of August," the release continues. Uh huh. "If you do not receive your rebate by October 1, 1999 and believe you qualify for a rebate, contact the Minnesota Department of Revenue." Uh huh.

"We delivered the cash back to the families and taxpayers of Minnesota because we know they can spend their hard earned money better than government," states Rep. Steve Sviggum, Speaker of the House. (We don't have it yet, Steve.)

"The tax cut was the cornerstone of our agenda this year, and we are happy to deliver on the promises we made for across the board income tax cuts, one-time rebates and property tax reforms for farm families," added Rep. Tim Pawlenty, House Majority Leader. (Show us the money, Tim.)

Maybe Sviggum and Pawlenty are right in taking credit for the rebate, although we seem to recall their initial push was to insist on an income tax refund. And maybe Senate DFL leaders like Roger Moe are right in taking credit for the sales tax rebate scheme which reportedly will save federal income taxes on the refund.

Regardless of who is right and truthful, if that is possible, however, the vocal legislators have given renewed meaniog to the term "the check is in the mail."

Communities Need Plan To Retain Farm Families

"There are no easy answers, but small communities need to be planning how to keep people in the community if they leave farming," says Vernon Eidman, head of the Applied Economies Department at the University of Minnesota. "A strong non-farm economy is very important to maintain small towns."

One of the problems with economies is that number crunching takes much of the human element and emotions out of the equation. The process converts families to units of dollars and removes their pride of ownership and self-reliance as a factor.

"What happens to the economics of small towns when farms go out of business?" asks the lead paragraph in an article quoting Eidman in Sustainable Agriculture, published by the College of Agricultural, Food and Environmental Sciences at the University of Minnesota. "It depends on the type of farm and whether the farm family stays in the community."

Eidman says that when crop farmers go out of business, the land is typically farmed by another farmer from the area. So some of the economic activity from that farm may stay in the community.

But when a local livestock farm hangs it up, production is apt to shift to a larger unit that may be in another community or state. And farmers with larger operations are less apt to buy their farm supplies locally, Eidman says, citing a 1994 University of Minnesota survey. That study of 30 members of the Southwestern Minnesota Farm Business Management Association showed farm size was an important indicator of how likely a farmer is to spend locally for needed farm goods and services.

Several people in the study said that many larger crop farmers were grouping together to purchase seeds and chemicals from factory or wholesale outlets, bypassing local sales people and receiving lower prices. Large livestock producers were also buying more of the feed ingredients, antibiotics and livestock from distant suppliers who offered better prices, higher quality or a more consistent supply of top quality animals.

One study in Iowa showed that farmers who lived in town rather than on the traditional farmstead were more apt to buy locally. Eidman said that apparently if you had to jump in the pickup, you might decide to go 40 miles to a larger town instead of 20 miles to the closest town. But buying just down the street was tempting for farmers who lived in town.

A key point, Eidman emphasizes from his applied economics view, is what happens to the local economy when families leave farming but continue to live and work in the community. "This could actually be a positive factor in the local economy if the non-farm income the family earned was more than the farm income," he said.

Sounds logical, except that the farm family may have spent $100,000 in the community for farm inputs with virtually no net income of its own, then find it necessary to take a local job or two which someone else could hold and do most of its buying out of town. It depends on how you apply your economics.

In a separate news story, Eidman makes the innovative suggestion that "many farmers don't want to do it, but taking an off-farm job in the local community may be one of the best ways to ride out the farm crisis." Funny nobody ever thought of that before!

Expressing the opinion that "we're looking beyond the end of 1999, possibly 2000 or later before things get much better," Eidman says that "the best option for many farmers is probably to look for opportunities to earn some money off the farm."

Many farmers won't find that suggestion to be original. They have been doing that for years to support their farming habit. The whole question seems to be, however, given the severity of the current crisis, is how they can earn enough to pay the bills.

POLICIES

Letters To The Editor: The staff of the Northern Watch encourages written responses to editorial comment or letters with original thoughts or ideas of general interest. Letters should be intended for publication in Northern Watch exclusively; letters sent to multiple publications will generally not be accepted. Right is reserved to edit letters for length and clarity and to reject letters deemed to be promotional in nature or in poor taste.

Letters Must Be Signed: All letters must be signed and contain an address or phone number of the writer so authenticity can be verified. Signatures must appear on letters published. The staff believes that there is greater credibility in letters signed in print and will not withhold names of writers from publication.

Responses Invited: Letters critical of individuals or other entities may be shown to those individuals or representatives of those entities in advance of publication with an invitation by newspaper staff for response in the same issue as the original letter.

Corrections: If an error is made in news or advertising publication, the staff encourages readers to call it to our immediate attention by calling 681-4450. We will attempt to correct the error or clarify the misunderstanding in the next issue.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I have some questions concerning the letter in the August 7 issue of the Northern Watch by Dr. Jim Langland.

Question No. 1—When you said, "We believe Thief River Falls should develop into a bigger regional medical center," does this mean Northwest Medical Center or a larger Dakota Clinic Medical Center? Please explain.

Question No. 2—Do you share Dakota Clinic's plans and minutes of meetings with Northwest Medical Center board members? If not, please explain.

I agree with you that there should not be secret meetings of NWMC board members, but I also believe Dakota Clinic should share plans and minutes of their meetings with NWMC board members.

Dakota Clinic is a for profit organization and Northwest Medical Center is a non-profit organization. This creates a conflict of interest.

If medical staff should be on the board—which I agree with—it should also include Altru Clinic staff.
